Baer Loses On a Foul, Disqualified In the 7th

Saved by Bell, He Seems Ready to Go On—Manager Isn't; Louis Knocked Down

(Pictures, Other Stories on Sports Pages.)

By Bill Cunningham

Jacob (Buddy) Baer, 6-foot 6-inch, 237-pound scion of a California clouting dynasty, officially became the seventeenth corpus delicti in the personal championship graveyard of a sorely pressed Joe Louis in the National Capital's ball yard last night, but he went out on his feet with his battle flags flying.

He had knocked Louis out of the ring for a 4-count in the first round.

Either a brain storm or a cunningly executed stratagem of the veteran Baer Manager Ancil Hoffman, caused Referee Arthur Donovan to disqualify the powerful Californian as he stood in his corner, apparently ready to fight.

This was in the seventh stanza of the proposed 15-round struggle representing the first heavyweight championship prize fight in the history of Washington. It followed a terrific fifth and an even more furious sixth that saw Louis, blinded with the blood from a badly cut eye, drop his huge adversary three times for counts of seven, nine and one.

[The third knockdown was protested and Timekeeper Charley Reynolds officially reported it came three seconds after the bell.]

Definitely saved by the bell, and dragged to his corner like a huge sack of stove bolts by his scurrying handlers, Baer was propped in his angle with seconds working like beavers. But the wizened Hoffmann tore across the canvas to referee Donovan and began a wild protest of the fact that Louis had struck Baer after the bell.

Baer Was on Floor

It was hard to see what bell or how, for Baer was on the floor apparently as cold as 40 quarts of ice cream, but Hoffmann kept on protesting and protesting some more. The entire rest period passed and still he protested. The Baer handlers, in the meantime, had worked a miracle and with the bang of the tocsin, their amazingly durable gladiator reared himself upright and apparently ready for war.

Louis, wearing the badge of a damaged left eye and looking fairly petered from the heavy going just behind, stepped forth uncertainly, definitely ready to proceed. But Hoffmann wouldn't give, and the gray-shirted referee, imported from New York to adjudicate the fracas, disqualified Baer because of Hoffmann's presence in the ring.

Under New York Boxing Commission rules, which governed the contention, this rates as foul. Hence Baer escapes the fate of his brother, Madcap Maxie, in the record books.

This same Louis reduced brother Max to a sodden study in still life on a balmy night in September, 1935, in four rounds, feeble in comparison to the dockyard action in most of tonight's fray. Max gave a perfect imitation of the dying Gaul in silver plaster.

Jacob Punched It Out

Buddy smeared that blotch on the family escutcheon. He really punched it out with the grim and gory champion, even knocking him through the ropes for a count of four with a terrific left in the first round and opening a wound under his eye in the fifth that bade fair to make trouble.

Probably he was through. Probably Hoffmann figured he was through, which constitutes the reason for the deliberate Hoffmann behavior. But the doubt will always remain. The big white boy was firmly on his feet with his face to-

—But Not a Drop to Drink

Many Children Never Taste Fresh Milk

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

While three bottles of nickel-a-quart milk go begging every day for every one sold, several thousand Washington needy are forced to go without it because they aren't eligible for the required card.

Mrs. X is a case in point.

She came to the Children's Hospital dispensary yesterday, bringing her 6-year-old girl—a heart case. From the mother, attendants got this story:

There are eight children in the family. The eldest is a boy 16, who earns his own keep. The father has a low-salaried job.

They can't afford to buy milk at the regular market price. So they go without, all ten of them. There may be canned milk in the house, but no fresh cow's milk—at any time.

"But why don't you go on relief?" they asked Mrs. X. "Then you would be eligible to receive surplus commodity food and 5-cent milk."

Mrs. X may have been a little hurt at the suggestion. Relief? Not so long as her husband was able to work!

Her Pride Saves the Taxpayers Money

Her pride is saving District taxpayers money. The favor could be returned cheaply by extending nickel-milk privileges to the X family and others in the same predicament.

Mrs. Y and her brood are no better off. With a baby in her arms, she walked into a child health clinic yesterday. There are two other children, the eldest 3 years old. The husband makes $18 a week. There are two old folks to support in the house, as well.

Those three children have never tasted cow's milk. No money to buy it, that's all.

Then there was the woman who came in yesterday—at the same clinic—with her two small children. A third will be along soon. The father earns $12 a week. The two youngsters have never drunk real milk, said their mother. Prospects of No. 3 are anything but bright under the present setup, which bars 5-cent milk to all but relief clients and those awaiting assignment to WPA jobs.

Cases like the above can be duplicated into the hundreds. The fact that those mothers and prospective mothers go to maternal and child-welfare centers shows they are good-health conscious. If 5-cent milk were placed within their reach, it's a safe bet they would buy it.

That brings up the question, mentioned in the first paragraph, of the nickel milk that is going begging.

Why were only 69,959 quarts sold last month, when the potential was 280,000? And only 73,582 quarts in March, 65,709 in February, 70,473 in January—and so on?

Can It Be Charged to Indifference?

Can this situation be charged to indifference on the part of prospective beneficiaries? Even if one assumes they just aren't interested in low cost, high quality milk, should the matter be forgotten?

Or should there be a determined effort to find out why the bottles are not turning over faster? Are the 11 dispensing stations spaced too far apart (there is only one in all of Anacostia, only two in all of Northeast Washington, only one in the Southwest section)?

Are some of the holders of milk cards physically unable to go for their bottles (remember, the blind and the aged are among the eligibles)?

Is there a need for educating the 5,000 or so qualified families and individuals, who have not even applied for their cards as to the value of milk in the diet?

The answer to all these questions probably is a provisional "yes." But guesswork is not to be tolerated where public health

Defense Lifts D. C. Budget

1,488,000 Request Reaches Congress

By Robert DeVore
Post Staff Writer

The District's "national defense budget" reached Congress yesterday.

It carried—out of a $1,488,000 total—$766,287 in additional school funds for expenditure chiefly in Southeast Washington, where thousands of defense workers are finding new homes.

The estimates, representing a net increase of about $1,200,000 in the District's 1942 budget, were submitted to the House District Appropriations Subcommittee as that body scheduled for today hearings on public school appropriation requests.

For construction of school buildings, the defense budget asked $529,417. For the purchase of sites for buildings and playgrounds, $190,000 was asked. Other items were for new streets, sewer extensions and additional Metropolitan policemen.

Bioff and Browne Indicted by U. S.

William Bioff, leader of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, and George E. Browne, president of the union, were indicted in Federal Court at New York yesterday on charges of extorting $550,000 by threats to tie up the movie industry with a strike.

Staggered Pay Ruling Sought

Commissioners Weigh Legislative Aspects

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech yesterday was instructed by the Commissioners to determine what, if any, legislation would be necessary to stagger the pay days of some 14,000 employes of the District government.

And at the same time, Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton was ordered to study possible effects of the stagger system on the city's $27,600,000 annual pay roll.

The Commissioners approved in principle the proposed plan, but have not acted officially. They have called for early reports from Keech and Pilkerton.

Privately, the Commissioners have been advised by certain Federal and local officials that it probably will not be necessary to seek legislation to inaugurate the stagger payday plan.

Commenting favorably on the proposal, Keech said he felt that private employment—stores, shops, etc.—might be placed on a more level basis if pay days are scattered through the month. With shopping times more evenly distributed, he added, a vast improvement in the traffic congestion problem also would result.

Representative F. Edward Hebert (Democrat) of Louisiana, said last night that he hopes to have a reply Monday to his request to Attorney General Jackson for an opinion on existing legislative authority for the Treasury Department to stagger Federal paydays.

U. S. Is Asked To Use Army To End Strike

Land, Bard Testify At Truman Inquiry On Walkout Tying Up Coast Shipyards

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The Government should "step in and take over" 11 San Francisco area shipyards, unless work is resumed immediately on $500,000,000 worth of defense orders tied up in a two-week strike, a special Senate committee was told yesterday.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Bard asserted before the Truman Committee investigating defense progress that the strike of 1,700 machinists in San Francisco Bay shipyards was "instigated undoubtedly by selfish and subversive elements."

The Navy Department legal staff is ready to aid in drafting a statute to give the Government power to take over plants where employes refuse to cooperate in the defense program, if legislation is necessary, he said.

Bard also suggested that leaders of "outlaw" strikes might be prosecuted by the Justice Department for conspiracy against the defense effort.

Progress Indicated

Some progress toward ending the strike was indicated meanwhile, in word received here that the Bethlehem Steel Co. had accepted A. F. L. demands for provisions of a coast-wide no-strike-or-lockout agreement which Bethlehem had not signed. The company, however, rejected a demand for a closed shop, which is not in the all-coast stabilization pact. Some Coast circles were said to feel that the strike would collapse if Bethlehem should sign, even though the machinists were striking for higher wages than are provided in the pact.

Land Urges Use of Force

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Maritime Commission chairman, testifying at the same session, expressed doubt as to the efficacy of Government operation of the shipyards, but called for the use of armed force, if necessary, to remove the picket lines thrown around the West Coast plants. He said:

"I believe there is justification for every possible step the Government can take up to and including the use of United States forces—be they city, State or National—to take off this picket line so the people there can go to work."

He termed the strike "a case of the tail wagging the dog—1,700 men wagging 17,000."

The A. F. of L. and C. I. O. machinists, numbering about 1,700, are striking for double pay for overtime, instead of time and a half, and $1.15 an hour, instead of $1.12. Since they walked out May 9, another 17,000 shipyard workers have been idle.

Outlaw Strike, Says Frey

John F. Frey, head of the metal trades division of the A. F. of L., has denounced the walkout as "an outlaw strike," in violation of the West Coast shipbuilding master agreement signed in April, stabilizing wages and hours and forbidding strikes or lockouts.

Admiral Land, questioned by Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, agreed that legislation to authorize the Government to take over plants where employes refuse "to play ball in the defense effort" would have a valuable psychological effect, even if the authority were not used.

Connally went on to say:

"If the Government needs ships and munitions in this emergency and the only way to get them is to take over the plants, then, by God, I'm in favor of doing it."

Bard told the committee that

93-Degree Heat Fells 4; Today's Forecast: 'Cooler'

A short-lived electrical storm crashed into Washington heat of 93 degrees yesterday afternoon, bringing a brief rain, the promise of cooler weather today, and leaving damage in its wake.

Before the storm struck four persons were taken to hospitals for treatment with heat prostration. In the storm two dwellings were hit by lightning and a cornice was knocked from the North Interior Department Building, just above the office of Housing Administrator Nathan Straus. No one was hurt.

Fair with moderate temperature was the forecast for today and tomorrow. Yesterday's high of 93 was recorded at 2:10 p. m.

British Storming Last Nazi Foothold in Crete; 5,000 Drown As Invasion Fleet Is Smashed

Italian Destroyer, Two Steamers And 40 Sailing Vessels Rammed, Sunk or Scattered in 3-Hour Battle; Drowning Scream Vainly for Help

By Larry Allen,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Alexandria, Egypt, May 23.—Five thousand or more Nazi soldiers bent on a surprise landing on Crete were drowned when a British naval squadron smashed into the center of their hodge-podge convoy and blasted to the bottom an Italian destroyer, two merchantmen and 40 sailing vessels, British naval officers related tonight.

Not a single German managed to reach the embattled island to reinforce the airborne Nazis already there, the officers asserted.

Describing the carnage wrought in a three-hour engagement which began about 11 p. m. Wednesday, the officers said the sailboats, Greek caiques, were loaded precariously with about 100 Germans each, and estimated that with the loss of life on the other larger vessels, the casualties must have passed 5,000.

As the British cruisers and destroyers rammed the wooden boats and riddled them with the fire of 4-inch guns and anti-aircraft pompoms, they said the Germans who were hurled into the black waters screamed vainly for rescue.

Nazis Made Rescue Impossible

But the Germans still afloat were too busy to save their comrades, and the threat of torpedo attacks from German "E-boats" kept the British from trying it as they swept again and again through the huddled caiques.

The entire Nazi convoy was destroyed or dispersed.

The destroyer was accounted for by a resounding broadside of a British cruiser's 6-inch guns, which set the victim aflame from stem to stern.

A large merchantman, which the British said must have carried at least 1,000 men, was sent to the bottom in similar fashion, and another cruiser sank a smaller steamer of about 1,000 tons.

The captain of a British antiaircraft cruiser, one of the first to return to Alexandria, gave this account of the melodramatic action:

"Three cruisers and four destroyers were steaming eastward from Suda Bay (in the Sea of Crete, between Crete and Greece) when a destroyer in our screen opened fire on a darkened ship.

Jammed on Speed and Entered Fray

"This was the first intimation that we were in contact with the enemy.

"We altered course, jammed on full speed and entered the fray.

"Our destroyer fire was very effective. A great bonfire appeared on the ocean, apparently a merchantman burning from bow to stern.

"The first ship we on this cruiser actually sighted was a large Italian destroyer, which was not at all unlike our own one-funnel destroyers.

"It was not until we flashed a searchlight on her that we were certain she was an Italian, flying the Italian ensign.

"Judging by her immaculate paintwork, she apparently had spent many months in port.

"We were at very close range by then and opened fire with our pompoms. She then fired torpedoes, and in avoiding them, this cruiser was masked by another cruiser.

"This other cruiser, however, thus got a clear view of the Italian destroyer and gave her a full broadside of 6-inch guns, all of which seemed to hit.

Never Fired Her Own Guns

"A series of violent explosions occurred and the burning destroyer went down like a stone.

"Throughout the action, she never had fired her own guns.

Army Promotes 13 Leaders

Move Seen as Sign Youth Is Desired

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday advanced 13 Army officers to higher rank, a move that was regarded in some circles as preparatory to the promotion of younger men to the high command.

Only four of those nominated yesterday are considered "young" by Army standards—being in their middle fifties—but there were indications that the White House may shortly bring even younger officers to high command posts in the new field Army.

It may be that no changes will be made until officers in key commands have had an opportunity to demonstrate their ability in the large scale war games now beginning and scheduled to run through the summer and fall.

President Roosevelt, however, is understood to want to bring youthful officers to high post. There has

The War of Words

Senator Josh Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, yesterday called for a declaration of full national emergency after warning in the Senate that noninterventionists have "shot the deadly cocaine of appeasement into the muscles of national defense."

"I urge on the President today to announce a full war emergency and throw our production into full gear," he said. "I call on him to use the Army and Navy and the air force in the most efficacious manner for defense."

He complained that the Versailles Treaty was too lenient.

"We should have done what Jack (Gen. John J.) Pershing wanted us to do—to carry the war to the nesting place of war," Lee declared.

Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, noninterventionist leader, said the United States would be "held guilty of giving the word 'go'" which started the war.

"What concerns me is the knowledge that whatever the outcome of the war, the United States is going to be the most hated and despised

2 Americans On Zamzam Hurt by Shells

State Department Orders Inquiry On Fate of Vessel

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Unoccupied France, May 23.—A dawn shelling that spelled doom for the Egyptian liner Zamzam and wounded two of her 148 American passengers was followed by a 33-day voyage for the entire ship's company as enforced guests aboard a Nazi merchantman, the survivors related today.

At German-occupied Biarritz and Bordeaux they gave this account of the sea drama:

The Zamzam sailed from Recife, Brazil, April 9 for Capetown, South Africa.

At 6 a. m. on April 17, when she had covered a little more than half the 3,318-mile course, a German surface raider hove into view.

Hit 8 or 9 Times

The location was 27 degrees and 41 minutes south latitude, 8 degrees and 8 minutes west longitude, or about 750 miles south and slightly west of St. Helena, Napoleon's isle of exile.

The German vessel opened fire immediately, hitting the Zamzam eight or nine times.

Francis J. Vicovari, of New York; Ned Laughinghouse, of Wilson, N. C., and an Egyptian were wounded. Vicovari was leader of 24 American ambulance drivers bound for Africa.

[The State Department last night telegraphed its representatives in Berlin, Vichy, Bordeaux and Madrid for fuller information on the shelling of the Zamzam, following receipt of news that two Americans had been wounded.

[If reports are true that the ship was fired on by a Nazi raider, officials said, the United States will reserve all rights to protest formally to the German government or to take any other remedial action. —Editor's note.]

The Zamzam had to heave to, and the raider took aboard all the passengers and crew—more than 300 persons—and some of the supplies the Zamzam carried.

Then the 8,299-ton Zamzam was

Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, was in Naval Hospital last night for treatment of a slightly infected leg, hospital physicians said.

Hospital authorities reported the ailment was rather painful but not serious.

Artillery, Tanks Hammer Airport as Troop Plane Roars In Every Five Minutes

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt (Saturday), May 24.—Allied defenders of Crete violently stormed the Nazi-held airport of Malemi early today after recapturing the towns of Candia and Retimo.

British and Greek troops tightened a ring of tanks, artillery and machine-gun units around Malemi, the single Nazi foothold left on the island as the battle roared into its fifth day.

But more German parachutists were reported cascading down from big air transports flying from the Greek mainland 100 miles away.

[The United Press said these planes were landing at the rate of one every five minutes.]

Sixteen of these ships were knocked down by antiaircraft fire, the British said. Another was downed by a British long-range bomber.

Britain momentarily at least appeared to hold the upper hand in the surging battle for Crete, the outcome of which may depend on the navy's ability to withstand the damaging blows of Nazi dive bombers.

German transport planes attempted crash landings with food and ammunition, or dropped them by parachute.

Artillery Blasts Germans

Here the British and Greeks held an advantage with their hoarded stores of food, their field artillery and the tanks that now have been thrown into the mighty effort to reduce Malemi Airport.

But with the R. A. F. out of the conflict the ground defenders were raked mercilessly by swarms of Nazi dive bombers. The British said their troops were holding up well under this type of assault.

A heavy artillery barrage now is being thrown against the Nazis in Malemi, which is only a few miles from Canea, new home of the exiled Greek government, which commands nearby Suda Bay.

All this, said the official British communique—the storming of Candia and Retimo and the inconclusive attack upon Malemi—was made possible by "hand to hand fighting"—fighting by troops for whom there can never be a retreat, in the strangest battle ever fought, troops without any direct air support whatsoever.

Greeks Fight With Gallantry

Succinctly, the communique added:

"As the German losses will show, both the British and empire forces have never rendered a better account of themselves. In the Candia sector Greek troops also fought with the greatest gallantry."

This new action by the Allied land forces was paralleled by the

Capt. Roosevelt Bombed in Iraq

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, May 23.—Capt. James Roosevelt returned by air to Cairo this evening after having been bombed and machined-gunned for four days in Iraq.

The first strafing of the President's son occurred as he and Maj. Gen. Thomas, of the United States Marines, were nearing Fallujah by automobile. German planes flew over and dropped bombs that fell nearby. Planes also machine-gunned the British camp, bullets hitting all around the Roosevelt party. This continued for several hours daily for four days.

Over Our Shoulder

a preview of the Sunday Post

Meet the Teenie Weenies! They're the Sunday Post's newest comic characters — entirely different, superbly drawn. No taller than a match, these little folk in Sunday's Post will be loved by the little folk in your own home.

Bill Cunningham knows American boys. They're his specialty. He knows them from intimate association on playing fields and in dressing rooms, from talking to them in the bleachers and on the players' bench. He thinks they're the greatest bunch this old globe has ever produced. But he's had some opportunities to look over the German army, too—young, fanatical, hard. And when he now looks over his American boys—not on the diamond or gridiron, but in the Army camps and compares them with those tough Nazis — he starts wondering. His thoughts while making that comparison are well worth your reading in tomorrow's Post.

Claudette interviews Colbert! That's the way it turned out when the reporter tried to get an interview —Miss Colbert took the job right away from him. You'll be glad she did when you read the amusing article that resulted — in tomorrow's Section VI.

Look, too, for Hedda Hopper's column on what Hollywood does for weekend amusement; not only Claudette but such others as the Gables, Jeanette MacDonald, George Brent and Ida Lupino.

Where shall the defense money come from? There are only two sources—more borrowing or more taxes. Which shall it be? And—if it comes from taxes—shall the present taxpayers be made to pay more or should the exemptions be lowered until every family not actually on relief has to pay an income tax?

Gallup went right to the people and asked them: "Shall we borrow or shall we tax? Should the top 15% continue to carry the tax load or should everyone not on relief be taxed?"

Maybe you'll be surprised at the answers. They're in The Post tomorrow. (And only in The Post in Washington.)

Often a date, but never a repeat," mourns a pretty Washingtonian who writes Mary Haworth to find out why she can't hold the men her beauty attracts, though her less beautiful sister has men swarming around her. Miss Haworth replies with a few points on the fine art of husband catching.

Men, be warned!

Girls, here's your chance to learn how!

And in case it works you'll want to look over the two-page picture-story in "Pictures," the Sunday Post rotogravure magazine, on how a Washington bride started in her housekeeping career with the help of The Post's homemaking expert, Martha Ellyn. Includes advice in selecting china, how to take care of silver and other helpful hints.

Dancing and riding and lovemaking under an Egyptian moon! That's hardly a description of the present campaign in Egypt, but you can escape from the war tomorrow while you read the new Sunday Post novel—"While the Desert Blooms."

Pauline was on her way to her archeologist uncle in Egypt when she and her cousin, Cherry Bassett, met Sir Abdel Amin-Razam on the train. Another meeting in an Egyptian garden, a chance encounter while shopping in Cairo, a weekend party at Abdel's estate—and Pauline and Abdel are head over heels in love.

Then Cherry dates a notorious Egyptian prince and takes Pauline along. Abdel finds out and the romance seems spoiled. But—need we add?—Love Conquers in the End.

mighty effort of the British fleet to hold back the thousands of seaborne troops and their heavier equipment with which the Germans were trying to reinforce their aerial army.

All day, said British informants, the navy held—and they added that if it could but hold a little longer the invasion must fail.

But—and this was stated openly—the fleet was operating in a long hour of peril, menaced by unending attacks of serried squadrons of Nazi dive bombers and handicapped by the confined space in which it twisted and leaped recklessly in this supreme test of sea and air power.

Not alone was the fleet fighting to hold off reinforcements but also to keep back supplies and thus sharpen the hard necessity of feeding the invaders which now faces the German command. Time, in the British view, was a British ally.

In the overshadowing test at sea a British spokesman acknowledged that some naval losses were "inevitable," but he waved aside as "exaggerated as usual," the current German claims to destruction of a major portion of the fleet.

Every available piece of information indicated that many large units of the Mediterranean fleet were standing the long and dangerous watch at Crete, but it also was made known that smaller craft were still keeping the African patrol against an Axis attempt to reinforce its forces in Libya while the crisis of Crete approaches.

The admiralty announced that British submarines "operating against the enemy's sea communications to Libya" had sunk a 9,000-ton troopship, a tanker of 7,000 tons and "probably" an Italian destroyer, which was known to have been hit. A big schooner, presumably carrying ammunition, also was sent to the bottom and a smaller vessel of the same type shelled and hit several times while at anchor.

Air-Naval Battle Continues

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 23.—Reichsmarshal Goering's air force continued today to rain bombs on warships of the British fleet in the eastern Mediterranean and is reported to be sinking important units of that fleet.

Three British destroyers were sunk by German dive and level bombers in the course of today's operations, the official news agency reported tonight, with two others damaged, of which one was set afire. In addition, five of six British torpedo speedboats "which wanted to enter an English naval base in the eastern Mediterranean" were declared destroyed by bombs.

Furthermore, German pilots are reported to have sighted two burning cruisers elsewhere in the Mediterranean and to have dive-bombed them. Whether either has been sunk has not yet been reported.

The German high command still continues to maintain complete silence about the progrses of the invasion of Crete. Tonight's press, however, publishes front-page geographical and historical essays on that Greek island and some of the Berlin evening newspapers even reproduced detailed maps. These appear to be indications that an official announcement about Crete will be made in the immediate future.

work on Naval contracts totaling $342,012,000, including four cruisers and 25 destroyers, has been stalled by the San Francisco strike. A number of cargo ship contracts also are involved.

The Navy official said results of the strike to date are "bad enough," but that a still more important question was raised "if we cannot count on the validity of an agreement signed by supposedly responsible union district councils."

There is no justification for the demand for double pay for 8 hours a week of regular overtime work, he said, "and the Navy does not intend to absorb in its cost of shipbuilding such charges."

Mayor Angelo Rossi, of San Francisco, another witness, read the committee a telegram from Frey describing the strike as "the most serious blow to collective bargaining and the integrity of agreements with employers which has ever occurred in our industrial history."

Rossi described Harry Hook, business agent of the A. F. L. machinists local, as "a buddy and co-worker of Harry Bridges" and said Hook would not "live up to an agreement—even a signed one."

Chairman Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, adjourned the hearings until Monday morning, when William Green, president of the A. F. of L., Frey and C. I. O. officials will testify.

In San Francisco yesterday a Navy spokesman denied reports that Navy yard machinists might be brought in to work in the strike-bound yards but said it was possible that some nearly finished vessels would be moved to the Mare Island Navy Yard for completion.

British Cruiser Arrives in Brazil

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, May 23 (AP).—The British auxiliary cruiser Asturias arrived at this port today and Lieut. R. W. F. Rule said she had seen action, but would neither tell when, where nor against whom. Asked if the German freighter Lech had been sighted or sunk, his only answer was, "Yes and no."

convoy, consisting mainly of sailing caiques intended for a surprise night landing on Crete.

"We sank a large number of these caiques, at least 40, each carrying at least 100 Nazis.

"We rammed many of them.

"In addition, this cruiser sank a small steamer of about 1,000 tons with our heavy guns. We last saw her going down and burning badly.

"Some of the caiques tried to evade our attack by hiding the soldiers they were carrying and by flying the Greek flag.

"Others retaliated with rifle and machine-gun fire.

"On a subsequent sweep, we saw a large number of Germans in the water, clinging to lifebelts and rafts and the wreckage of the caiques. The possibility of E-boat attacks made it impossible for us to stop to try to rescue any of them."

Few of 5,000 Able to Escape

Before 3 a. m. Thursday, the action was over, the Nazis dead or the survivors in scattered flight.

In the pitch darkness, it was impossible to estimate the full strength of the convoy, the captain went on, but he stuck to the round figure of 5,000, and believed that few escaped.

Continuing its patrol, the British squadron was attacked by German dive-bombers at dawn, and the raids continued without letup until after dark Thursday, the guns of cruisers and destroyers alike growing hot with incessant firing which managed to bring down at least two Junkers.

of all the nations and their peoples," he said.

In Atlantic City, N. J., Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, jr., told the General Federation of Women's Clubs that "self-interest" requires this country to "join our efforts with those of other free peoples" to assure a victory for the democracies.

He said the Axis efforts toward world domination are nearing the New World and "from here out we have to rely on our own strength and our own ability where necessary."

Meantime, there were two other significant developments pointing toward this Nation's next move in the battle of the Atlantic:

1. Chairman Sol Bloom (Democrat), New York, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he was prepared to open hearings on revision of the Neutrality Act if Administration leaders convince him that there is a "clear need" for repeal of all or part of the legislation.

2. Senate and House conferees agreed on legislation empowering the President to requisition 84 foreign vessels idle in American waters. They are expected to become part of the pool of 2,000,000 tons of merchant shipping ordered formed by the President to relieve a tonnage shortage in the Atlantic.

Bloom Has Open Mind

Bloom said he planned early conferences with Stimson and Knox and subsequent discussions with Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

"I have an open mind on the subject," he said. "I feel that it doesn't make a particle of difference whether the law is repealed or not. Recent events may have changed the situation so that we should repeal the law."

Conferees on the ship requisition bill accepted several minor Senate amendments and wrote new language for a Senate provision providing that this government could acquire foreign ships only by purchase when they were actually owned by foreign governments.

The revised provision provides that ships can be taken over only by purchase or charter if the maritime commission finds they actually were owned by a foreign government at the outbreak of the war, September 3, 1939.

Any money paid for such vessels would be retained in the Treasury for possible application to any debt owed the United States.

been some concern expressed in Administration circles over the fact that the average age of our general officers is close to 60 while the average in the German army is 45.

Those promoted yesterday include:

Deputy Chief of Staff Henry H. Arnold, who although but a colonel has held temporary rank as major general by virtue of holding this post and that of chief of the Air Corps. Arnold, 54, jumps two grades to become a permanent major general of the line.

George H. Brett, 55, who like Arnold has been a colonel holding temporary advanced rank as major general.

Brig. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, 54, named chief of infantry, with rank of major general, succeeding Maj. Gen. George Lynch, who has retired.

Col. William N. Porter, 55, appointed chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, to succeed Maj. Gen. Walter Baker, who is retiring.

Gen. Brett, who has been assistant and acting chief of the Air Corps, since Gen. Arnold has been devoting most of his time as deputy chief of staff, was named chief of the Air Corps. Arnold will continue as deputy chief of staff, it was indicated.

Cols. Addison D. Davis and Larry B. MaAfee, both of the Medical Corps, were named assistants to the Army Surgeon General, with rank as brigadier general. McAfee is executive officer of the office of the Surgeon General here, while Davis commands the medical field service school at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. Both are 58.

The other officers on yesterday's list now hold temporary rank as major generals. They were given permanent appointments as such. They include Maj. Gen. William Bryden, 61, and Maj. Gen. Richard C. Moore, 60, the other deputy chiefs of staff. The nominations were so made that Bryden and Moore will outrank Arnold.

The others made permanent major generals were:

Maj. Gen. Henry C. Pratt, 58, commander of the Second Army Corps, Wilmington, Del. The Second Corps includes the Twenty-ninth Division at Fort Meade, Md.

Maj. Gen. Walter K. Wilson, 60, commander of the Third Army Corps, Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

Maj. Gen. Ernest D. Peek, 62, now in command of the Ninth Corps Area, San Francisco.

Maj. Gen. Frederick H. Smith, 62, commander of the Seventh Army Corps., Birmingham, Ala.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Peyton, 60, commander of the First Army Corps, Columbia, S. C.

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, Turkey, May 23.—German Ambassador Franz von Papen called at the foreign office this morning and it is believed in diplomatic circles that he initiated conversations leading to a trade agreement between Turkey and the Reich. The Germans in preliminary talks had expressed the desire to purchase copper, tanning materials and food—principally grain. Turkey would be able to get railway equipment, machinery, spare parts and possibly armaments from the Reich.

The passengers said the raider was named the Tamieses.

Next day she fell in with the German motorship Dresden, to which she transferred the Zamzam's people.

Then began a long zig-zag voyage to dodge the British blockade. Finally, on May 20, last Tuesday, the Dresden reached St. Jean de Luz, on the German-occupied west coast of France.

Zamzam are now in Bordeaux, but all the Americans were taken to Biarritz.

United States Consul Henry S. Waterman reported they were "all right" except for two who were in a hospital for treatment of minor illnesses.

The State Department at Washington reported Friday afternoon that Vicovari and Laughinghouse are still in the hospital aboard the raider. Vicovari was held by the Germans for two months last summer after being captured while driving an ambulance for the French near Paris.

Registers of warships and merchantmen do not list a "Tamieses," the name the passengers gave for the Nazi raider.

A vessel of somewhat similar name is the 7,983-ton German motorship Ramses, which was reported to have sailed from Shanghai March 30 in company with two Japanese destroyers. She was reported bound into the Southern Pacific to meet German raiders, but whether she would have had time to reach the South Atlantic was doubtful.

The Dresden, which brought the Zamzam survivors to port, is a 5,567-ton motorship which sailed from Santos, Brazil, March 28 with clearance papers for Vladivostok.

If bound round the Cape of Good Hope, she would have been in about the position given for the Zamzam sinking by April 17.

Among those declared safe at Biarritz are Donald R. King, of Chevy Chase, Md., a former Georgetown University student, and David E. Scherman, Life Magazine photographer formerly stationed in the Capital.

The names of several people known in the District aboard the Zamzam did not appear in the list of those safely at Biarritz. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. James Smith Russell, missionaries, and their daughter, Caroline, about 3 months. Mr. Russell was graduated from the Seventh Day Adventist Theological Seminary at Takoma Park, Md., last February. He was a new appointee to Mombasa, Kenya Colony.

Also unreported was Mrs. Violet Hankins, who was returning to her husband, Dr. H. G. Hankins, a practicing physician in Capetown. She was known to many Adventists at Takoma Park.

Lindbergh, Wheeler Call for Leadership

Montanan Demands President Get Rid Of 'War Makers'

By the Associated Press

New York, May 23.—Charles A. Lindbergh and Senator Burton K. Wheeler joined tonight in a call for "adequate leadership" to keep the Nation out of the European war.

With the declaration that America could be the "strongest and most influential" country in the world, Lindbergh asserted that "we lack only a leadership that places America first, a leadership that does for 130,000,000 people what Washington did for us when we were only 3,000,000 people, a leadership that tells what it means and means what it says."

Saying that a "rising cry against war" was coming from the country, Lindbergh asserted: "It asks how this situation came about. It demands an explanation of what happened at the elections last November. It demands an accounting from a Government that has led us to war while it promised us peace."

Wheeler Assails "War Makers"

Senator Wheeler, Montana Democrat, demanded that President Roosevelt "rid himself of those war makers that surround him, who refuse to understand the wishes of the people," and said he believed that "the war makers, the Hitlers of Germany, the Churchills of England and the Knoxes and Stimsons, step down and out."

Lindbergh and Wheeler were the principal speakers at a rally of the America First Committee at Madison Square Garden.

In his prepared address, Lindbergh drew a parallel between the foreign policy of the American Government and that of the Hitler regime in Germany, saying that "we had no more chance to vote on the issue of peace and war last November than if we had been in a totalitarian state ourselves."

About 500 policemen stood guard. Officials of the Fight for Freedom Committee, the Friends of Democracy and several other organizations were notified by police that picketing would be prohibited.

An hour and a half before Lindbergh was scheduled to speak, Deputy Chief Police Inspector Louis F. Costuma estimated the audience inside at 20,000 persons. All tickets had been sold at 7:40 p. m. An orderly crowd estimated at 2,000 persons was outside the building.

Youths Issue Statement

Five youth organizations, the League of Youth for Democracy, the Federated Council for Americanism, the Social Democratic Youth Democracy's Volunteers and the Student Defenders of Democracy, issued a statement declaring that "the right to picket is a constitutional one and to be arbitrarily denied this right is an infringement upon our civil liberties."

L. M. Birkhead, National Director of the Friends of Democracy, charged in a telegram to Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the America First Committee, that the rally was to be a focal point for "Nazi and Communist forces in the New York area."

Boos and loud yells resounded through the Garden when John T. Flynn, chairman of the New York Chapter of the America First Committee, disavowed any Nazi support of the rally and excoriated Joseph E. McWilliams, founder of the American Destiny Party and unsuccessful candidate for Congress in last fall's election.

Pointing out McWilliams, seated in the fifth row, Flynn, after declaring that all who urged peace were labeled as Nazis, shouted above the din:

"And right here, not many faces from where I am, is sitting a man named McWilliams. What he is doing here, how he gets in here, whose stooge he is I do not know, but I know the photographers of these warmongering newspapers can always find him when they want him.

Heckler Leaves by Request

"The America First Committee does not want the support of a handful of Bundists who are here, without respect, without power, in this community or any other."

Several persons seated near McWilliams, twice convicted of disorderly conduct for making anti-Semitic speeches in the German community of Yorkville, rose and shouted at Flynn. One especially loud heckler was asked to leave, which he did.

Two other persons in the rear of the Garden were escorted out when they jeered during a speech by Socialist Leader Norman Thomas.

Early in his speech, Senator Wheeler disavowed any Nazi or Communist support and described his followers as "simply pro-Americans."

"I was denouncing Hitler when Lord Halifax was shooting wild boar with Goering in Germany," Wheeler said. "I was denouncing Mussolini when Churchill was saying (in 1927) 'if I were an Italian I would be a Fascist.'"

At the outset Wheeler paid tribute to Lindbergh, saying that "upon him the warmongers have turned their scorn and abuse, but he has continued to fight the fight of peace and democracy."

Lindbergh reiterated the theme of other recent addresses, that he opposed "our entry into the war because I do not believe that our system of government in America, and our way of life, can survive our participation."

"From every section of our country a cry is rising against this war," Lindbergh said. "But it is a cry that reaches beyond the question of war alone . . . it echoes from the very foundations on which our system of government is built."

Wheeler expresstd a fear "that if the President accepts the advice of that little coterie who surround him, most of whom never faced an electorate or met a pay roll or tried a lawsuit, he will wage an undeclared war. And then—constitutional democracy will end."

Lindbergh contended that democracy cannot be spread by force of arms.

"If we cannot make other nations wish to copy our American system of government, we cannot force them to copy it by going to war," he said.

"On the contrary, if we go to war to preserve democracy abroad, we are likely to end by losing it at home. There are already signs of danger around us.

"We have been shouting against intolerance in Europe, but it has been rising in America. We deplore the fact that the German people cannot vote on the policies of their government—that Hitler led his nation into war without asking their consent. But, have we been given the opportunity to vote on the policy our government has followed? We in America were given just about as much chance to exxpress our beliefs at the election last fall as the Germans would have been given if Hitler had run against Goering."

Lindbergh said he opposed the European war before it started because he felt it would be disastrous for Europe.

"I knew that England and France were not in a position to win," he said, "and I did not want them to lose. I now oppose our entry into the war because I do not believe that our system of government in America, and our way of life, can survive our participation."

U-Boats Sink 110,300 Tons Of Shipping

By C. Brooks Peters

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 23.—Today's official German communique revealed the Reich's submarines "in the last days" inflicted devastating tolls on enemy convoys in Atlantic waters.

A total of 110,300 tons of enemy merchant shipping, the German high command communique declares, was sunk by its U-bboats, while the German air force is officially credited with having sunk in British waters an enemy freighter of 5,000 tons.

From one convoy the Germans officially declared nine vessels totalling 70,900 tons were sunk. Included in these nine vessels, the communique adds, were three tankers of 8,000, 10,000 and 13,000 tons respectively, as well as a heavily loaded munitions transport of 7,000 tons.

In this action, the Germans declare, the U-boats of Lieut. Commanders Wohlfarth and Gysae particularly distinguished themselves.

Including the 31,000 tons of British tanker tonnage reported sunk by today's communique, the British losses in this category since May 1, according to official German statements, total 91,000 tons.

The high command announced today that the submarine of Lieut. Comdr. Guenther Prien had failed to return from its last voyage and must be considered lost. Prien, who broke through the British defenses before Scapa Flow and sank the Royal Oak, was one of the most renowned of Germany's war heroes, as well as the German navy's most successful submarine commander. On his various cruises against enemy shipping, Prien, nicknamed "the ravenous wolf of the seas," is officially credited with having sunk 235,941 tons.

Gen. Marshall Answers Army's Critcs

By John G. Norris

Post Staff Writer

Gen. George C. Marshall yesterday struck back at critics who have charged the War Department with ignoring the lessons of the present war and building an "old style mass army," on the 1918 pattern.

In a statement on the opening today of large scale war games to run through the fall, the Army chief of staff gave what was interpreted as the department's answer to charges by Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, a ranking member of the House Military Appropriations Subcommittee.

Collins, in a magazine article, contended the Nation's military leaders didn't "understand modern war" and urged that we should "stop drafting men by the million" and build a smaller, compact army, largely mechanized and motorized.

Gen. Marshall declared that the Army was now concerned with giving basic training to its new soldiers, necessary for military service of any kind, and would create additional armored units when the equipment became available.

Waiting for Production

"As production of materiel catches up with our development of man power," he said, "our Army will contain a higher percentage of mechanized units than any other army. The same will apply to motorization."

He replied to Collins' statement that only 2 of our 33 divisions are mechanized units with the statement that we have 4 such divisions and 5 tank battalions, with 4 more divisions and 10 more battalions to be added to the armored force during the coming year.

These are being set up as quickly as possible, Marshall said, and in apparent reply to Collins' demand for more panzer troops, declared "there is neither sense nor reason" in calling units without tanks —tank divisions.

"Trained, disciplined man power is the fundamental requirement of any army," the chief of staff said. "When these men have completed their basic training we can put them in planes or in tanks, or behind guns or operating radios and telephones, with the final technical instruction necessary to cover the mechanism they are to use."

How France Was Beaten

Marshall denied the premise of Collins' argument, which he declared was a popular misconception of the facts. Germany did not defeat France's 5,000,000-man army with 150.000 panzer troops, he said; rather, it was a "coordinated, balanced team" of some 10 armored and 100 infantry divisions that won.

"We do not minimize the tremendous power of armored units used in conjunction with accompanying air power," Marshall stated. "Together they deliver a blow that tears open the enemy's line and disorganizes his rear elements and installations, but the armored force moves swiftly and it must be followed by troops that will stick to the ground and hold it."

Gen. Marshall, after discussing the Nazi military set-up, declared that the United States has to face a different situation We must have "an all-purpose army," he said, because we are in "an entirely different position from a European nation which knows its traditional or potential enemies and the terrain it will have to fight over"

U. S. Position Different

"We must be prepared to operate in the Arctic or in the tropics, in deserts or mountains, and the elements of our ground forces must be properly balanced to meet any contingences," he said.

Denying Collins' charge that too much time is being wasted in close-order drill and practicing the manual of arms, Marshall said that during a soldier's 13-week basic training period, only 20 hours out of 572 are devoted to such drill.

"We try to retain a sense of humor but it is difficult to continue to accept gracefully comments that we are building a 'manpower army' on an outmoded pattern, or that we are training nothing but infantry in a mechanized era," he stated. "Statements of this nature indicate a complete misconception of fundamentals."

Vichy Tries Eight In Dakar Plot

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, May 23.—Accused in connection with an alleged plot to prepare a second Anglo-De Gaullist attempt to capture Dakar, eight former French officers were brought before the Military Tribunal in Clermont-Ferrand today. The trial disclosed by far the most serious case of dissident action yet come to notice in the French prosecution of rebels.

The alleged Dakar plot is supposed to have been directed by Lieut. Jean Montezer of the Colonial Artillery. He and his associates are alleged to be Free Masons. Montezer has not been captured but was put on trial here today with his alleged confederates by default.

BRITAIN'S DAY—The Crete invasion was highlighted yesterday by these developments: British claimed their navy was shattering German attempts to send troops to Crete by sea; British, Anzacs, Greeks and Cretans made determined efforts to wrest Malemi Airdrome from the Germans; defenders of the Mediterranean island claimed recapture of Candia and Retimo, two of the three German air invasion points

Dr. Kurt Rieth In U. S. on Nazi Oil Mission

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, May 23.—Dr. Kurt Rieth, German power politician who fled Vienna by plane seven years ago at the time of the murder of Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria by Nazis, has been in New York for almost two months attempting a new high-pressure task for the Reich.

Carrying a diplomatic passport issued in Berlin on December 28, 1940, with visas for nearly every nation in the Western Hemisphere, Dr. Rieth has been charged with the job of buying up rich American-owned oil properties in Europe, now almost valueless to citizens of the United States because of restrictions on the export of profits. Dr. Rieth, who was Germany's minister to Austria at the time of the unsuccessful putsch, arrived in Rio de Janiero on March 6 from Rome aboard a plane of the Axis-controlled air line Latl, and called a conference of German consuls from many parts of South America.

To Contact Isolationists

The conference planned greater Axis penetration of South America. Orders for the formation of a special commission to further Axis interests in the Latin-American republics were brought personally from Berlin by Dr. Rieth. As a result of these a commission composed of two Japanese, Itaro Amari and Shingo Kaiseki; an Italian named Gaetano Borsari, and a German named Maximo Schlusselberg was set up.

These men in turn set up a body known as the Inter-American Abstention Committee, whose duty is to form contacts with any political group in the United States favoring isolation. The real aim of the committee is to hinder the application of the lend-lease bill by every means from propaganda to "more direct methods."

When he crossed the United States border at Brownsville, Tex., on March 22 after flying from Mexico City in a Pan American Airways plane, Dr. Rieth gave as a future destination the office of Walter C. Teagle, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, at 30 Rockefeller Plaza.

Refuses Interview

Tonight at the Carleton Hotel in Washington Teagle said that he had never seen, spoken to or in any way communicated with Dr. Rieth. He added that he had been told by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation more than six weeks ago that the German diplomat had been attempting to use his name as an "open sesame."

Dr. Rieth, who has been occupying suite 343-5 in the Waldorf-Astoria for which he pays $600 a month, would not consent to an interview today when he was called on the hotel telephone.

Asked whether he would discuss his mission in New York City, Dr. Rieth said that he had no official assignment, but was attempting only to attend to certain family matters. Other sources reported, however, that the specific mission which brought Dr. Rieth to the United States had as a major objective an attempt to arrange for the sale to the Reich at a cash price of around $25,000,000 the highly productive Hungarian subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey known as Maort.

This company is a subsidiary of European Gas & Electric Co., nearly all of the stock in which is owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey. Because the Hungarian company never has been fully developed and is a rich producer of oil, its exact valuation is somewhat uncertain. However, experienced oil men report that $25,000,000 would probably amount to not much more than 25 cents on the dollar.

Nazis Lenient In New Terms, Darlan Says

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, May 23.—Adolf Hitler has not demanded possession of the French fleet, colonial concessions or a French declaration of war on Britain, Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan told the French people today in a radio address on his negotiations with Germany.

Admiral Darlan did not disclose the nature of the arrangements being made with Germany, but declared they presented a choice between life and death and the French government had chosen life.

In brief sentences suitable to the quarter-deck, he stated:

"The chancellor (Hitler) did not ask me to hand over our fleet to him.

"Everyone knows—and the English better than anyone—that I will never hand it over.

"The chancellor did not ask me for any colonial territory. He did not ask me to declare war on England.

"Why has he acted so?

"Germany began the war alone and judges herself able to end it alone against no matter what coalition.

"At no moment in the conversations was there any question of France abandoning in any way her sovereignty.

"France freely is choosing the road she is taking.

"On her depends her present and her future.

"She will have the place in the organization of Europe which she will have made for herself."

Admiral Darlan reminded his hearers that France had suffered the gravest defeat in her history. This he blamed on governments from 1919 to 1939 which he said "legalized laziness and disorder" at home and conducted an "incoherent" foreign policy.

In the debacle of last May and June, he declared, Germany could have refused to grant an armistice and could have "wiped France off the map of the world."

But Germany did not do so, and now has agreed to negotiate. France desires continued collaboration with the victor, he said, and this has caused Hitler "to grant us ameliorations of the consequences of defeat."

Syria Colonel And 200 Men Join British

By the Associated Press

Damascus, Syria, May 21.—A French colonel and some 200 of his native cavalrymen have fought their way through their own frontier forces to the British territory of Trans-Jordan, French officials acknowledged tonight.

A few men were killed and wounded on both sides, it was disclosed.

The deserters, however, were characterized as only 5 per cent of the command of the colonel, one Collet.

[Col. Collet is one of the most famous of desert fighters and is known as the French "Lawrence of Arabia." He organized his regiment of Tcherkess (native cavalrymen) years ago when he was a lieutenant, and it was one of the best fighting units in Syria.]

[British dispatches from Haifa also said some of the French pilots sent up to intercept British planes which have been attacking Axis aircraft on Syrian landing fields had joined a British squadron and accompanied it back to an allied airdrome. Two French marine pilots said they purposely made "forced" landings in British territory.]

The native troopers, known as Tcherkess, who deserted under Col. Collet, were led to the frontier, authorities said, on the pretext that they were going to maneuvers.

One complete squadron was surrounded by French guards on the Trans-Jordan frontier and their commander captured. Still others, described as a major part of the Collet command, refused to desert, it was stated.

It was officially denied that any De Gaullist troops have entered Syria or that Gen. Henri Dentz, Syrian high commissioner, was withdrawing his forces from the frontier.

Move on Bagdad Likely

Cairo, Egypt, May 23 (AP)—Military sources said tonight that British troops in Iraq, having consolidated their position about the fallen Iraq town of Fallujah, might have sent armored car patrols toward Bagdad, 35 miles distant.

They added, however, that reports of an imminent fall of the capital were exaggerated.

Five Royal Houses Find Refuge in Canada

Ottawa, Ont., May 23.—If the report that King Peter of Yugoslavia is coming here proves true his arrival will raise to five the number of royal European houses represented in Canada. The others are Holland, Austria, Norway and Luxembourg.

Permission for Peter to come here was sought some days ago and has been granted. King Peter is a great-grandson of Queen Victoria.

Rome Predicts Move to Bring Switzerland Into the Axis

By the Associated Press

Rome, May 23.—Diplomatic circles heard rumors tonight of an imminent move to bring Switzerland into the Axis and an effort to gain Soviet permission to move Axis troops across Russia to the Persian Gulf for the German-Italian assault on the British in the Middle East.

Failing the latter, it was said the Russian Ukraine itself . . . (here the censor cut the Rome correspondent's telephone conversation to the relay office at Bern, Switzerland).

Much was said to depend on the outcome of the Battle of Crete. If the Axis suffered a setback in the eastern Mediterranean, moves elsewhere could be expected. If Germany and Italy are successful at Crete, then observers said the long-awaited invasion of England with concurrent drives through Spain and Portugal against Gibraltar perhaps would follow.

Roosevelt Sets Report on Aid For June 10

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt will make his first report to Congress on lend-lease aid to Axis enemies before June 10, he told his press conference yesterday.

The report will give totals of planes and other equipment shipped to nations fighting dictators, but will not present detailed breakdowns, he said.

The lend-lease law, H. R. 1776, requires the President to report to Congress every 90 days on transactions made under its terms.

Apart from this, however, the President steadfastly refused to reveal his plans for further steps to speed war aid to Great Britain.

Asked about reports that the Administration is planning a move to repeal or alter the Neutrality Act so the United States flag ships could sail to Britain, the President said he only knew what he read in the newspapers.

Hint of War Clouds

"Do you believe what you read?" he was asked.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that it depended on the writer.

When newsmen pointed out that two Cabinet officers, Secretary of War Stimson and Navy Secretary Knox have called for repeal, the President asserted they must have been misquoted.

He dropped only one hint—a small one—of darkening war clouds.

That came when Mr. Roosevelt was asked to amplify a declaration by Knox yesterday that this generation of Americans will be called upon for sacrifices matching any in United States history.

The President laughingly said in reply that the correspondent who questioned him might have to go into the Army or Navy.

Fends Off Questions

Mr. Roosevelt did not explain whether his use of the pronoun "you" in forecasting military service for the inquiring reporter applied to that one man or American manhood in general.

Apparently the President wished to leave many questions unanswered until his radio fireside chat Tuesday night, which will be delivered in the presence of the Pan American diplomatic corps.

He fended off a barrage of questions intended to draw from him a statement on the war situation.

Here are some of them:

Does the Neutrality Act interfere with aid to Britain?

Have recent declarations by French statesmen improved the situation with regard to the Vichy government, which Mr. Roosevelt criticized last week for joining up with Germany?

Have you any comment to make on the general European situation?

Have you heard anything about recent moves for peace in the European war?

Any official news on the flight to Scotland of Rudolf Hess?

The President would say only that his lend-lease report will give figures for allocations of equipment up to about May 20, the latest date for which figures can be secured in time for presentation to Congress.

District Submits Defense Budget

W. Ballou and other public school officials are scheduled to come to the Capitol this morning to explain to subcommittee members the need for expenditures.

School Figures

The regular school budget calls for $11,822,401 for operation and maintenance, and $1,405,000 for new buildings and grounds, but these estimates were prepared last September before the full effect of the defense program became apparent. Since then Congress has appropriated $380,000 for two new District schools carried in the 1942 budget.

Included in the 1942 supplemental estimates was an item of $30,000 to purchase a site for a new Southeast Public Library branch.

A plea for funds to advance construction of the new Central Public Library on Pennsylvania Avenue, between John Marshall Place and Sixth Street Northwest, was made before the subcommittee yesterday by Miss Clara W. Herbert, District librarian.

Representative George H. Mahon (Democrat), of Texas, subcommittee chairman, said he believed members of the group received the plea with sympathy.

Library's Powers Taxed

Reading demands of the growing populace, Miss Herbert emphasized, have taxed heavily the staff and equipment of the present library. She expressed confidence the structure can be built within the present authorization of $1,118,000.

Bids on the first unit of the building will be opened June 30.

Commissioners John Russel Young and Brig. Gen. Charles Kutz and Walter Fowler, the new city budget officer, were present as the subcommittee continued examination of various items in the budget.

Other officials at the hearing included G. M. Thornett, secretary of the Board of Commissioners; Francis F. Healey, surveyor; Thomas Gillespie Walsh, chairman of the Commission on Mental Health; Frank R. Jelleff, chairman of the District Parole Board; Theodore Cogswell, register of wills and William J. Tompkins, recorder of deeds.

Rabbis Will Greet Younger Generation

A M'laveh Malka will be held tonight at 8:30 at Adas Israel Synagogue, Sixth and I Streets Northwest, under the auspices of the Washington Zionist Youth Council.

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, host rabbi, and Rabbi Samuel L. Silver, director of the Maryland University Hillel Foundation, will be guests of honor on the occasion, the purpose of which is to introduce rabbis to the younger generation. Bert Rosenberg is chairman of the M'laveh Malka committee.

Union Leaders Indicted

WILLIAM BIOFF

GEORGE E. BROWNE

Bioff, leader of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, and Browne, president of the union, were indicted in New York City yesterday under the Federal antiracketeering laws and accused of extorting $550,000 from four leading movie producers through threats to tie up the movie industry with a strike

U. S. to Compete With Axis Airlines

An authoritative source disclosed yesterday that President Roosevelt has allocated $8,000,000 for establishment of American-owned and operated airplanes in Latin America in competition with axis-controlled services.

The allocation was revealed shortly before the Civil Aeronautics Board authorized Pan-American-Grace Airways t oinaugrate a new route between Oruro, Bolivia, and Corumba, Brazil. The application for permission to establish the new route was filed Thursday. Oswald Ryan, a member of the Cab, charged this week that Axis-dominated airlines in the Americas constitute a "Trojan horse with wings" in building up totalitarian influence in this hemisphere.

Justice Stone Receives New Hampshire Medal

Justice Harlan F. Stone received yesterday the Charles Holmes Pettee distinguished service medal to be awarded annually by the alumni of New Hampshire University "to honor selected native sons and daughters of New Hampshire who may have rendered a unique service to the State."

Senator Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire, presented the medal, the first ever given, in the chambers of Justice Stone, who was born October 11, 1872, in Chesterfield, N. H.

Bioff Indicted With Browne For Extortion

Westbrook Pegler, Washington Post columnist, has been exposing the activities of Bioff and Browne for the past two years.

New York, May 23 (AP).—William Bioff, leader of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, and George E. Browne, president of the union, were indicted under the Federal anti-racketeering laws today and accused of extorting $550,000 from four leading movie producers and distributors through threats to tie up the entire movie industry with a strike.

The indictment, containing two substantive counts and one of conspiracy, was handed up by a Federal grand jury after a long investigation by United States Attorney Matthias Correa and Assistants Edward J. Ennis and Boris Kostelanetz.

The Government charged that Bioff, once convicted as a panderer, and Browne, used their union positions to extort the half million dollars for themselves and threatened to tie up the industry by calling out about 35,000 men and women in the industry's mechanical crafts.

Linked to Schenck Case

Victims listed in the indictment were the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, Loew's, Inc., Paramount Pictures and Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.

The investigation of Bioff and Browne was initiated by Correa, his office said, as the result of evidence uncovered by Treasury agents during the investigation and prosecution of the income tax evasion case against Joseph M. Schenck, resigned board chairman of Twentieth Century-Fox, who was recently convicted.

The indictment was the first returned in this district—in which labor union leaders have been accused of collecting for themselves from employers on a strike threat.

Bench Warrants Issued

Conviction would be punishable by maximum prison sentences of ten years and fines of $10,000 on each of the three counts.

The indictment charged a continuous conspiracy dating back to November, 1935. It alleged that the four corporations and others unknown to the grand jury made payment to the two defendants, aided by other persons not named.

The strike threat, it was alleged, was made in 1936. The indictment set forth that at least $400,000 of the $550,000 was paid by officials of the four corporations to Bioff and Browne in $1,000, $500 and $100 bills.

Bench warrants were issued for Bioff, thought to be in Los Angeles, and Browne, in Chicago.

Bioff Expresses Surprise

In Los Angeles, Bioff declared "I never exxtorted a dime from anybody," in commenting on his indictment.

"I am completely surprised," he told reporters in the offices of his attorneys. "I don't know anything about the charges in the indictment."

Michael Luddy, one of Bioff's attorneys, said: "We are ready to surrender Mr. Bioff at any time. If it is true that his bond has been set at $50,000, we will probably move the court here for a reduction."

Bioff's trial on charges of evading payment of income taxes recently was continued until September for resetting after Bioff's attorney reported he had been placed by the union in charge of technical crews making national defense films.

'God Help Us if We Don't Bear Our Share in Fight,' Cries Knox

"In the days that lie ahead, we men of this generation will be called upon for sacrifices that will match the sacrifices of any American men of any generation that have gone before."

In this tone Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox spoke to the annual gathering of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers at the Mayflower yesterday. Addressing an audience that included Viscount Halifax, Admirals Emory S. Land and Harold R. Stark, and the men who are responsible for the country's vast shipbuilding program, Knox said:

"God help us and forgive us, if we don't bear our share in that fight for control of the high seas against human slavery . . .

"The time will never come," he continued, "when any nation can achieve world domination without control of sea power."

The audience of 300 architects and engineers loudly applauded Secretary Knox's statement that "We haven't begun to sacrifice. We must match the sacrifices of the British. It will take a long time and cost an awful price—but it is worth the price. There will be no "business as usual" in the United States for some time to come."

Turning to the British Ambassador, Knox said, "Life is richer because Lord Halifax and his fellow Britons have demonstrated what men who love their liberty can do in its defense.

"You can find in the eyes of the British something of Gethsemane," he averred, "and I am proud as never before that the blood of the British, fighting with their backs to the wall, flows in my veins."

Admiral Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission and president of the society, introduced Secretary Knox after exhorting the shipbuilders to build "ships, ships and more ships." The shipping situation, he said, "is serious to desperation."

Prior to the luncheon, the architects and engineers made a tour of inspection to the David W. Taylor Model Basin at Carderock, Md. There they examined the variable pressure water tunnels, testing machines, deflection gauges and other devices at the Navy's model testing basin.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, members of the society attended a technical session, when papers discussing the Taylor Basin were read by Capt. Harold E. Saunders, U. S. N., and Lieut. Comdr. A. G. Mumma, U. S. N. This meeting closed the one-day convention.

Mexican Tells Of Ship Threats

Miami, Fla., May 23 (INS)—The Mexican government has received anonymous threats of sabotage against United States warships docking in its ports and has taken unusual measures to protect any visiting naval craft from this country, Commodore David Coello Ochoa, director general of the Mexican fleet, disclosed tonight.

The commodore, member of a visiting mission of eleven Latin-American Naval Chiefs, said that American Fifth Columnists have constituted a "considerable problem" for the government of Mexico, but asserted that the administration of President Avila Camacho now has this element "under complete control."

Wirtz Quitting to Aid Johnson Campaign

The White House disclosed yesterday that Alvin Wirtz, Undersecretary of the Interior, was resigning to manage Representative Lyndon Johnson's campaign for the Senate in Texas. Wirtz is a Texan.

The Senate seat was left vacant by the death of Morris Sheppard. Mr. Roosevelt recently made a friendly gesture toward Johnson's candidacy when he said at a press conference that Johnson was one of his old and good friends.

Lewis Bars Coal Strife Arbitration

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Rejecting National Defense Mediation Board suggestions that the soft coal wage dispute be arbitrated, United Mine Workers' President John L. Lewis yesterday demanded that Southern operators eliminate the wage differential in their mines lest 300,000 workers in other areas suffer pay cuts of 40 cents a day.

This was learned following all-day sessions before a three-man board panel which yesterday re-entered the dispute between the operators and the C. I. O. Union in an effort to forestall a threatened repetition of April's 30-day strike in the Appalachian coal fields.

Lewis, it was known, pointed out that an agreement recently entered into between the union and Northern operators, providing for a wage of $7 a day, is contingent on Southern mine owners paying a like amount. At present, Southern mine workers are receiving $6.60, under terms of a temporary settlement terminating last month's strike.

Meantime, another board panel yesterday announced an ambitious and radically new program for investigating the Pacific Northwest lumber industry in order to formulate a "pattern" for stabilized labor relations.

The program, which involves the appointment of an investigating commission, was outlined by Board Chairman Clarence A. Dykstra in connection with public findings and recommendations to end the two-week strike of 12,000 lumber workers in 52 logging camps and mills in the Puget Sound area.

The board's recommendations, calling for a resumption of operations, include a maintenance of union agreement, a 7½-cent-an-hour wage increase and vacation allowances. Employer representatives at the board hearings will recommend them to their principals as being acceptable, Dykstra said. Delegates of the C. I. O. International Woodworkers of America, he added, will present the proposals to a union meeting set for Monday.

In the coal negotiations, which are to be resumed today with union, Southern operators and also representatives of Northern mine owners, Lewis was reported to have vehemently attacked the Southerners for their advertisements appearing in daily papers Wednesday in which he was accused of dictatorial ambitions

Conferees Are Silent

Neither panel members nor disputants would comment following the conclusion of yesterday's sessions. Besides Lewis, union representatives included C. I. O. President Philip Murray, U. M. W. District President Van A. Bittner and several others.

The panel, headed by board Vice Chairman William H. Davis, representing the public, consists of Walter Teagle, representing employers, and Clinton Golden, representing labor

Meantime, Kentucky miners petitioned the Supreme Court yesterday to rule that bituminous miners who did not work during a six weeks' strike in 1939 were entitled to receive State unemployment compensation for the period of idleness. Their petition asked a review of a decision of the Kentucky Court of Appeals denying payment.

Arguing that miners in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Ohio had received compensation, the petition asserted that the Kentucky decision was a factor in the current coal negotiations.

Operators' Tactics Scored

"The Southern operators," the petition said, "had the advantage of knowing that their miners would receive no unemployment benefits pending negotiations for a new contract and that, therefore, this economic weapon could be used against the miners to force them to contract for a lower wage."

Other labor developments yesterday:

At Ravenna, Ohio, it was announced that company officials and union representatives had agreed to resume construction work Monday at the strike-bound $35,000,000 Government ammunition loading plant. A vice president of the contracting company said that 5,000 A. F. of L. craftsmen who struck Wednesday would be reassigned jobs pending negotiation of demands for a 25-cent an hour wage increase.

Reports circulated here that the Defense Mediation Board would soon take new action to force termination of the 67-day-old strike of the American Potash and Chemical Corporation's Trona, Calif., plant.

Michigan C. I. O. Votes Opposition To Communists

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

Jackson, Mich., May 23.—In a turbulent session, the fourth annual State convention of Michigan unions affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations today adopted a resolution opposing the election or appointment of a known Nazi, Fascist, or Communist to any office within the Michigan C. I. O.

The action, representing a stiffening attitude by the rank and file against a small but vocal minority of Communists, followed an unprecedented speech by R. J. Thomas, president of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers, in which he warned that the union might prefer charges of antiunion activities against a "little caucus" which was sabotaging the union and opposing national defense.

River-Crossing Survey Now Up To House Unit

Decision on the need for new crossings of the Potomac River—either by bridge or tunnel—was left yesterday to the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, following hearings on a bill by Representative Howard Smith (Democrat), of Virginia.

The Smith measure, introduced last January, would authorize an appropriation of $25,000 to study locations and designs for both tunnel and bridge crossings, to carry vehicular and railroad traffic.

As a means of relieving present congestion at both ends of the existing four bridges, it was proposed at yesterday's hearing that a shuttle train service for commuters might well be established.

However, P. A. Rice, of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad, pointed out a train of this type now operates each morning and evening between Washington and Alexandria, stopping at the Seventh Street Southwest station.

Ferryboat Plan Discounted

"I don't believe," he said, "there is much traffic on this line."

Col. P. M. Anderson, consulting engineer and architect, who presented a plan for a combination bridge and tunnel, also doubted the wisdom of inaugurating shuttle train service as a solution to the congestion problem.

Possibilities of a ferry boat crossing were discounted by Representative Smith, who said such a service ran between Alexandria and Washington some years ago, without success.

Col. W. J. Barden, War Department engineer for this area, was questioned by committee members on the possible effect on national defense of only one railroad bridge crossing of the Potomac.

Explaining he was not authorized to discuss national defense aspects of the tunnel or bridge question, Col. Barden added that destruction of the single railroad span would undoubtedly bring "very serious" consequences.

Would Cost $18,000,000

At this point, Rice said he was of the opinion that in the event of damage to the bridge, defense supplies could be shipped into or out of the city by way of Norfolk, Cape Charles and Harpers Ferry.

The bride-tunnel plan prepared by Col. Anderson, the committee was told, would cost $18,000,000. The engineer said he first advanced his proposal in 1929.

Under his plan, a six-lane vehicular bridge would cross the river from East Potomac Park, with a triffic circle at Fourteenth Street and Maine Avenue Southwest. Beneath the bridge would be a tunnel for train and truck traffic.

The committee was asked by Smith to ignore specific provisions of his bill and first decide on the necessity for additional river crossings.

"Then," he said, "we can work out the details."

Chairman Lanham promised early consideration of the measure by his committee.

Democrats' League Backs Roosevelt Aid Program

A resolution of complete support for President Roosevelt's foreign policy was adopted last night by the National Democratic League of the District at its meeting at the Grafton Hotel.

The President was lauded for "his intention to aid and assist the British Empire to the fullest extent in its determination to resist to the limit the aggression of the Axis powers."

The Democratic League will elect officers next Tuesday. Hugh V. Keiser is president, and Miss Rosalie Doss, secretary.

Medical Groups To Hear Sentence

The American Medical Association and the District Medical Society are scheduled to be sentenced for conspiracy to violate the antitrust laws Thursday in the District Court.

Justice James M. Proctor will pronounce the sentences, which will be fines, not to exceed $5,000 each. The organizations recently were convicted after a two-month trial of unlawful efforts to obstruct Group Health Association, Inc.

The organizations are expected to appeal the judgment to the United States Court of Appeals here.

Army Develops Gun to Cope With Zigzagging Speedboats

By Rice Yahner.

Associated Press Staff Writer

Fort Story, Va., May 23.—The first test of a new automatic-gun control led Coast Artillery experts of the Army to express high confidence today that they soon will have a greater defense against speeding, twisting mosquito boats.

Closely guarded for months, the new device was given its first beach test here, aiming shells from a 37-mm. gun at a 40-mile-an-hour, radio-controlled boat, zig-zagging in Chesapeake Bay almost a mile from shore.

All that can be said of the new control is that it reduces the human element to a minimum and that it is an improvement of the directors, really lightning calculators, that have given the Army such faith in the basic efficiency of their antiaircraft batteries.

An indication of the effectiveness of the Army's present fire control system, with manual directors transmitting firing computations continuously, is the fact that a battery of the Seventy-fourth Coast Artillery Regiment here put two holes in the target boat in the first 19 rounds of firing and put the $25,000 craft out of commission with its last string of five shots. The gun fires 25 shots a minute.

The target boat—26 feet long with a 5-foot beam—is one-third the size of the new mosquito boats and the coast artillerymen were firing only practice ammunition. Had they been firing high explosive shells the first two hits probably would have blasted the boat out of the water.

The fire control system already is in production for antiaircraft defense. With slight modifications to perfect its adaptation, experts of the Coast Artillery board predicted that it would be of the same tactical use against mosquito boats as it has proved to be against tanks and planes. The improved director can be used to control the fire of any automatic weapon and that includes up to 90 mm. cannon.

With speeds around 60 miles an hour and high maneuverability, mosquito boats have attracted much attention recently for their value as raiders. The name came out of the World War but the modern craft bear little resemblance to the slow, cumbersome craft of 23 years ago.

250 Crippled Children Forget Handicaps on Potomac Cruise

Singing and happy, full of pop and ice cream, more than 250 crippled children from Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia counties, went down the Potomac River yesterday on their seventh annual cruise sponsored by the Washington Junior Board of Commerce.

Among them was Margaret Johnson, 13, of Baltimore, who never before had been on a boat, and seven others, brought to the dock in an ambulance from Gallinger Hospital. One family, it was said, sent seven crippled children to the boat and of the total number 35 were in wheelchairs.

But most of them scampered onto the S. S. Mount Vernon, of the Wilson Line, with steps belying ailments and on board all were entertained by Frank Portillo, former circus clown; Carl Brockway, magician; Joe King, ventriloquist, and, just before the ship left, Nelson Carter, 130 R Street Northeast, came up to volunteer his services as a rope artist.

Takoma Park B. & O. Crash Laid to Speed

Failure to reduce speed of the striking train and lack of adequate flag protection for the standing train were named as causes of the wreck on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad February 26 at Takoma Park, according to the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission on its investigation, released yesterday.

The collision between two freight trains resulted in the death of Samuel Snyder, of Baltimore, engineer of the striking train, when the engine was derailed and rolled down an embankment at Blair Road.

The report pointed out that the flagman of the preceding train under the rules was required to proceed to the rear immediately with flagging equipment a distance sufficient to insure full protection.

According to the rules, since the flagman was not recalled when his train departed from Takoma Park, he was required to remain in that vicinity until he was recalled or relieved by another flagman.

The report pointed out that "if he had remained in that vicinity, his flagging signals would undoubtedly have been given at a distance sufficient for the engineman of the following train to take action in time to stop short of the train ahead."

The following train exploded two warning torpedoes placed on the track, about 3,775 feet to the rear of the other train, the report stated.

"The rules require that when torpedoes are exploded, the train must be operated with caution until the track is seen to be clear. Why the engineman failed to comply with the indications of the two signals involved and the rule pertaining to the explosion of torpedoes is not known, as he was killed in the accident."

Diet Conference Will Open Monday, Continue 3 Days

Wider distribution of inexpensive foods of high nutritive value, such as skim milk, dried eggs and peanut-soy-and-cotton-seed flour, will be discussed among possibilities for making up deficiencies in the Nation's diet, at a national nutrition conference which will open here Monday at the Mayflower Hotel, to continue for three days.

"Uncle Sam's food needs new spark plugs, in the form of added vitamins, to replace nutritive elements in our diet which we began to abandon 60 years ago," Dr. William H. Sebrell said yesterday. He will be secretary of the conference's section on public health and medical aspects of nutrition.

"The situation is becoming more acute under the national defense program which demands at last as much from civilians as from the Army," Dr. Sebrell said.

Improvement of the nutritive quality of staple foods, such as flour, bread, sugar, fats, rice and corn meal are other possibilites to be discussed, he added.

Small-Change Offer Insults White-Tie Gunmen

Two colored gunmen in dress suits entered the grocery store of Harry Lemmer, 1539 Fifth Street Northwest, last night and announced a holdup.

Lemmer ordered his daughter, Jeanette, to open the cash register. But when she got there she found it was bare—except for a small amount of change.

"Do you want this?" she asked one of the tuxedo bandits.

"No," he replied. "We got no use for chicken feed."

Then the two visitors departed with a warning that they would be back tonight if the police were told of their visit.

Five Injured In Traffic, Two Critically

Five persons were injured, two critically, in automobile accidents in and near the city yesterday.

Four of the victims were hurt when their automobile overturned three times on the Crain Highway, about four miles north of Marlboro, Md. A blowout caused the accident, police reported.

Driver of the car which overturned was said to be Robert L. McKenney, 19, of Brentwood, Md. He escaped with minor cuts and bruises, as did Mrs. Margaret Crist, 27, of Colmar Manor, Md.

Seriously hurt were Mrs. Crist's 4-year-old son Charles, and Markey Bell, 22, of Brentwood, Md. Doctors said both suffered possible skull fractures.

All were treated at Providence Hospital.

Five-year-old Donald Bell, of 1440 Monroe Street Northeast, was treated by a neighborhood physician for lacerations after he had been knocked down by an automobile at Eighteenth and Newton Streets Northeast.

Arnold Bus Parley Continues After Union Votes to Strike

Negotiations between the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Company, and 130 union drivers and shopmen were continued yesterday until Monday, after a two-hour conference failed to produce an agreement in a labor dispute.

Yesterday's conference conducted by Frank J. Sheehan, Labor Department conciliator, followed a Thursday night meeting of the union (Division 1079, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, A. F. of L.), at which members voted unanimously to strike if their proposals were not met. However, no deadline for negotiations was set.

The company operates the Arnold buses, which carry 30,000 Arlington and Fairfax residents to and from Washington every day.

The dispute involves a closed shop, a wage increase and a change in overtime pay rates. The men are asking a union shop, a wage rise of 10 cents an hour and time and a half for overtime. They are also asking two-week vacations with pay.

The union was represented at yesterday's onference by Charles Clark, an A. F. L. vice president here to represent the men, and a union committee headed by Cecil Brown, business agent. Company representatives were Joseph Arnold, vice president, and H. H. England, general manager.

In Washington last night C. I. O. union employes of the S. and W. Cafeteria reported failure of negotiations with officials of that establishment. Jack Mink, business agent of the United Cafeteria Employes Local 471, said no further conferences were scheduled. The union's negotiating committee Thursday night was authorized to call a strike, but no time has yet been set, Mink said last night.

At Indianhead, Md., where between 500 and 700 A. F. of L. men were "pulled out" by their unions Tuesday because C. I. O. workmen were being employed on a housing project, no progress toward a settlement was reported.

It was reported the Government, through the Office of Production Management and the Federal Works Agency, was taking a hand in settling the dispute, which has deadlocked work on 50 prefabricated houses for families of workmen employed at the Navy's powder plant.

Briggs' Picture Wrongly Titled

A picture published in Friday morning's Post in connection with the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Briggs, 5925 Sixteenth Street Northwest, was erroneously captioned. The picture was presented as one of Mr. and Mrs. Briggs. Actually the photograph showed Mr. Briggs and his sister. The Post regrets the error.

Staggered Paydays

Support for the system of staggered paydays is gathering momentum. Two bills are now before Congress calling for four monthly paydays for Federal employes instead of two. And, according to reports, a five-day-per-week pay plan, favored by the Administration, will be introduced on July 1 by executive order unless Congress legislates on the subject in the meantime. Hard upon these developments comes word that two District Commissioners, Mr. Young and Gen. Kutz, would like to stagger the pay roll for employes of the local government. The enthusiasm which these various proposals have aroused is a pretty clear indication of the need for pay-roll reform.

The greater the number of paydays, the more comfortable life will be for all District residents. If every working day except Saturday becomes a payday, for instance, buying will be spread evenly throughout the month and local services will be more uniformly efficient and, incidentally, much less costly to perform. Four monthly paydays would alleviate the congestion in stores and streets that now occurs twice monthly when workers go forth to make purchases and pay bills. That congestion might better be eliminated entirely. With the principle of staggering once accepted as desirable, however, there are not likely to be any irreconcilable differences of opinion about the method to be followed. Treasury officials think that five weekly paydays can be introduced without much additional work—an opinion that will no doubt carry weight with Congress. As Government employes would continue to be paid twice monthly (or possibly once every two weeks) under any staggered schedule, they would enjoy all the benefits of the reform under any of the suggested plans, while minor inconveniences would cease to be felt once the system got under way.

Lesson On Prices

Current consideration at the White House of the advisability of all-in price control lends special interest to an official discussion of "Price Control in Germany" by Louis Domeratsky in a report issued by the Department of Commerce. He points out that the method cannot be used efficiently in dealing with prices of imported goods; that it lacks elasticity; that it does not permit of differentiation between producers of varying degrees of efficiency; and that, barring resort to drastic measures of coercion, it does not prevent the withholding of goods from the market. Finally, it does not influence supply when that supply is short, and it ends by becoming a minimum price instead of a maximum price.

As a result, governments that embark on price control generally find it necessary to proceed from the simple to the complicated. They wind up by extending controls over the production and distribution of goods and rationing consumers. It is a far cry, to be sure, from the fixing of ceiling prices to curb speculation in a few commodities to the weblike system of price, costs, wages, and profits control set up for Germany, as described by Dr. Domeratsky. Nevertheless, the evolutionary development is easy to trace. Step follows step toward more comprehensive governmental control over industry. Such a logical inevitability should be warning to our industrialists to cooperate wholeheartedly in the efforts of the Government to control by persuasion rather than by compulsion.

The warning is pointed by Leon Henderson's decision to set maximum prices for cotton yarn at levels well below current quotations. Mr. Henderson was unable to get voluntary cooperation from the industry. He says his action was due to the need to wipe out unwarranted speculative increases in prices which had been run up in the belief that ceiling prices would be established at higher levels. Despite heavy purchases of yarns for Army and civilian use, Mr. Henderson states that the productive capacity of the industry is large and that the cost situation does not justify current high prices.

Whenever supplies are ample and prices are adequate to cover production costs and yield fair profits, the Price Administration should encounter no insuperable difficulties in maintaining ceiling quotations for any commodity produced under such conditions. But ceiling price degrees (or maximum price regulations) cannot be depended upon to keep prices from going higher if advances are due to actual shortages of supply or to increased production costs. To keep prices from rising under such conditions, far-reaching controls over production and distribution have to be instituted. In the present case the 85 per cent parity bill will boost the price of raw cotton, and there are no restraints on wages. How it is possible to establish price ceilings and at the same time to jack up or let owners jack up costs is a problem in wizardry.

Unfinished Task

Organized labor won a sweeping victory on Thursday when employes of the Ford Motor Co. selected the United Automobile Workers, C. I. O., as their collective bargaining agent. The triumph of the C. I. O. over the A. F. of L. was not surprising. In huge mass-production plants an industrial union has many advantages over smaller craft units. The really significant fact is that only 2.6 per cent of the employes in the gigantic River Rouge plant voted against both unions. This means that more than 97 per cent of the employes in this last great stronghold of antiunionism are in favor of collective bargaining.

The strength of this vote raises a sharp question as to why an NLRB election in the Ford plants was so long delayed. Collective bargaining by representatives of the employes' own choosing has been guaranteed by law since 1935. Employes of every industry operating in interstate commerce should have had an opportunity long ago of setting up collective bargaining agencies. Of course, some delays in putting the act into effect and testing its provisions in the courts were inevitable. But resistance to collective bargaining on the part of some employers was continued long after all confusion as to the status of the law was removed. If the election in the Ford plants and the recent balloting in the Lackawanna factory of the Bethlehem Steel Co. signify a final breakdown of this opposition, they are good omens. Particularly in the present critical situation, the right of collective bargaining should be taken for granted.

The other side of the labor picture is far less encouraging. For the most part the unions have now won their fight for the negotiations of labor contracts around the conference table. But their faith in the conference-table technique is still deplorably weak in many instances. At Ravenna, Ohio, for example, several thousand men working on a shell-loading plant walked out in defiance of union officials who were negotiating a wage increase. They ignored a formal demand from the union that they return to work so that negotiations could go forward. That irresponsible conduct has brought a proper reply from the Army. All employes on the project were discharged. Latest reports indicate that arrangements for rehiring have now been made and work will be resumed on Monday.

Out in San Francisco a still more flagrant abuse of union power keeps an enormous shipbuilding program at a standstill. In this case 1,900 striking machinists are preventing 18,000 men from working. To do so they are violating the terms of a master contract applying to the entire group. The pickets are said to have offered no resistance stronger than jeering to employes desiring to pass through their lines. Yet union leaders and Navy officials have resorted to hauling nonstrikers through the lines in trucks driven by uniformed sailors and marines. The apparent necessity of escorting union men through picket lines set up by a minority in defiance of orderly collective bargaining is an extremely sour commentary on the state of the Nation, particularly when the work being held up is vital to our national security.

The Administration must find ways and means of coping with such threats to our national safety. It has set up extensive controls to aid labor in bargaining collectively. But it has failed to protect the collective bargaining process against sabotage by minority groups. Nor has it required the unions as a whole to assume the responsibilities which should accompany their vast new powers. The fight for collective bargaining has been largely won. The fight to substitute the conference table for the picket line is only beginning. Congress and the President will be remiss in their duty if they do not give to the latter cause all the zeal and energy they gave to the former.

Good Way To Save

"Do not deposit your funds with us but buy defense bonds." This advice which W. Eldridge Brown, president of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, is giving to prospective depositors was reechoed this week at Atlantic City where the association is holding its annual convention. The banks may seem to be acting against their own interests in giving such advice; but, as Mr. Brown says, they are really doing both themselves and the depositor a good turn, as well as helping the Government. For the purchaser of a bond is less likely to dissipate his rainy-day reserves than the man with cash in the bank. When bonds are bought with savings, moreover, idle cash is absorbed instead of swelling the volume of bank deposits and thus increasing the danger of inflation. When banks buy Government bonds, payment takes the form of newly created deposits to Government account. These are paid out and redeposited in private accounts. As Mr. Brown explains, such transactions further increase deposits and reserves and may expand the basic credit structure to a dangerous point. For these reasons the Treasury is appealing for popular investment support of its bond offerings.

While the Government wisely decided to avoid high-pressure salesmanship, it is important to have the advantages of investment in defense bonds brought to public attention in all legitimate ways. No private agencies are so well equipped as the banks to undertake this job of public education. For bankers know well the dangers that lurk in an excess of idle reserves, and they come into daily contact with the people whose savings, if unused, help to build up those reserves. If bankers generally pass along the advice offered by Mr. Brown, they will render a real public service.

Warning To France

It is some comfort to read Vice Premier Darlan's assurance that he will never hand over the French fleet to the Nazis. But even if his word could be regarded as final on this point, it would be brought into question by some other parts of his speech to the French people on Friday. He is quoted as saying that Hitler did not ask him for any colonial territory. What Hitler requested and what Admiral Darlan offered is of little moment beside the fact that the Germans are using French airdromes in Syria. Continuation of French "sovereignty" or French control over the fleet means little when Frenchmen act at the behest of Berlin.

If the Vichy government believed that it could yield to the pressure of Germany without being subjected to pressure of a different sort from Great Britain, its illusions should now be completely dissipated. Foreign Secretary Eden has informed the Petain government in no uncertain terms that Britain will strike back if the collaboration between Berlin and Vichy interferes with her military plans. It would be absurd to suppose that the British would stand by and see their defenses undermined by French aid to Germany without smashing that aid at every opportunity.

France is a tragic victim of the war. Her plight elicits the sympathy of all men and women who have not lost the spirit of humanity. But the tragic fate of France gives that country no special immunity from the horrors of war in the future. If the Vichy government continues to aid the enemy of France to avoid further fighting, it will face the greater disaster of war with France's former ally. That is the stern reality which the Petain government must face. Foreign Secretary Eden has rendered the French people a genuine service by pointing out the inevitable consequences of the "collaboration" policy.

When The Hurly-Burly—

Last night, some 4,000 miles to the east of us raged what easily may prove one of the decisive battles of the world—that is, a battle to which historians may one day attach as much importance as our schoolbooks do now to Marathon, Cannae, Chalons or Waterloo. The outcome of this battle as we go to press is still far from certain. Thousands, maybe tens of thousands, have already been slain. But here in Washington, and indeed throughout the Nation in general, interest was centered in another battle taking place in Griffith Stadium. As to the outcome of this battle there was, even before it began, little, if any, doubt. And when it was over it had little effect on anything aside from the financial future of the two young men concerned.

However, we draw this contrast not in any spirit of moralizing or reproach. At the moment there was nothing that the most eager or apprehensive of us could do to alter or to strengthen by so much as one bullet the tide of battle in Crete. Thus, no doubt, it was the part of wisdom to forget it, if and while we could. But for that matter there was nothing—beyond a little hoarse and incoherent yelling—any of us could do to help the cause of either Joe Louis or Buddy Baer. But because all the sound and fury, like the punching itself, signified so very little, we could enjoy it the more heartily.

The late W. O. McGeehan, with what then seemed great appositeness, was fond of describing boxing, as practiced by professionals, as "the manly art of modified murder." Did it occur to many among the thousands at the stadium last night that, in contrast to the wholesale tortures and murders of which the past few years have afforded so many examples, boxing is murder modified to the point of utter tameness? Probably not. And for that simplicity of the American soul we should, while it endures, be profoundly grateful.

OBJECT LESSON

Up the long slope I walked, as one who would Recall in a familiar scene the form
And face of the beloved who once stood
Upon that height, before the mortal storm.
Down to the other side, I ran, and said
"There is no memory of him here: I must
Outstrip grief's shadow and the lonely dead,
Shake from my sandal the remembering dust."
Breathless, I found a hidden path grown thick
With vine and bramble, where we had not been
On any day. And turned, to see your quick
Reluctant glance fade in the leafy green,
And learned that moment sorrow has no season,
Nor will the heart be tutored by cold reason.

"Sea Freedom"

May I congratulate you on your editorial "Sea Freedom" in The Post of May 17. It is deeply to be regretted that the American and the British people have not understood earlier the significance of the "condominium on the high seas" exercised by the two nations since the Great War. It is also a tragedy that the people of all nations have not more adequately appreciated England's role as mistress of the seas during the Victorian Age, which alone made possible the peaceful development of vast tracts of the world and, incidentally, permitted the rise and consolidation of Italy, Japan and Germany, who now turn against their benefactor.

The following extract from America's great authority on sea power, Admiral Mahan, is perhaps appropriate:

> The position and the maritime power of England were great factors, great determining factors, in the final issue of the French revolutionary wars; but these were but the machinery of the British power.
> The great gain to the cause of stability in numan history was made when the spirit of order and law, embodied in the great nation which it had created, rose against the spirit of lawlessness and anarchy which had now possessed a people who, for long years and by nature, had been submissively subject to external authority.

Streets Of Washington

We are all the time hearing about how we ought not to litter up the streets. But what else can we do. There is no place to put the litter. We need more trash receivers. We need more cans or baskets to throw the stuff into, and we need more men on the street-cleaning force. Maybe we need more policemen to jack people up for disorderly behavior resulting from laziness, but that is another matter.

I understand that the District Building authorities claim they do have enough trash cans to meet the demand. This is a mistaken view. If there is not enough demand, demand should be created by police pressure. And it is not enough to have a sufficient supply of receivers for the downtown sections. The litter is not so bad downtown, anyway; perhaps this is because of police activity.

Whenever I go out on the street in the residence neighborhood where I live, I find newspapers sprawling all around, and plenty of small stuff besides. I often pick up the sprawling papers, also the milk bottles and the whisky bottles. But I am not in the street-cleaning business, and I can not attend to it all. There are plenty of poor men who would be glad of the job. Why not give it to some of them? And not to a few only, but to many.

The Little Companies

The record shows that strikes and walkouts occur mostly in the large industrial plants that have defense contracts on a negotiated or cost-plus basis from our Government. It is well known these large concerns have gobbled up billions in defense contracts that they cannot possibly fill in several years. They don't want to share these contracts with smaller, independent industrial concerns. Neither do they want the Government to cancel these contracts because of default in delivery.

Therefore it is easy to see these strikes serve two good purposes for these large concerns. If their men strike and get higher wages, it means the companies, working under cost-plus basis contracts, will reap additional profits from the Government on these contracts. Also a long labor-trouble period would grant these big companies sparring time, and would likely influence the Government not to cancel their contracts or distribute them among smaller concerns on account of nondelivery. This makes one wonder if these companies are doing all in their power to suppress or settle these strikes. Such a policy causes greater cost for defense items and lays a heavier burden on smaller concerns holding straight contracts at definite prices, who have to furnish their own tools, receive no assistance from the Government and get no big fat cost-plus contracts.

Where is that voice that used to attack economic royalists? If the Government would financially undergird these smaller industrial concerns, and split up these huge cost-plus contracts, issue them on a straight basis, and apportion them among these smaller concerns spotted all over our Nation, such a process would, in a large measure, take the politics and graft out of our defense preparation program, speed up mass production, restore financial prosperity to the Nation's common carriers, and spread out these billions of dollars judiciously over the entire Nation, relieving labor tension in all quarters.

A Letter From The NYA Administrator

I regret to note in this morning's Post that one of your editorial writers has commented carelessly and in misunderstanding on the current activities of the National Youth Administration.

Your editorial, "Economy Gesture," says: "Since he (the President) recently asked for an additional $60,000,000 for the NYA, the net reduction sought in work-relief funds would be just $49,000,000. . ."

The President himself, at his press conference on May 16, made it quite clear that his request for additional NYA funds was aimed specifically to meet the needs for rapid expansion of the national defense labor supply. He stated also that it would be necessary to do NYA's job from other national defense appropriations if economy moves should reduce the proposed expenditures.

I would like very much to invite your attention, and that of your writers, to the changes which have occurred in the NYA program in the last two or three years. These changes might explain your editorial's misstatement of the facts.

As far back as the fall of 1938, NYA started its effort to expand the metal, manual and mechanical facilities for young people, especially shops for the production of socially useful goods for public use. This expansion was accelerated, still from our regular "work-relief" funds, in May and June of 1940 when the Low Countries fell and our own rearmament got into high gear. Last October, Congress, on recommendation of the Defense Commission and the President, voted additional money to NYA to expand these activities. Another defense appropriation to NYA was contained in the deficiency appropriation of April 1, and the latest request of the President is for the purpose of increasing and carrying out this program.

Here is the language of the Budget Director, describing the purpose of the appropriation:

"The funds requested for work-experience training in National Youth Administration facilities contemplate the employment of a maximum of 100,000 youths at 32,735 selected work stations for the use of which, on the basis of three shifts per day and three months' work experience per youth, it is expected that approximately 368,000 youths will be given work-experience training during the course of the year which will qualify them for employment in defense industry. Funds are also requested for the administration of this program."

This certainly provides for work, but if you ask me, it's not "relief."

As to our current program, I would like to say that we now have 136,000 in our shops, 35,000 at resident centers, who are also working in shops, 96,000 on construction work, and 119,000 on professional and clerical projects. More than 14,000 of this total of 388,000 are working directly for the Army on Army posts and cantonments, many thousands more are working in NYA shops on production of essential materials, including machine parts, lockers, and small items of furniture, on urgent order of the Ordnance Department. NYA clerical workers all over the country are manning the Selective Service Boards.

I hope you will be able to help us in explaining to the public the nature of our activities.

AUBREY WILLIAMS.
National Youth Administrator.
Washington, May 23.

[Editor's Note:—There was no misunderstanding concerning the purpose for which the additional $60,000,000 was requested. The Post has frequently called attention to the effort to justify continued functioning of various agencies of the Government as aids to defense. But why add $60,000,000 to the nearly $100,000,000 originally budgeted? Why not eliminate activities not connected with defense or cut them drastically? In testifying before the Ways and Means Committee April 24, Secretary Morgenthau urged reexamination of all defense items with a view to reducing expenditures. Pressed for specific suggestions, he said: "I can not think of better examples than the CCC and the NYA which are taking boys over 21 just as though we did not have the Army taking them."]

Would Fight Japan Now

I agreed with the letter in The Post of May 20 by Mr. John Warren under the subject of "Japan and the United States," and I appreciate the gentleman of Virginia, a real American, loyal to his Nation.

Soon after the China-Japanese war in 1894 Japan planned to conquer America, which I warned Americans since a decade. It may be unbelievable in the past, but it is clear now to anyone who is in his right mind. America must war with Japan unless America is willing to copy the European democracies asking peace, even until they are attacked and defeated just like now.

I agree 100 per cent with Mr. Warren, to fight Japan at once. It is almost too late already. If we delay further until we are attacked by Japan, there will hardly be any hope of victory for America.

I am a Korean—I would never surrender to Japan, and I live in the United States.

A Word To Workers

A word to the workers of America: You are unwittingly, by your incessant strikes, being made the dupes of the most sinister and subversive influences the world has ever known. By holding up the defense program you may gain temporary advantages as to hours and wages, but in the end you will as surely become the slaves of Nazi taskmasters as surely as the workmen of France and the other conquered European nations. Don't be short-sighted. Be loyal to your jobs; be loyal to America and above all work with redoubled fury and keep dissension out of your ranks that this priceless heritage of American freedom may be preserved, not only for yourselves but for all of us—for your children and for our children. God bless America.

Horse Fever

For years, even before allergies were nosing out operations as a topic of conversation, I was allergic to horses. Only we didn't call it that. We simply called it "horse-fever," which somehow doesn't sound half so elegant as allergic.

I'd always envied those who could get near horses without sneezing and getting red-eyed and looking terribly gummy. Horses, I'd heard from friends who rode them, were truly a world in themselves. And one of my friends, who had spent eight weeks in the hospital as the result of being thrown by a horse, was completely buoyed up by the fact that the fall wasn't due to any flaws in her horsemanship. She felt she could go back to riding with her head still up, which, fresh out of the cast, she did. There must be something about horses, I thought.

Now I know there is. For, having been recently exposed to horses and having sneezed only seven times, I felt so encouraged that I decided to go riding. I arrayed myself in jodhpurs and feeling that I looked every inch a horsewoman, went with a friend to a riding club.

The horses they gave us were beautiful creatures, but I thought their legs were a bit too long for perfect safety, and I couldn't help suggesting to the riding master that I'd just as soon have a horse not quite so tall to start with. Whereupon I was assured that I had been given the smallest one in the stables. So that was that.

Now my friend, who had ridden before, mounted with the greatest of ease and grace. But I got on—you couldn't dignify it by saying I mounted—I got on like the spirit of rheumatism trying to climb the side of a barn.

However, once up, it was wonderful. I'd half expected to be afraid, never having been up on a step-ladder without tottering. But there wasn't a bit of fear. Only a feeling of exhilaration that the world was so beautiful when seen from horseback. I settled back comfortably and proceeded to admire the lovely countryside.

"You must try to appear more alert when you're on a horse," said our instructor, with a smile. "You look as if you were just going for a ride on a horse."

I admitted that was exactly my idea.

"All wrong," said he. "You've got to ride that horse."

He led my horse, whom we shall call Belinda, down to the river, while I joggled atop, trying my best to look alert.

Apparently this was not enough. Although the instructor was most kind and tactful, I gathered that my heels were higher than my toes, my elbows were flapping, and my torso was terrible. In short, not a single inch of my anatomy was where it should be in relation to the horse.

Then the instructor let go of Belinda, and I really did become alert, prepared for anything, except what actually happened.

Only the evening before we had been entertained by a cavalry officer who had told harrowing and side-splitting stories of the hazards of horsemanship, and how important it was to know how to throw your horse before he throws you!

So I was prepared for a plunging, bucking, rearing steed. But I wasn't prepared for—just nothing. Belinda wouldn't move. I tapped with my legs, harder and harder. I begged, pleaded and reasoned. But she just wouldn't go.

I have experienced a number of humiliating moments, but never have I felt quite so utterly stymied. "Anyone, of course, can start a horse moving," said a book on horseback riding I'd gotten from the library, "but it's sometimes difficult to stop one." That author never rode Belinda.

At last, at a word from the instructor, Belinda ambled off. She walked all of 10 feet and then plunged her nose deep into a clump of wild garlic. In trying to lure her away from the garlic I got the reins tied practically into knots. After some time we got straightened out and walked off—to the next patch of garlic, where we went through almost the same performance as before. When Belinda was quite ready, we moved again. Fortunately the garlic was not as prevalent now and we went quite a few feet without any incidents.

Meanwhile my friend was riding ahead as smoothly and beautifully as a veteran horsewoman. I tried to imitate that wonderful coordination between horse and rider, and became so involved in coordinating that I failed to make Belinda navigate a bend in the path. She made straight for the river bank and stood gazing thoughtfully into the water.

She didn't need to tell me what was passing through her mind. I knew. And I wouldn't have blamed her if she had rolled me into the mud. But Belinda's better nature apparently overcame her, after some rather desperate and peculiar tuggings on my part, and she turned and headed back for the stables! Enough was enough.

We got her back on the bridle-path again and tried to make her trot, but that is a chapter in itself, too exhausing even to write about.

Came the end of the lesson, and the inevitable dismounting. The mounting had been pretty grim business. But the dismounting was speedy and spectacular. Instead of coasting down gently, I shot down Belinda's side like a fireman on a pole, only to discover when I reached the ground that my legs had about as much standing ability as two strands of spaghetti.

One thing I found I had gained from the lesson, though, and this was what the textbooks term "the feeling of the horse." As a matter of fact, I still have that feeling, notwithstanding many applications of liniment. Also, I still have "horse fever," but in a different way. For truly, in spite of the sneezing and meals-off-the-mantel, I can hardly wait to go riding again.

Fair Enough

Post-War Possibilities

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT is the President of the United States, elected by the people in the regular way, and there is no legal cloud on his title to his office. He has been elected three times, and, notwithstanding a complete discussion of his faults and failures, those who opposed him twice were unable to uncover a man who could beat him at the polls. It is true that he has a tendency to bypass Congress and that he tried to pack the Supreme Court one way and, when rebuffed, was enabled by fortuitous circumstances to pack it another way and did pack it. But those objections to President Roosevelt and all the others, too, were thoroughly discussed in the last campaign, and still he was elected—for the third time. The American people knew thoroughly well what sort of man he was and, knowing this, elected him in time of war, when they knew he had declared this Nation's sympathy for Adolf Hitler's enemies and victims and had committed the country to a program of assistance which even a rational ruler of a warring country would have regarded as hostility.

PEGLER

SO, OBVIOUSLY, the people of the United States are stuck with President Roosevelt and with the Congress which also was elected by popular vote in the manner prescribed by law, except one Louisiana Senator who was elected by fraud but was accepted by the Senate, nevertheless.

If the armament program fails through political opposition, influence by labor leaders, that will be a disaster as bad for the whole American people as for the President himself.

I do not believe that those who oppose the President's war policy should be forbidden to express their opposition, but I maintain that if they should succeed in defeating his program the disaster to the United States will be certain and terrible, whereas a united people, supporting the Government which they knowingly elected, might avert the disaster.

I insist also that those who say Hitler has no designs against the United States deliberately shut their eyes to Hitler's record and his declared determination to exterminate the American form of Government. He has used the same reassuring and disarming formula time after time, and there, as here, he has been assisted by political opponents of the rulers who aggravated distrust among the people, disarranged their efforts and cried "warmonger" at leaders who were only trying to defend their countries against the unprovoked ferocity of the greatest war machine in the history of the world.

AS TO WHAT sort of nation this would be even in the event of victory I have a rather somber picture. I think that if Hitler defeats Britain, then Britain, like France, will trot out of their present seclusion those British Quislings and Lavals who would be willing to bow in "collaboration" and turn against the United States. This suggests very interesting possibilities in Canada, right on top of us, and in the Caribbean, aggravated by resentment against us for "failure" to see them through.

Such resentment is now being whipped up among the French people, although one of the reasons for their disaster was the most humiliating one of all to Frenchmen, namely, that many of their soldiers ran away.

So I believe that if Hitler beats Britain, the United States will, at very best, go into a spin and come out of it with an outright Fascist or Nazi form of government, which is the same thing as the communism of Russia, with trivial variations.

IT WERE BETTER not to forget the "revision" of national boundaries, the "restitutions" and "repatriations" that Hitler has devised in Europe and think of Spain's "historic" claim to Florida and the "historic" claim of nazified France to the vast territory of the Louisiana Purchase. A nazified Mexico would bite a big gouge out of the southwestern United States, and a nazified Britain could put in an equally valid claim for the area of the rebellious colonies. Already, in nazified Russia, it has been set forth that this country obtained Alaska by a fraudulent transaction with a Czar who had no right to sell the territory.

Victorious, I believe the United States, nevertheless, would go socialistic, but whether under the present form of government or some other it is idle to speculate. Our tendency has been that way under President Roosevelt, and, knowing that to be the case, we have elected him for the third time.

Moslem Federation

By Clarissa Lorenz

Mohammedan Unity

THE 200,000,000 Mohammedans inhabiting a single continuous area from India to the Sudan, and bound together in a sense by a common religion and culture, symbolize a giant whom neither the Axis powers nor Great Britain is anxious to arouse, lest the dilemma of the Sorcerer's Apprentice be reenacted. If the Mohammedans take sides, the side they take will probably win. But can this giant be kept asleep?

Before it becomes a force with which the world has to reckon there would need to be closer unity of the Mohammedan countries—India, Afghanistan, Sinkiang, Persia, Iraq, Syria, Turkey, Transjordania, Palestine, Kuweit, Saudi Arabia, Oman, Hadra, Maut Yemen, Egypt, the English Sudan, Libya, Tunisia, Algiers, Morocco, Spanish Morocco, Rio d'Oro, French West Africa, etc.—about half of them independent.

Mecca, as we recall from our schoolbooks, is the religious center. Since the reward of a soldier is eternal delight, a Moslem paradise of happy companionship with beautiful houris, they all move together, ready to sacrifice their lives when the green flag of the prophet is unfurled. In Cairo, largest Mohammedan city, the traditions of Arab culture are best preserved, although they did not originate there. While they speak various tongues, Arabic (something like the lingua franca) is the common language. And most of them use the same Arab character, for there is a pleasant custom in Arabic of leaving out the vowels so that each country can supply those belonging to its own dialect.

AT PRESENT there is no secular head to the Mohammedan world, like the Caliphs of Bagdad in the remote past, or the erstwhile Sultan of Turkey. But the impulse to blend these various languages, nations, sects and races has already found expression in such gestures as the youth movements of Egypt and Turkey. This unification, begun in Saudi Arabia, has spread over Egypt and Syria, and will ultimately reach the most distant corners of the Mohammedan world. Today Moslemism has perhaps not generated enough driving power to create a potent ally, but if the people knew that they could rely on the support of the great democracies it might easily supply the weight needed to tip the scales in the present crisis.

The British have to decide whether it is preferable to encourage Moslem unity, trusting the people not to cut the lifeline of the British Empire, or whether to oppose such a federation. The first alternative is beset by many complications. There is Suez, the weakest link in the chain connecting Great Britain to its eastern empire; there is Palestine and the question of the Jewish homeland, the Moslem population in India and Java, the French mandate of Syria and the British Fort of Aden. But if Great Britain opposes such a federation, she risks the danger of a German land attack on a weak and disunited people. Once Turkey is conquered by the Germans nothing can stop them from obtaining the coveted oil fields of Iraq and Persia.

As for the Mohammedans, they have more to fear from Italy, with her imperialistic policy, or from the Germans, with their Drang Nach Osten. They would themselves prefer that the keys to the gates of the Mediterranean be kept in two hands, Gibraltar and Ceuta, instead of being handed over to Spain.

IN ANY CASE, the question is an acute one, in view of the present German drive to the east. The democracies should at least attempt to win the Mohammedans over to their side. Britain's friendly policy, giving independence to Egypt, Iraq and Transjordania, has already established a good relationship. The victories in Libya opened the way for an uprising against Italy, and France is now powerless to oppose a sufficently strong revolt in Algiers, Tunisia or Morocco. As for Spain, that country was hardly able in her more potent days to conquer the Riffs, and it is questionable whether in her present weakened state she could control them.

What is the American attitude toward a Moslem federation? Economically, our interests in that part of the world are relatively small. To be sure, the old fields of Behrein Island and partly those of Persia are American-owned, but for a considerable time they will be unable to produce oil by themselves. If any other important minerals were to be derived from these countries, they could always be obtained through the regular trading channels.

In accordance with the Wilson principle of self-determination of nations, however, our attitude toward the notion of a united Moslem can only be favorable. America would welcome the creation of a unit so strong and stable that it insured peace in that part of the world. This does not, of course, mean reviving the days of the prophet. We have enough leaders at the moment, an oversupply of fuehrers, but we trust that it would be essentially democratic, a peaceful culture.

Our greatest hope for permanent peace under the present circumstances is to establish large and fixed units based upon a common culture, replacing the number of small, shifting tribes unable to defend themselves against the consolidated power of militarized nations.

The British And Hess

By Harold J. Laski

Reaction To His Extraordinary Flight

London.

AUXILIARY FIREMEN among the charred ruins of the Temple first told me the news of the Hess landing. The next day I discussed Hess with some eminent lawyers sitting with me on industrial arbitration. Then I heard a long discussion at a local Labor Party meeting. All this represents, I think, a fairly good cross-section of British opinion; hence I want to emphasize the reaction of the public in this country.

LASKI

Common to all was an intense feeling of elation. Here was decisive evidence of a crack in the Nazi machine. It was the first crack since June 30, 1934, and came despite the prestige of immense victories. Common also was the sense that here, on any showing, was a gigantic fact which Goebbels could not explain away either to neutrals or to the people of the occupied territories.

Common again was the emphasis that too much must not be built upon it. One desperate man escapes; others, like a rat in a corner, may fight the more fiercely for their danger.

Every one, of course, felt the romance of the event; and every one felt a good deal flattered that Hess chose Britain rather than a neutral country as the scene of adventure. With us, at least, he felt free of the danger of brutal treatment. From that, the inference was universally drawn that although Hitler may attempt an invasion, Hess does not believe that it will succeed.

THE RESULT has been a measurable increase in self-confidence. One of the lawyers put that well, I thought, in a simple phrase: "Now," he said, "I do not need to contemplate defeat even in my inner mind."

London looks a grim place, but there is an obvious jauntiness in people's bearing, an anxiety to talk. A tendency for your tobacconist to pass over a remark with his packet of cigarettes which was unmistakable in its meaning. Phrases flashed around in that fantastic way in which they seem, out of nowhere, to become current coin. One I heard most often was that this was Hitler's "Hess-o-Hess"; a bus conductor told it to an old lady with a chuckle that caused the whole bus to smile. And everyone turned detective over it. I stopped at a coffee stall where there was a fierce argument on the motive of his adventure: an airman and a soldier got so fierce in their differences that George, its well known manager, had to step in with a smiling, "If you want to fight, keep your energies for Hitler."

Among the working class, I found certain unmistakable currents of opinion.

First, they want assurance that Hess will not receive preferential treatment. He had been one of the organizers of murder and oppression; if he sickened of it at the eleventh hour, it is his victims we must remember. Second, they do not want any attempt to turn him into a hero; they have no use for the kind of comment in some papers that is already trying to differentiate between him and his fellow outlaws. As a fireman said to me in the smoking ruins of the Temple, "Don't let's forget he helped do this." Third, they want all the advantages of the confusion his escape caused pushed home to the limit. This is not a matter of hate and revenge. It is simple perception that this war is a job to be finished as quickly as possible and that this gives Britain a superb propaganda weapon that must be exploited to the full. Fourth, they want Hess made to understand that to the workers of this country he is an enemy, an outlaw. A man who compiled the card index of trade union and Socialist leaders, and who in 1933 had so many of them murdered and put in concentration camps. Workingmen do not underestimate the value of Hess at this juncture; but they think of him as a gangster who has given himself up to the police.

MY LAWYER colleagues took a more sympathetic view. They were little interested in what Hess had been; indeed, historically, they knew far less of his record than the workingman. They assumed he was to be judged as an instrument; and they were emphatic that his technical status as an important war prisoner put him in a special category. They had practically none of the mortal indignation about his record that you hear from every trade unionist. He was not to them a symbol of the death of the German labor movement, an official enemy of the democratic way of life. They, therefore, were more aloof from the problems Hess had raised than the masses. They tended, too, to suspend judgment on his character on the ground that this was a matter of evidence not in our possession yet. They thought it was possible that Hess was genuinely penitent.

Such detachment was not to be found among the workers. They take the view so expressively put by Mr. Churchill: "This is the first maggot in the apple." I discussed the difference in outlook with a distinguished trade unionist who probably sees as much of the labor movement as any man in this country. He thought the workers drew a clear distinction between Hitler and his intimate colleagues and the German masses. With the first group no sort of compromise was possible; but not even the horror of aerial bombardment could arouse hatred for the second.

They knew that the masses in no country wanted war. They believed firmly that the rulers of Great Britain strove even to the point of folly to avoid war. But they were not less certain that Hitler and his fellow outlaws built a system from which war was the logical outcome, that they welcomed it as a means of increasing their authority, and that they must be made such an example of that no new set of gangsters would feel tempted to follow their example. The workers put Hess among the gangsters. His acquaintances among the British aristocracy could never persuade them that this was not the case. There would be immense indignation if he were able to take advantage of a friendship he ought never to have been allowed to form.

I AM NOT commenting upon but reporting about the extraordinary situation that developed out of this affair. Its proportions can only be realized when it is said that it dwarfs in the public mind even the destruction of the House of Commons and Westminster Abbey. Indeed, it was a Labor member who, amid the wreckage of the first, exclaimed quite involuntarily, "Damn Hess." So instant is the connection between the ruins and our visitor. It is interesting to note how difficult our people find it to understand the psychology which lies behind his action; desertion to the enemy they can grasp; a superspy and professional intriguer like Von Papen is now an elementary part of their thinking. But it is beyond their range of thought to know or even guess at what lay behind the mind of a man in Hess' position.

One other comment is significant. Many people remark to me on the revelation this exploit is of the Nazis' inability to understand the processes of democracy. Hess writes to the Duke of Hamilton about peace in the obvious faith that the duke, as a duke, can seriously influence political policy in this country. He had obviously been taken in by the cheaper propaganda of his own colleague, Dr. Goebbels.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Home Defense Boss

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia is President Roosevelt's choice for National Administrator of Civilian Defense. Fiorello will be Grand Marshal of the home folks and Generalissimo of the towns and cities. A salute will not be compulsory. But if he wants one, you'd better give it.

In modern war the civilians are the first line of attack and their field marshal is kept busier than a one-spade mayor with ten cornerstone layings. Which is where Hizzoner fits.

If Washington was looking for a man of action, Fiorello was a standout. He has not only mastered the trick of being in two places at once, but thinks he is in a slump if he doesn't make it three.

If the people are asleep, Mayor LaGuardia is the man to wake 'em up.

He will not only arouse 'em from their slumbers, but give 'em insomnia by Federal decree.

Fiorello is second to none as a ball of fire, a bolt of lightning and a human dynamo. He is perpetual motion in Indian headgear, and can also impersonate Irresistible Force in a black sombrero.

But it is going to be hard to distinguish him from an actual hostile attack.

With Fiorello and the foe in action at the same time, it is going to take a commission investigation to tell one from the other.

It is all right to have LaGuardia defending us from the enemy, but who is going to defend us from LaGuardia?

One thing is pretty certain: He is apt to get so far out ahead of the Army and Navy in this work that our armed forces will have trouble catching up with him, especially if he uses that official car with the fire department insignia.

When Fiorello jumps into his Federal home defense uniform, slaps on his national fire helmet, starts gesticulating with a hydrant wrench and sounds the siren of civilian preparedness, this country is in for the greatest piece of alarm spreading since Paul Revere.

He will make Paul's ride seem a secret mission.

Hizzoner will not only play Paul Revere, but the horse, the steeple, Old North Church and even the pigeons. And if there are no lanterns in the belfry some "punk" will suffer.

Listen, my children, and you shall hear!

And how!

The drive for noiseless cities is, we take it, suspended for the duration of the emergency.

One Omission

Summer soon will be our guest;
We'll do for him our very best,
Knowing well that he will bring
All these things of which I sing:
Flowers, birds and bumble bees,
Gnats, mosquitoes, cackling geese,
Tennis racquets, sporting shoes,
Fishing rods and barbecues,
Outdoor concerts, country hikes,
Camping trips and rides on bikes,
Crucial series, blaring bands,
Music lovers holding hands,
Thirsty throats and burning feet,
Sleepless nights and awful heat,
Coney Island, freaky shows,
Ice cream, dogs and peeling nose,
Tears and laughter, death and birth—
Everything but peace on earth!
—H. G. Estrin.

"The Papers of Private Purkey," it may interest readers to know, will be out in book form shortly.

Incredible but True

Everything's cheering—
Everything's jake;
Franklin's admitted
He made one mistake!

Whatever became of Rudolf Hess?

Charlie Vackner says he is the kind of race track fan who still clings to the notion Not Yet will win a race eventually.

Balloon won a race at Belmont the other day. Elmer Twitchell says he was scared stiff he would blow up in the stretch.

The Gallup Poll

59% Call President's Steps to Aid Britain 'About Right;' 20% Say 'Not Far Enough'

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., May 23.—Washington observers have many times credited President Roosevelt with having an acute sense of public opinion, and whether this judgment be justified or not, a new study just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows that with regard to U. S. assistance to Great Brittain, the President's actions have thus far been substantially agreeable to majority sentiment.

Whether this is because the President has followed the public, or because the public has followed Roosevelt, remains an interesting question.

Nevertheless, as of mid-May, nearly six persons in every ten thought Mr. Roosevelt had moved "about right" with regard to British aid, while two thought he had moved "too far" and the remaining two "not far enough," the survey shows.

"Do you think President Roosevelt has gone too far in his policies of helping Britain, or not far enough?" an Institute question asked voters in all parts of the United States.

The replies of those with opinions were:

ABOUT RIGHT	59
NOT FAR ENOUGH	20

This is specially interesting in view of the fact that many—if not most—of the volunteer organizations and committees which have taken a public stand on such matters have directly or indirectly charged President Roosevelt with either too much haste or too little.

The survey probably underlines again the familiar fact that the balance of power in American politics is usually found at the "center."

Interestingly enough, the number who say President Roosevelt has not gone far enough (20 per cent) is closely similar to the 21 per cent who think this country should enter the war immediately.

On the other hand, the 21 per cent who think the President has gone "too far" corresponds closely to the number who say they approve of Charles A. Lindbergh's views on aiding Britain, and to the number who would favor a negotiated peace at this time.

The survey shows that the bulk of those who voted for Mr. Willkie in the last election consider that President Roosevelt has moved "about right," although fewer Republicans say this than Democrats.

The vote by parties:

	Roosevelt Voters	Willkie Voters
TOO FAR	11%	34%
ABOUT RIGHT	66	49
NOT FAR ENOUGH	23	17

Another indication of the support which President Roosevelt enjoys throughout the United States today is the fact, reported in recent Institute studies, that more than 70 per cent of the voters now approve, in general, of the job Mr. Roosevelt is doing as President.

50-Billion Defense Program Disclosed By High Officials

By Cecil B. Dickson,

International News Service Staff Writer

Administration plans to raise the defense program to $50,000,000,000 were disclosed yesterday by high officials as Army and Navy chiefs prepared requests for funds for additional planes, guns, ships and tanks.

Defense expenditures of $18,000,000,000 during the fiscal year opening on July 1, is the minimum goal. Altogether Federal outlays during the next 12 months were estimated today at $25,000,000,000, the largest in peacetime history.

The War Department alone wants an additional $2,500,000,000 for 13,000 bombers and fighting planes, while the Navy is expected to request an equal amount for planes and ships.

In addition, legislation is pending in Congress to expand the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's defense lending powers by $1,500,000,000, most of which is to be used in new-plant expansion. Action on this bill is scheduled in the House next week. It has already passed the Senate.

At present the defense program, including the $7,000,000,000 lend-lease fund, totals $40,000,000,000. Informed sources said the British wanted the lend-lease program doubled next year since the production scheduled calls for the delivery of goods under it by June 30, 1942.

British estimates for the entire lease-lend program now total $18,000,000,000, defense officials revealed. The final $4,000,000,000 is to come in 1943, when the English expect the war against Germany to end in victory.

Secretary Morgenthau revealed yesterday defense spending for the current year had passed $5,000,000,000, compared with $1,360,000,000 a year ago. Many industries are just now getting into big production and defense spending, now above $600,000,000 a month, is expected to reach $1,000,000,000 by July 1, and continue to increase throughout the new fiscal year.

Nondefense spending now is running ahead of defense outlays, but Treasury officials expect this to be reversed by June 30. For the first 10 months and 21 days this month they totaled $5,730,000,000. Revenues during the period totaled $6,878,000,000, a record high.

Since President Roosevelt submitted his $10,000,000,000 defense budget in January, additional requests aggregating $18,000,000,000, including the lease-lend fund, have been sent to Congress. Many of these are still pending.

Railroads Offer Diesel Power

The Nation's railroads offered yesterday to use some of their Diesel-electric locomotives as an additional source of power in the Tennessee Valley area.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, said the action was taken when it was learned defense production might be reduced in the area because of limitations of the power supply as a result of deficient rainfall.

Describing railroad locomotives as "important agencies of defense in and of themselves," Pelly said there would be no diversion of them from their ordinary use of transportation "unless it be to help meet a real need of defense which cannot be met otherwise."

"However," he added, "if such need should develop, and the use of portable power-generating plants of this type is found to be feasible from the engineering standpoint, the railroads can make this added contribution to the Nation's needs and still have the capacity to handle their regular job of transportation."

Ford Counsel Denounces Wagner Act

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 23.—I. A. Capizzi, chief counsel for the Ford Motor Co., today bitterly denounced the Wagner Labor Act under which the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) Wednesday won bargaining rights in the Ford Rouge and Lincoln plants and termed the union "a Communist influenced and led organization."

The statement, which asserted that if the Wagner Act "is allowed to run it will force all American industry to close down or be Sovietized," brought an immediate response from the U. A. W.-C. I. O. The union accused Capizzi of "inciting to violation of the law" and added that Henry and Edsel Ford should repudiate the Capizzi statement "without delay."

"If Capizzi is speaking for Henry Ford," said the union, "then our wish, expressed yesterday, that the 'curtain be drawn on the bitterness of the past' probably would not be fulfilled. The U. A. W.-C. I. O. sincerely hopes that Capizzi's outburst is the ill-natured expression of a bad loser, rather than an expression of policy of the Ford Motor Co."

"The Ford Motor Co.," Capizzi said, "will deal with this organization because the law says it must. But it will continue to point out that the Wagner Act, as now framed and functioning, breeds conditions and admits of practices which its framers never foresaw or intended."

The result of the election, the Ford counsel continued, means that the company must deal with an organization "whose first objective is to raise additional millions with which to finance its drive to control all American industry and whose ultimate objective is, through strikes and general turmoil, to produce that public confusion and bewilderment."

U. S. Seeks 'Blood Bank' Volunteers

By Philip G. Reed,

International News Service Staff Writer

The Government last night called for volunteer donors in building a mammoth "blood bank" against the day of war.

Present plans call for developing a reserve of 200,000 half-pint units of dried blood plasma in the 12 months beginning July 1. Storing up plasma is science's answer to the hitherto delicate problem of direct blood transfusion.

It is processed blood with almost all of the life-giving properties retained and may be kept in powder form as long as five years without deterioration.

Redissolved in water it can be injected by a layman with a pocket-sized apparatus and with no danger of mixing blood types, the greatest hazard in ordinary blood transfusions.

The Nation-wide program, as announced by the War Department, will be directed by the American Red Cross and division of medical sciences of the National Research Council.

While blood donations on such a scale have never been attempted before in this country, Red Cross officials said they expected little difficulty in acquiring the quantity needed. They pointed out that 18,000 units were collected in New York City for Great Britain between August and January.

In addition, a bill is now pending in Congress providing payment of up to $50-per-pint for blood donations.

The War Department explained the plasma reserve will probably be divided equally between the Army and Navy, but that in case of "civilian catastrophe" some would be diverted for such use.

37,500,000 Wage-Earners Now At Work

By the Associated Press

Employment in nonagricultural pursuits has jumped past the 1929 peak to the highest levels in United States history, a computation based on Government figures showed today.

The preliminary estimates indicated that, due to defense efforts, there now are over 37,500,000 wage earners at work.

This compares with the boom peak of 37,470,000 in September, 1929, and the depression low of 26,381,000 during March, 1933. (The estimate of current employment does not include Army and Navy personnel, workers on WPA and National Youth projects or men in the Civilian Conservation Corps.)

The present preparedness drive, however, hardly approaches the war effort of 1917-18 in the full employment of the Nation's resources of working men and women.

Some estimates by research experts have put the total of unemployed at the peak of activity in 1918 at only 500,000. This contrasts with current unemployment estimates running from 6,100,000 to 9,000,000. However, since 1918 the number of persons capable of gainful work has increased by approximately 15,000,000.

Experts on employment opportunities point out that in addition to the millions still unemployed 3,000,000 youngsters leaving classrooms in May and June will be out looking for permanent or vacation jobs.

The WPA is preparing to release another 500,000 of its workers, to bring the total within the 1,000,000 for whom President Roosevelt has asked Congress to provide wages in the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

Furthermore, one labor analyst said, the employment market probably will see an increasing influx of women—many of whom have never worked before for wages.

Church Briefs

Oddly enough, Washington's two tallest clergymen are both on Thomas Circle.

One is lean, scholarly 6-foot-1-inch Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, minister of National City Christian Church. The other is the Lincoln-like, 6-foot-2 pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, Dr. Charles B. Foelsch. Incidentally, their churches are among the tallest in the city.

Among Washington's handsomest church ushers is said to be Arthur S. Flemming, one of the Civil Service Commissioners and lay leader at Foundry Methodist Church. He is doing a fine piece of work in getting newcoming Government workers, especially young men and young women, interested in church activities in their new environment.

The members of the Southeast Interchurch Council are strong proof that clergymen, generally speaking, are far from being a long-faced, somber lot. With Council President George H. Bennett as host, I had luncheon with them short time ago, found them regular fellows who find real happiness in their religious ministry.

DR. MILLER

Christ, Himself, intended that his followers should find in his philosophy the Happier-Am-I life.

Mrs. Minnie Drexilius, Miss Elizabeth Feindt and Miss Frances Humphrey are three women who help to keep the Washington Federation of Churches' wheels rolling smoothly. Mrs. Drexilius, house mother, is just "Drex" to girls residing in the building, and to many others. Elizabeth, while diminutive in size, is a storehouse of information about Washington's churches. She is the office secretary.

Frances, secretary to the Rev. John L. Mixon, head of the social welfare department, can tell you anything you want to know about that field in Washington.

About this time of the year the local ecclesiastical air is surcharged with talk of summer conference. We'll tell you more about that next week. R. T. A.

Dr. Barnhart to Speak

Dr. William R. Barnhart, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, will be the preacher at the First Evangelical and Reformed Church tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Accent on Youth

District Luther League Plans Party at Holiday House Today

The Washington District Luther League, comprising young peoples' organizations from 12 United Lutheran churches here, will hold a holiday party today at 2:30 p. m. The Holiday House is located 4½ miles beyond Alexandria on the Mount Vernon Highway.

As an added attraction and as a climax to Youth Month, the guest speaker tomorrow at Ninth Street Christian Church will be Mrs. Hilda M. Greene, of Manchester, England, who is a war refugee in the United States. For the "duration" she and her two small sons, 4-year-old Nigel and 1-year-old Jeremy, are guests in a minister's home in Virginia. Mrs. Greene is the wife of Charles K. Greene, the chairman of the home mission committee of our British churches, a osition comparable to that of president of the United Christian Missionary Society in this country.

Announcement was made yesterday that the seventeenth annual Young People's Conference and the eighteenth annual Officers and Teachers' Conference of the D. C. Sunday School Association will be held on June 20, 21 and 22 at Western Maryland College, Westminster.

The Rev. T. Guthrie Speers, minister of the Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, will be conference speaker, and the Rev. Philip C. Jones, associate minister of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City, forum leader.

Luther League youths of Georgetown Lutheran Church will meet there tomorrow at 2:30 p. m., then go to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Schultz, Waxpool, Va., for an outdoor service.

Young people of East Washington Heights Baptist Church will present a Memorial Day message entitled "The People, Yes," tomorrow at 8 p. m.

Chevy Chase Baptist youths will participate in the vesper services there tomorrow at 7:45 p. m. It will be "an evening with hymns of the church."

Massing of Colors Tomorrow at 4

Plans have been completed for the fourteenth annual massing of the colors service in the open-air amphitheater in the Washington Cathedral grounds tomorrow at 4 p. m. under the joint auspices of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Military Order of the World War and the Washington Cathedral.

Joining in these colorful ceremonies will be approximately 250 military, veteran, patriotic and civic organizations. More than 12,000 persons will witness this procession of 500 flags, marchers and drum corps.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, director of the District of Columbia Selective Service, and the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will be the speakers.

Dr. Douglass to Give Initial D. C. Sermon

Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of American University, will deliver tomorrow morning's sermon at Chevy Chase Methodist Church.

Dr. Douglass, the new president of the university, comes from Poultney, Vt., where he was pastor of the Methodist Church for eight years.

This will be Dr. Douglass' first appearance in the pulpit in Washington since he arrived in Washington, May 1.

Franciscan Is Retreat Master

THE REV. DENIS MOONEY, O. F. M., of the Franciscan Monastery, tomorrow will conduct a Day of Recollection for women of St. Thomas the Apostle Church at the Washington Retreat House, 4000 Harewood Road Northeast.

Pontifical Mass Honors War Dead

His excellency, the Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, D. D., Coadjutor Bishop of Richmond and titular Bishop of Cime, will be the celebrant of a pontifical mass tomorrow morning at 10 in the Amphitheater at Arlington National Cemetery.

The sermon will be delivered by the Very Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S.J., vice president of Georgetown University.

The mass is being sponsored by Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus and the combined Catholic societies of Washington, and is being celebrated for the war dead.

Following the mass representatives of more than 50 national and local Catholic societies will place wreaths at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier as a tribute from their respective memberships.

Following the Arlington ceremonies a luncheon will be tendered Bishop Ireton in the Sapphire Room of the Mayflower Hotel. Heads of local organizations as well as those of national groups will gather to pay tribute to Bishop Ireton, who has directed the memorial masses for the last three years.

Evidence Guild Man To Talk on Encyclicals

John O'Leary, of Notre Dame and Catholic Universities, noted labor lawyer, will compare the labor encyclicals of Leo XIII on "The Condition of Labor," and Pius XI on "The Reconstruction of the Social Order," at the meeting of the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild in Franklin Park, from 3 to 5 p. m. tomorrow. Harry Kirk, president of the guild, will introduce O'Leary. The meeting will be in observance of the anniversary of the issuance of the encyclicals in May, 1891, and May, 1931, respectively.

St. Paul's to Observe 36th Anniversary

At the 11 o'clock services tomorrow the congregation will celebrate the thirty-sixth anniversary of the founding of St. Paul's Methodist Church. They Rev. W. W. McIntyre, district superintendent of the Winchester District of the Virginia Conference and former pastor of St. Paul's, will be the guest preacher. His topic will be "The Gateway of the Kingdom." A memorial will be presented to the church in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Anderson, who were among the earliest members of the congregation.

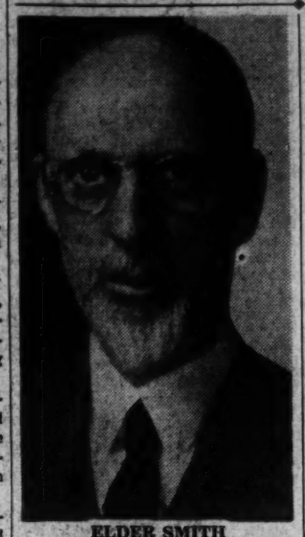
Dr. Darby to Be Guest

Dr. William L. Darby, president of the Washington City Bible Society and formerly executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, will be guest speaker ttomorrow at 11 a. m., at Westminster Memorial Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Harry V. Porter, pastor, is a commissioner to the Presbyterian General Assembly in St. Louis.

Memorial Day Rites

The Rev. J. Frederick Wenchel, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, Sixteenth and Gallatin Streets Northwest, tomorrow at 11 a. m., will lead his congregation in a Memorial Day program. The junior and senior choirs will sing.

Elder Smith Will Attend Two-Day Mormon Conference



ELDER SMITH

Mormons from the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia will meet in Washington today and tomorrow for a conference which will be attended by Elder George Albert Smith, prominent church leader, a national Boy Scout officer and a member of the quorum of 12 apostles of the church, from Salt Lake City.

Public sessions of the conference will be held at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. tomorrow, when Mr. Smith will be the principal speaker. Tomorrow at 8 p. m. a special spring music festival will be held in the Washington Chapel, Sixteenth Street and Columbia Road Northwest, at which the massed choirs of the Washington Stake (Diocese) will participate under the direction of the conductor of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, J. Spencer Cornwall, who will serve as guest conductor.

A general meeting for men of the church will convene at 8 p. m. Saturday evening. Young men of the organization likely to enter the military service will meet at 7 p. m., when addresses will be given on problems they are facing.

Calvary Baptist Elect To Official Boards

The following were elected to the official boards of Calvary Baptist Church at the annual meeting on Wednesday: Board of deacons, J. B. Bain, Donald S. Bliss, H. L. Brooks, E. H. Cox, W. P. Crater, H. L. Fassett, E. M. Gustafson, J. R. Hardesty, H. O. Severance, Howard D. Rees and R. L. Austin; board of trustees, F. R. Mitchell, W. W. Everett, C. H. Cooke, G. Large Handbags This Season's Favorites

White Leads in Color; Mesh and Fabrics Popular

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

ONE GLANCE at the summer handbags shown and the jest that women's purses resemble an overnight bag comes true. Almost any size woman—unless she is quite petite—will be sporting a large handbag this season. And in many cases even the very small woman is not satisfied unless she has a large handbag—so buyers say.

Only two years ago a conversation was overhead wherein a small girl was advised against buying a large bag. She had seen one in a department store and was particularly eager to own it. Her ego was completely deflated, however, when the salesgirl said, "But no, madame. You are much too small. You should have one like this"—whereupon she immediately began to produce all the miniature size bags in the department.

Though times have changed, it is still good taste for the very petite woman to choose at least a medium sized bag. Likewise, a woman who is very tall should not select a small bag. She may carry the largest ones shown. The nubby type fabric bags might also be included as "her type."

Resemble Leather

Fabric bags run the gamut of gay prints and stripes to materials so plain and smooth they almost look like leather. If a woman likes a bag to match each costume, there are a host of unusual prints that would do the trick. On the whole there are more fabric bags this season than last, especially those of the underarm type.

Experts say that what women demand of a summer bag is that it be white and washable. There have been washable leathers for several years, but this year if a salesgirl tells you a bag will wash, you can be certain it will. Besides the smooth finished washable leathers, there is also a pearl finish that cleans very successfully.

Other bags notable for their washing qualities are those of plastic cord, woven or braided plastic, spun glass and mesh—which will be remembered for its popularity last year. Aluminum mesh is preferred by many women because a slightly damp cloth is all that is necessary to restore it to its original beauty.

Although white is the majority preference in handbags, color plays an important part. Never before has the combination of wheat tones and turf tan been so important. In the same color family are the natural rawhide bags with leather trim—also washable. In the plastics can be found an array of almost any pastel color desired.

Tips on Selection

For general pointers in selecting your summer bag, watch these items:

Styling is basically classic with generous sizes in streamline design.

Decorative interest is obtained through the use of some novel trimming detail.

Three designs predominate in preference—underarm envelope with inside metal slide fastening compartment, the draped underarm on composition or plastic frame and the oblong pounch type with top handle.

For contrast in color schemes white is suggested as appropriate with dark sheers or light pastels and colored bags with white outfits.

Summer bags are more perishable than winter ones—therefore it is wise to pay less for them and have more than one. If the budget will permit, one good white bag and several novel colorful ones make the ideal accessory wardrobe.

A white summer handbag that is washable to the nth degree is what every woman wants. Here are two. Left is a Namel-Mesh by Josef in a simply draped underarm style that is superbly flexible. Both the mesh and woven plastic trimming are really washable. Mesh has grown to be the annual summertime demand in a white bag by women. Above is a washable white brain lizard bag by Jenny. It is only one of the many washable smooth and rough texture leathers that are so popular this season.

Blend Lipstick

Hollywood, Calif., May 21.—How's your manpower? Marlene Dietrich, who is starring in a picture known as "Manpower," maintains that any girl can increase her man-appeal by wielding two lipsticks instead of one. Very few feminine mouths, says Miss Dietrich, are perfectly proportioned. The upper lip may be fuller than the lower, or vice versa. To flatter the facial contours, therefore, reproportion the mouth by wearing two shades of lipstick. Use the darker shade on the thinner lip, the lighter shade on the fuller.

Childless, Working Wife of Drafted Man Wonders How To Manage Her Social Life During His Year's Absence? She Tells Need of Male Companionship

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: What do you think the childless, working wife of a drafted man should do about recreation,—during the year or more her husband is away at camp? The average husband seems to feel it would be unfair to have to worry about his wife "stepping out" with other men during the time he is away, serving his country. Yet what other alternative is offered the woman suddenly bereft of her husband's companionship?—when most of her friends are married couples, who are a self sufficient unit, and also inconvenient for an unescorted woman to visit.

The only persons available for constant companionship are unmarried co-workers, who are naturally interested in dating,—which makes dating a requisite if one is to associate with them of evenings. I suppose the ideal wife would immolate herself in study and reading, or in women's club activities, during this time. But supposing a wife were willing to do that,—would it not be a dangerously difficult plan? In such a program, the normal instinct for masculine companionship would have no simple, friendly outlet. And wouldn't it be apt to manifest itself in greater susceptibility to any attractive man who might give evidence of being attracted to her?

After all, our men are given a program of work, constant companionship and "hostesses" to share their recreation (even if they profess no intention to take advantage of it.) But we wives are left with empty homes and decreased incomes,—to support and entertain ourselves as best we can. Your opinions will be appreciated.

DRAFTEE'S WIFE.

Looking for Excuse To Have a 'Fling'

DEAR D. W.: You appear to be in the state of mind of looking for trouble; of wanting to cook up an excuse for having a fling while your husband is away at camp. It seems to me if you had any friends, whom you and your husband had jointly acquired as a social adjunct to your marriage, you would continue to see them from time to time, as a matter of course,—at their homes or your home; in odd numbers (with yourself the odd number) for dinner or the movies, golfing or swimming, for weekend motor trips, or whatever other "recreations" you were accustomed to enjoying with your husband at your side. Your friends (if you have any) aren't going to "let you down" in your husband's absence. On the contrary, they will get an altruistic satisfaction out of doing their bit to see you through this period,—if you show a sporting disposition to make the best of a potentially depressing situation.

The idea you advance, that an emotionally well balanced wife would have a "dangerously difficult time" being punctiliously faithful to her soldier husband during an enforced separation of a year or more, is downright laughable. Apparently you aren't very deeply in love with your husband; or you would know real love, — particularly reciprocal love,—is the greatest of emotional stabilizers. The sense of belonging to someone, which is a concomitant of mutual love (most especially married love), automatically obviates,—for healthy minded persons,—any "great susceptibility" to flirtatious or philandering advances from the most congenial or attractive of would-be interlopers.

Your husband isn't being carted off to a concentration camp, you know. He probably will have the privilege of coming home every other weekend, unless and until there is a drastic change in the status quo,—since the current policy seems to favor fortnightly leave. And, in my opinion, he certainly would be justified in considering himself unfairly, even outrageously, treated by you, if you were to make a practice of "stepping out" in those interims,—on the spoiled-darling theory that in his absence you are entitled to a "stand-in's" companionship, on account of life, to you, gives promise of being intolerable without a man to share your leisure-time pursuits.

How would you like it,—what would you think of his attitude?—if your husband were to inform you that the way he dopes it out, he will have to date other women while off at camp, as a means of protecting himself against some possible siren's enticements? Wouldn't you think his argument didn't make sense? Well, neither does yours.

"An ideal wife" would feel no need to "immolate herself in study and reading, or in women's club activities," while circumstantially divorced from her husband's society. Her sense of devotion to her husband would be heightened in his absence, to the extent that she would find joy in conducting herself in the manner she believed most pleasing to him;—which would mean following approximately the same routine in his absence that she pursued in his company, so that he would be buoyed and reassured by the conviction that he knew, at any given hour, where she was and what she was doing.

This would be morale-building behavior on her part; behavior calculated to bring the marriage safely through the stress and strain of a regrettable separation. Whereas the "fling" you would like to think you are entitled to, in your husband's absence, is calculated to destroy, by subtle corrosion, your emotional dependence upon him, and his trust in you, together with a chivalrous desire and intent to be loyal and faithful to you. Nothing gives a man a greater sense of obligation to his wife than the belief that, in their personal relationship, she is (like Caesar's wife) not only above reproach, but above suspicion of reproach. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be gald to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Woman's Page.

Origin of Needlepoint

A type of embroidery, also known as the tent stitch, which completely covers the ground of a coarse linen or canvas. It may be wol, cotton or silk, though wool needlepoint is thought to have been developed to take the place of woven tapestry and its subjects are often pictorial as are those of tapestry.

Leather Furnishings Are Means Of Giving Color to the Home

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

DON'T you think of 1900 and shudder when we mention leather for furniture and decoration. For today's fashions in leather are a far cry from the fringed leather masterpieces of those days, both in beauty and in practicality. For leather now is available in every subtle coloring including pastel shades, jewel and metallic tones, luggage finishes. And it is washable, doesn't crack and peel, can be had in pliant fabric-soft qualities suitable for curtains as well as upholstery.

A current exhibit suggests many new ideas for using leather in home furnishing. Included was a man's room with a four section sofa in russet leather joined by laced welting. Each sectional chair can be comfortably used alone, and they are ensembled with a contrasting chair in green wool damask and leather.

For a drawing room, a darling wall design of striped canvas, was accented with a dado and pilasters of green leather. In front of an antique mirror mantel there were a pair of love seats with the frames in water-ice-green leather, the upholstery in flowered chintz on a dark green ground. Complementing these a pink canvas sectional settee with deep wool fringe was used with a pair of princess chairs in pink leather upholstery.

In a boudoir, leather contributed luxurious detail—the walls were covered with quilted leather in robin's egg blue studded with tiny mirror baguettes. Lamps on the dressing table were of white kidskin tooled in gold, and the bench was covered in robin's egg blue leather. A chaise longue in flowered chintz with a robbin's egg blue ground added a comfortable detail.

Patent leather walls in buttercup yellow, with silver and brass nail heads, was the background for a modern living room. A white lacquer secretary with drawer fronts of gold slipper leather was flanked by a pair of black glass tables each holding a lamp in gold and white kid.

Other hold-your-breath-ideas in this show included a tablecloth in white kidskin, a Chippendale sofa upholstered in the rich deep tufted leather of old stage coaches, lamps made of polished leather riding boots, white metal furniture with yellow leather upholstery, and a russet leather rug spangled with gold stars.

Ripe Olives Give Harmonious Salad Note

Everyone is making the most of the green things now reaching the markets in increasing quantities. And to put variety into salads, one doesn't stick perennially to lettuce, good as it is, if there is access to other salad greens. A cool, contrasting salad of meaty orange slices against dark green watercress or parsley, along with whole black olives to heighten the contrast is a welcome change.

Ripe olives do a lot for the harmony between salad greens and salad ingredients. The inexpensive sized olives are tender and may be easily pitted for similar salad service. Use the plunger type of small cherry pitter from the 10 cent store. Place the stem of the olive under the plunger for best results.

Exercise Without Tension Gives Supple Figure, Says Skater

By Ida Jean Kain

Having had my eyes opened to how supple a teen age girl can be, I now strongly suspect that most of you youngsters are settling down before you grow up. Can you do a handspring, turn a cartwheel, do the split, or kick higher than your head? Do you ice skate, or even roller skate?

Betty Atkinson, lovely drum majorette in the show "It Happens on Ice," does all these things on ice skates without missing a twirl of her baton. Compared with her, the general run of the girls the same age look stiff and stodgy.

You can't do acrobatics without getting into condition first, so don't attempt any stunts your creaky joints are not equal to. But if you want to feel wonderful and turn into a knockout for looks, you might take a few pointers from Betty.

First of all don't worry about developing bulgy muscles. Betty has been working at exercises, sometimes for hours daily, since the age of four or thereabouts when she started ballet dancing. Later she went on to baton twirling and a couple of year ago took up ice skating. She is as streamlined as they come: Bust measurement, 33 inches; waist, 24 inches; hips, 34 inches. She weighs 108 ounds for her height of 5 feet 3.

Balance Exercises

The secret of preventing overdevelopment of the muscles, she says, is to balance exercises in which the muscles are contracted with the kind that stretches the muscles. She always follows half an hour of ballet with the same amount of tap dancing.

She also learned something the average older woman could practice to great advantage. She learned to use only the muscles actually required for work and to keep tension from spreading to other muscle groups not needed at the time. She has so completely mastered the art of relaxing that she can keep some of her muscles relaxed even while twirling a nine-pound baton.

Betty does a 20-minute limbering up routine every morning that would be a fine figure program for every girl or woman. Here are a few of her favorite exercises.

Bend to Slim Waist

For slimming the waist, she says, nothing can beat sideward—bending. She swings one leg straight out to the side from the hip, pointing toes hard, and bends to the opposite side. She recommends forward bending for flexibility and backward bending to flatten the diaphragm.

To beautify the legs, "strut." You've seen drum majorettes strut—lifting alternate knees chest high, pointing toes down hard, and coming down on the ball of the foot. The steps should be high and short. To slim the hips, simply kick from the hips.

She works out with her baton. You won't want to take that up. But "If a girl wants a good posture and a much better figure," Betty suggests, "why not take up Indian clubs? She could exercise the arm, shoulder and chest muscles with them." The clubs should be swung backward, moving the arms at the shoulders, elbows straight.

You may think you don't have the time for such a routine, but you will discover that regular exercise gives you more energy and that means you can get more done in less time. Betty has so much energy that she not only became a skating star, but made such good marks that there is a scholarship waiting for her at the University of Southern California.

Peanut Butter Muffins

Few persons realize that the peanut began its career as a national food when P. T. Barnum introduced it as a part of the circus. For years the only environment in which peanuts were sold and eaten was at circuses, ball games and other outdoor amusement places.

Even then no one ate peanuts for their food value; it was simply the fun of eating them and the appealing flavor that caused their popularity. Now that the nutritive value of the "goobers" are known, they have become a favorite article of food in the household, and rightfully so.

Peanut butter has long been a favorite for a sandwich spread. Peanut butter cookies, too, are a popular food. And there is a taste thrill to be found when peanut butter is one of the ingredients used in making muffins. Try the following recipe and see what a treat Peanut Butter Muffins can be:

Peanut Butter Muffins—Combine and sift together, ½ cup corn meal, 1 cup flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 tablespoon sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Add 2 tablespoons peanut butter and ¾ cup milk. Stir just enough to make a smooth batter. Fold in 1 well-beaten egg. Bake in well-greased muffin pans or in loaf pan in 400 to 425-degree oven, for 20 to 25 minutes. Top with small pieces of sliced bacon, if desired.

Officialdom Feted At Several Affairs

IT WOULD HAVE BEEN FUN to become invisible and drop in on several interesting groups gathered in the Capital yesterday. Certainly some important matters must have been discussed at the men's luncheon at the Brazilian Embassy for the Governor of Rio de Janeiro and Senhora Peixoto. Aid-to-Britain and defense problems were no doubt the main topics at the dinner Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, gave for Sir Arthur and Lady Salter. And, at the Louis-Baer fight, leading Democrat Joseph Davies shepherded a group of men, all of whom are important in Washington today.

Though yesterday's luncheon at the Brazilian Embassy was a stag affair, little Senora Peixoto was present to take mental notes. She serves as secretary to her father, President Vargas of Brazil, and will report to him on political affairs in the United States. The young Peixotos, who have been traveling about the country after a week's stay in Washington, will be off by plane today to return to Brazil.

Ambassador Martins gathered in for luncheon yesterday Sumner Wells, and Berent Friele. Mr. Friele is the coffee magnate who was drafted to work in Nelson Rockefeller's office of cultural and economic relations with Latin America. His wife is a Brazilian whom he met on one of his many visits in that country.

Last evening the Ambassador and Senhora Martins invited a few friends for an informal dinner in honor of the Peixotos. When the couple were in Washington last month they stayed at the embassy and were feted at a round of parties.

Miss Perkins' Dinner Fetes Salters

Several officials of the National Defense Mediation Board took time off from their heavy schedule to attend Miss Perkins' dinner. Among them was the hard-working chairman, William H. Davis, and Mrs. Davis. The party took place at the 1925 F Street Club.

Sir Arthur Salter is here on a shipping mission for the British government, but Washington is an old story to his wife. She lived here as Mrs. Arthur Bullard, wife of a correspondent, and her home on California Street is now leased to Secretary Perkins.

The Chief of Staff and Mrs. George C. Marshall were among the dinner guests. Justice Harlan Fiske Stone sat at the right of the hostess and Mrs. Stone was also present. Charles Wyzanski, a familiar face in Washington during early New Deal days, was another guest. He served as solicitor to the Labor Department when Miss Perkins was first named as Secretary. Now he is one of the alternates of the Mediation Board, as is another of the guests, Roger Lapham, of San Francisco. Mrs. Lapham accompanied him to the party. Thomas Finletter, of New York, recently named special assistant to Secretary Hull; Mrs. Finletter, Miss Mabel Boardman and Coleman Jennings were others present.

Harry Hopkins In Davies' Party

Harry Hopkins, whose job keeps him too busy for much social life, took time out for the fight last night. He was in Mr. Davies' party, all of whom had dinner at the Davies home on Foxhall Road. Others glimpsed in the group were William S. Knudsen, Donald Nelson and William L. Batt, of O. P. M. Jean Hersholt, the movie actor, who, like Mr. Knudson, was born in Denmark, also was a guest. The Secretary of Commerce, Jesse Jones; Winthrop Aldrich, of New York, Steve Early, secretary to President Roosevelt; Stewart MacDonald, former Federal Housing Administrator and Sidney Weinberg rounded out the party.

One of several small and informal dinners given last night was Mrs. Arthur Fowler's. She entertained 10 friends at the house of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Bramwell in Georgetown, which she took over when Countess Zoppola, who had been living there, left for the North a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Fowler will take an active part in the rally to be held Monday afternoon at the Larz Anderson House by the Women's Voluntary Services. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Elsa Maxwell and Movie Actress Irene Dunne are among the speakers scheduled.

Town to Have New Legation

For the two legations which Washington lost when Austria and Albania were absorbed by Germany and Italy, it gains two more. The Australians are by now thoroughly established here and now comes the news that the government of New Zealand is about to open a legation. The Hon. Frank Langstone, who arrives this morning with a distinguished group of his countrymen, will have charge of making the arrangements.

Mr. Langstone is a prominent member of his country's Labor government. Accompanying him is the Right Hon. J. G. Coates, member of the New Zealand war cabinet and former Prime Minister.

The couple made their trip from the other end of the world by plane. Both the British Embassy and the Australian Legation are expected to offer some sort of entertaining to the visitors. But they'll wait to consult with them this morning before setting a date.

Shower Planned For Brides-to-Be

Mrs. Robert V. Fleming will entertain at a miscellaneous shower and tea on Tuesday afternoon at her home on Wyoming Avenue. Guests of honor will be her niece, Miss Nancy Kite, who will be married to Ralph Stanard, of Mobile, Ala., on June 10, at St. Albans Church, and Miss Nancy Hoskinson. The wedding of Miss Hoskinson to James O'Grady will take place June 11 at the Sulgrave Club.

The mothers of the two brides-to-be, Mrs. Harry A. Kite and Mrs. Hilleary Hoskinson, will pour at the tea.

William Lacys Give Dinner For John Hamms

Mr. and Mrs. William S. B. Lacy had a few friends dining with them last night in honor of John Hamm, deputy of Leon Henderson, and Mrs. Hamm. Others at dinner were Sir Quintin Hill, of the British Food Mission, and Mme. Emmanuel Lombard. A few other friends came in afterward.

Mrs. Lacy, who is English, is feeling cheered these days because she has just received a letter from her brother, an engineer in Egypt. Mr. Lacy reports that the Italians' hearts just aren't in their work and that they are delightfully easy to capture.

Daughter Born To the W. B. Pages

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Biddle Page announce the birth of a daughter, Mary DeBlois Page, on May 16, in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Page, who has visited here frequently, is the former Miss Helen Emlen Cresson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Caleb Cresson, of Oakland Hall, Oaks, Pa. She was presented at the Bachelors' cotillion in Baltimore several seasons ago and made her debut in Philadelphia the same year.

MISS JEAN VAN HOUTEN MILLER

Miss Miller Plights Troth

Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Lavan Miller, of Eleven Cedars, Beltsville, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jean Van Houten Miller, to William Spencer, jr., of Albuquerque, N. Mex., son of Dr. and Mrs. William S. Sharp.

The wedding will take place on June 7 at 8:30 p. m. at the Emmanuel Methodist Church in Beltsville. The Rev. Glenn G. Cooper will officiate.

The bride's three sisters will be her attendants, Miss Suzanne Dewhirst Miller will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Mrs. John Taylor Fisher, of New York, and Mrs. Wayne Phillip Ellis, jr., of Philadelphia.

Miss Miller attended Sidwell Friends' School here and was graduated from the University of Maryland, where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Sharp was graduated from the University of New Mexico and is a member of Kappa Alpha. He is now superintendent of laboratories at the Washington Institute of Technology at College Park, Md.

A. Ogden Pierrots Give Dinner For Col. Zanni

Mrs. and Mrs. A. Ogden Pierrot, who make their home at the Wardman Park Hotel, entertained at dinner in the Colonial room there Thursday evening in honor of Col. Pedro Zanni, Air and Military Attache of the Argentine Embassy, and Senora de Zanni, who are returning shortly to Buenos Aires after being stationed at the embassy here for three years.

Others who attended the dinner and went on afterward to the Metronome room for supper dancing were the First Secretary of the Embassy, Carlos A. Pardo, and Senora de Pardo; Lieut. Comdr. Carlos Ribero and Senora de Ribero, Gen. Fernando Melgar, of the Peruvian air force, who is visiting in Washington at the present time; Senora Theresa de Ola Ve Goya, Col. Armando Revoredo, Air Attache of the Peruvian Embassy, and Senora de Revoredo, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Stocker, Mr. and Mrs. J. Parker Van Zandt and Mr. and Mrs. Christian M. Ravndal.

Ritters Entertain

Col. and Mrs. William L. Ritter entertained at a small cocktail party yesterday afternoon in their home on Broad Branch Road.

Show Today To Aid Britain

A fashion show and tea for the benefit of British War Relief will take place this afternoon in the new ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel at 3:30 p. m. The event has been arranged under the sponsorship of the Service Guild of Washington.

Members of the Guild, who will wear original models brought down from New York by Weinberger's, Inc., include Mrs. Arthur T. Llon, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. Alexander Wolf, jr., Mrs. Norman Gerstenfeld. Miss Lorraine Seon, Mrs. J. H. Rosenbaum, Mrs. Samuel Pocker and Mrs. Cordia Danzansky.

Small, old-fashioned bouquets donated by Gude's will be sold. Proceeds from this and the fashion show will be toward helping the British victims of bombings.

Sidney's orchestra will play during the fashion show and tea. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Margaret Hill To Make Debut At Tea June 7

Four days after she receives her diploma from the National Cathedral School on June 3, Miss Margaret Hill will make her bow to society at a tea given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hill, at their home on River Road, Bethesda, Md. The party on June 7 will mark one of the first debuts of the season.

An accomplished equestrienne, Miss Hill hopes to go to Saranac, N. Y., later in the season to attend some horse shows, but definite plans for that trip will be held in abeyance until after her debut. Several other parties also are being planned for her.

Mary L. Higgins To Wed June 7

Mr. and Mrs. John Woodman Higgins have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Charles Wilding-White on Saturday, June 7, at 4 o'clock at the First Unitarian Church in Worcester, Mass. A reception will follow at the Higgins home

The bride made her debut in Washington several years ago at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Ernest Angell, who was then Mrs. Higgins Chapin. Mr. Wilding-White is the brother of Alexander Wilding-White, of Washington, who will be an usher at the ceremony.

Elsa Maxwell, Irene Dunne To Be 'Dined'

Karricks to Fete Miss Margot Lee And Her Fiance

Mr. and Mrs. James Karrick will entertain at a dinner on Saturday, June 7, in honor of Miss Margot Lee and her fiance, Walter B. Mahony, jr. The party will take place at the Chevy Chase Club.

On Sunday, June 8, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson will fete the couple and their wedding party at a cocktail party. Mrs. Wilson is Mr. Mahony's sister. Miss Lee and Mr. Mahony will be married on Monday, June 9, at All Souls' Memorial Church, the Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiating. Mrs. Wilson will be one of the bridesmaids.

Miss Lee and her mother, Mrs. Cazenove G. Lee, are spending the weekend in New York. They will return tomorrow evening.

Party to Be Given By Mrs. Simonds

Mrs. Frank Simonds will entertain at a mint julep party on Tuesday afternoon in the garden of her home in Georgetown, where the roses are in full bloom.

At the party plans will be discussed for a benefit concert here June 4 to raise funds for the Polish hospital in Edinburgh. Mrs. Simonds is chairman of the Washington committee.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

A DISTINGUISHED visitor to Washington, is Baroness Bertha Gevers, whose husband was for many years Netherlands Minister to Germany. Baroness Gevers—the name is pronounced "Havers"—has been staying with the former United States Minister to the Hague and Mrs. George Gordon at their home on New Hampshire Avenue. The Baroness, who makes her home in New York now, is considered "doyenne" of the Dutch colony there.

The other evening the Gordons entertained informally at dinner, taking their guests later to the lecture by Andre Maurios. Among those dining with them was Mrs. John R. Williams, who owns the house they now occupy and who was thoroughly enjoying being a guest in her own house.

Representative and Mrs. Richard Wigglesworth were there, she looking charming in sheer black with a white frill outlining the square neckline and giving the effect of little wings. Representative Wigglesworth made his adieux after dinner and went home to work, as did Brig. Lindemann, of the British Embassy. Mrs. Bertram Long was attractive in a summer print and our hostess wore chiffon in tones of mauve and deep rose, which set off her delicate coloring to perfection.

Besides Brigadier Lindemann, extra men present were Lammot Belin—Mrs. Belin was ill—Percy Blair and Wayne G. Jackson, who has come down from New York to work with Mr. Gordon at the State Department.

ONE OF THE MOST delightful gardens in Georgetown is that of Baron and Baroness James Baeyens, where they entertained the other afternoon in honor of the new Counselor of the French Embassy and Mme. Georges-Picot. Two buffets and plenty of small tables and chairs were placed about the lawn and under the magnificent oaks. Someone remarked that the finest of these oaks should be crowned king of Washington's trees and wondered why the District Commissioners don't organize a tree festival, with the citizens of different blocks and people with private gardens offering their candidates for the crown. Baroness Baeyens and Mme. Georges-Picot stood together in the garden to receive the guests. Baroness Baeyens wore a long frock of white organdy embroidered in a lacy pattern, while Mme. Georges-Picot chose black, set off with fascinating jewelry of heavy turquoise matrix. Baron Baeyens and M. Georges-Picot circulated among the guests, who numbered most of the French Embassy staff, as well as many other diplomats and Washingtonians from Army, Navy and residential circles.

Senora de Espil was very smart in a blue and brown print with a hat of the same colors and had matched her brown alligator pumps with a good-looking alligator handbag. Senhora de Martins wore sheer brown with a small white hat and parried compliments on her looks by saying that she is exercising with Professor Siposs, her dual role of sculptress and hostess of an embassy not being enough for her energies.

POPULAR Mrs. Robert Low Bacon was the center of a group of friends, as was Countess de Limur. Mrs. Hamilton Bryan was amusing and gay as always, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feis were surrounded as soon as they put in an appearance. Princess Franz Josef Windisch-Gratz was accompanied by Baroness Kurt Pantz, who said that Baron Pantz would come down from New York over the weekend to see the National Gallery of Art.

Others glimpsed here and there about the Baeyens' garden were Bea Phillips and her cousin, Theodora Sedgewick, of Boston; Cecelia and Marie vom Rath, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Adams, Edith W. and Mary Wright, Count and Countess Lasocka and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark. Also present were the Corbin sisters, Dolly and Edythe Ann; Ruth Overton, Countess de Gramont, Mrs. Hawes Moore, David and Pauline Le Breton, Commander William D. Thomas, Jacques de Thier, of the Belgian Embassy, Mrs. James Clement Dunn and a number of others.

Lieut. C. A. Kenny And Bride Tour Southwest Area

Lieut. and Mrs. Charles A. Kenny, who were married May 5 at Las Cruces, N. Mex., are now on an extended motor trip through Arizona and New Mexico. They will make their home in El Paso, where Lieut. Kenny is with the Twentieth Coast Artillery Anti-aircraft Regiment, stationed at Fort Bliss.

The bride is the former Miss Helen Berberich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Berberich, of Washington. She attended the Academy of the Holy Cross and the Washington School for Secretaries.

Lieut. Kenny, who is the son of Mrs. Stelle J. Kenny, of Pittsburgh, attended the Universities of Wisconsin and Pittsburgh.

Howard Eager, Jr., To Wed Miss Conger

Of interest here is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Conger, of Staunton, Va., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothea Parsons Conger, to Howard Eager, jr., son of Col. Eager, U. S. A., and Mrs. Eager, of Norfolk, Va., and Washington. The wedding will take place June 4.

Miss Conger was graduated from Stuart Hall in 1937 and is a senior at Duke University, where she was recently chosen May queen. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Randolph Tatum, of Richmond, Va., and a descendant of Capt. Nathaniel Tatum, who settled in Virginia in 1619. She is a great-granddaughter of William Parsons, third Earl of Rosse, the Irish astronomer.

Mr. Eager was graduated in 1939 from Duke, where he has been doing graduate work. His father is military attache at the United States Embassy in Madrid. He is a grandson of the late Assistant Surgeon General John McCauley Eager and Mrs. Eager, of Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. A. I. duPont Returns Home

Mrs. Alfred I. duPont returned to her home in Wilmington, Del., yesterday after a brief visit here with Col. and Mrs. Charles F. Martin. The latter entertained at a dinner Thursday evening in honor of Mrs. duPont.

The party took place at the Army Navy Club. The ranking guest was the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih. Among others were Senator and Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Styles Bridges, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker, Gen. Allen W. Gullion, and Col. and Mrs. Henry T. Allen, jr.

Bloedorns To Receive G. W. Students

Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, dean of the George Washington University School of Medicine, and Mrs. Bloedorn will receive in honor of the senior medical class of George Washington University tomorrow afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Greeting guests with Dr. and Mrs. Bloedorn will be I. Ray Howard, president of the class, and Mrs. Howard. Among those who will assist at tea tables will be Mrs. Cloyd H. Marvin, Mrs. Adolph Berle, Mrs. Ross T. McIntire, Mrs. Joseph H. Roe, Mrs. Howard F. Kane, Mrs. Winfred Overholser, Mrs. Charles Stanley White, Mrs. Charles R. Mann, Miss Catherine Breen, Miss Rachel Horak, Mrs. Willard Ash.

Also, Miss Isabella F. Young, Mrs. Paul F. Dickens, Mrs. J. Lawn Thompson, sr., Mrs. Chester Wells, Mrs. Daniel L. Borden, Mrs. Paul S. Putzki, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr and Mrs. Frederick Reuter.

Fairfax Pastor, Bride at Home

The Rev. and Mrs. B. Marshall White-Hurst, whose wedding took place recently, are at home in Fairfax, Va. The bride is the former Miss Viola Virginia Hailman, Miss Viola Virginia Hailman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Hailman, of Fairfax. The Rev. White-Hurst, who is pastor of the Fairfax Baptist Church, where the wedding took place, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. B. White-Hurst, of Richmond.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Solon B. Cousins, of the University of Virginia. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white lace and a finger-tip veil which was held with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Velma Elizabeth Hailman was maid of honor and only attendant of her sister. She wore a frock of pink marquisette over peach taffeta and a short pink veil held in place by flowers which matched her arm bouquet of mixed flowers. Bernard Whaley, of Richmond, was best man and ushers included Raymond Burton, Bert Adams, Edwin Fouche and Hubert and Eugene Hailman, brothers of the bride.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, and the couple later left on a Southern motor trip.

A Son Is Born To Mrs. Winters

Mrs. Owen B. Winters announces the birth of a son on May 22 at the Woman's Hospital, New York City. The child will be named Owen B., for his father, the late Mr. Winters.

Mrs. Winters is the former Mrs. Louise Gwynn Turnure. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynn, of Washington.

Elizabeth Warner Engaged to Wed

Dr. and Mrs. Harold Ellsworth Warner, of Takoma Park, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Anne, to H. Edmund Stiles, son of the Rev. and Mrs. William H. Stiles, of Dundee, Ill.

Both Miss Warner and Mr. Stiles are seniors at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio. No date has been set for the wedding.

Voteless League Convenes

Reports Heard, Officers Installed At D. C. Group's Annual Session

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor

A roundup of activities in all departments of the Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters was presented to the membership at its annual all-day meeting yesterday at Vacation Lodge of the Y. W. C. A., Cherrydale, Va. Mrs. Max O. Lorenz, the president, presided until the installation of new officers.

Mrs. Eugene Callaghan, who succeeded her, paid tribute to the accomplishments of her administration. Mrs. Callaghan and other officers on the slate were elected without opposition. They included Mrs. Girard Reilly, second vice president; Mrs. Edna Johnston, who succeeds herself as treasurer; Miss Mary Anderson and Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, directors. Other officers are elected on alternate years.

In each department, the chairman reviewed briefly the problems, State and national, which have been studied by the various committees, and in many instances made recommendations growing out of the study. The department of government and social welfare, of which Mrs. Henry P. Chandler is chairman, pointing out that the most effective "reforms" could be accomplished by working with and not against the man on the job, made three specific recommendations. They were:

In public health nursing for at least ten additional nurses, an educational director and more adequate transportation allowance for field nurses.

In relief, for the removal of the arbitrary maximum which, by fixing a grant less than that required for decent existence prevents rehabilitation and ultimate self-support; for an increase in the total appropriation to permit emergency aid to employables, and for a staff large enough to do efficient work.

Governmental responsibility for health service has been studied intensively and a comprehensive report prepared, with recommendations that the league intensify its study of health needs and that the committee recommend to the league board for future consideration and indorsement of the principles of invalidity insurance, and of specific bills extending hospital facilities in areas of special need. Indorsement by the league of a Northwest health center and of the continuation of the WPA housekeeping aids projects also were secured.

The department of government and education, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Francis M. Walters, jr., reported four field trips made during the season in the study of vocational training in the District. It recommended that the vocational schools be rated as senior high schools and that students have opportunity to continue their high school work while training for a trade. The report stressed the need for a new building for Abbot Vocational School for boys and stated that the league, with other civic groups, would appear at hearings to indorse the Brentwood Park site for the new school.

The department of government and foreign policy, of which Mrs. C. S. Duncan is chairman, reported that it had cooperated with the national league in its support of the Lease-Lend Bill and in an "all out" educational campaign on the fundamentals of American foreign policy.

Cooperation with Latin America also was studied over a long period. The report called for the unity and action of the whole league on national defense.

The report of the department of government and its operation under Mrs. Joseph Low included preparation of a flier on District suffrage last November; publication of a pamphlet called "Citizens Without a Vote," and preliminary work on a more comprehensive booklet on suffrage. The department also was active in the suffrage campaign, testifying at hearings and interviewing Congressmen.

Federation Plans Three-Year Effort for Total Defense

Atlantic City, N. J., May 23.—Total national defense will be the primary concern of the General Federation of Women's Clubs for the next three years Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, announced tonight as she was installed as president, succeeding Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, of Portland, Oreg., at the close of the triennial convention.

She proposed a program in which the federation would take the initiative for women's part in national defense, asking all other women's organizations to join in the movement.

It was her plan that the combined groups select their own coordinator for every county and large city in the United States. They would conduct volunteer registration, deal with nutrition and consumer problems, provide training in nursing and first aid, aviation, including ground work, detecting hostile planes and piloting; see that training in agriculture and first aid is given to women and promote Americanism programs to combat Fifth Columnists and the Nazi "softening up" process.

Sees Socialistic Trend

Mrs. Whitehurst further pledged herself to do all in her power to work for representative government in the United States "because I believe we are tending to some form of socialism." She expressed herself as opposed to "any form of dictatorship whether by an individual or a group."

The third part of the program she outlined is to be an effort "to turn our people back to the church." It is a known fact," she said, "that 50 per cent of our young people receive no religious training. In a number of States the school authorities will not permit even the reading of the Bible in school."

The acceptance speech of the new president was broadcast following the fiftieth anniversary dinner of the federation at which nearly $75,000 in "birthday gifts" was presented to its million dollar foundation fund, the interest from which will be used for conducting the federation's work.

Assistant Secretary of State Adolph A. Berle, jr., who addressed the federation this afternoon, commended the convention for its adoption of two emergency resolutions, one approving aid for nations resisting totalitarian aggression, and the other in support of the national defense program and opposing "all unwarranted activities which tend to hinder the progress of total defense for the United States."

Urges Positive Action

Mr. Berle declared his absolute confidence in the outcome of the present struggle and said that "even in Europe there is an awareness that the whole structure will break down of its own weight before very long. But, if this is to occur, it must be done because of positive acts on our part; and it will happen through an endless amount of courage and hard work."

"Unless I misread the signs," he said, "the whole American Nation is rapidly becoming unified. Plenty of people have tried to divide it. They have had a fair hearing and the attempt to divide has already failed. As increasingly they realize the overwhelming significance of the American attitude a steadfast and stern resolve emerges to prevent the success of a world system which at length would spell disaster not only to American life but to the hopes and desires of uncounted millions throughout the world."

Other speakers were the Rev. Vincent C. Donovan, director of the Catholic Thought Association, who urged the women to carry on, and William L. Batt, deputy director of the production division of the Office of Production Management, who warned them against hoarding.

Every effort is being made to preserve normalcy, he said, and the country is in much better shape than at the time of the World War.

Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, of Richmond, was elected second vice president in the run-off vote.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, new president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs

New Leader Speeds D. A. R. Defense Effort

A speeding up of the national defense program of the Daughters of the American Revolution was urged today by Mrs. William H. Pouch, president general, as one of the first moves of her administration.

Every member of the national society, which is 150,000 strong, with more than 2,500 chapters throughout the country, will be enlisted in this total aid to defense, Mrs. Pouch said.

Thousands of replies are being received at national headquarters to the membership roll call for defense, which was sent out immediately following the continental congress, and in which the qualifications of members are listed. They include foreign languages, professional services, nursing, clerical work, driving automobiles, sewing and cooking.

In addition too this, the D. A. R. has its own program for aiding the service men in the various military and naval camps throughout the country, and this work will be carried on in cooperation with similar welfare programs in their communities.

"We stand ready to give every cooperation through our own channels," said Mrs. Pouch, "by establishing a program of patriotic war work. Every member is stating her qualifications for aiding our defense and her readiness to undertake the tasks in her own community for which she is best fitted.

P.-T. Congress To Meet 2 Days

School hours will be kept by delegates who attend the annual convention of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. They will register at 8:30 a. m. and remain in session until 4 p. m., with only time out for lunch.

Elections will take place Wednesday with Mrs. P. C. Ellett going in without opposition as president, to succeed Mrs. C. D. Lowe, who has served for the past two years.

The Tuesday program will open with music by the Anacostia Junior-Senior High School Orchestra, under the direction of Lieut. Manoly; an entrance procession of the officers and committee chairmen, and the invocation by the Rev. Fred Buschmeyer, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Following the morning session, devoted to reports of officers, the afternoon program will include an address by Mrs. S. C. Cox, regional vice president of the National Congress; music by the Mothersingers under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Reynolds and a panel on "Home—wherein we should learn and practice the rights and responsibilities of the individual in a republic." Dr. Mitchell Dreese, of George Washington University, will act as coordinator. Those participating will be Dr. Harry A. Jager, chief of Occupational Information and Guidance Service in the Office of Education, who will discuss "The Rights of Children in Our Public Schools and Their Responsibilities," Mrs. John R. Murdock, wife of Representative Murdock, of Arizona, who will speak from the standpoint of a mother; Mrs. Irene Caldwell, of the Camp Fire Girls, and Mrs. Harry Kramer, of the Girl Scouts, who will tell how these organizations teach rights and privileges, and Dr. Paul Schearer, on "The Community's Responsibility Toward Its Children."

On Wednesday morning there will be selections by the Woodridge Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Donald Prince, and an address by Dr. Hugh Bone of the University of Maryland on "Propaganda and How It Can Be Recognized." Mrs. Lowe and Mrs. Alma Hudson will alternate in presiding.

Honor roll certificates will be awarded by Mrs. George Lingebach and awards of Parent-Teacher scrolls will be made by Mrs. C. C. Hines.

The annual fellowship dinner will be Wednesday night at the Willard Hotel.

Envoys' Wives Entertained

The Congressional Club, climaxing a season of active interest in Pan Americanism, yesterday entertained at tea at the clubhouse on New Hampshire Avenue, in honor of wives of heads of missions of the Latin-American Republics.

Miniature flags of all of the republics decorated the tea table, forming a border around the center bouquet of red and white carnations. Alternating in pouring were Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. Harold Finley, Miss Minerva Bernardino, vice chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women; Mrs. Emilio G. Collado and Mrs. Paul C. Daniels. Mrs. Sterling Cole was at the punch bowl.

Mrs. John Taber, president of the club, was unable to be present, because of illness. Those who formed the receiving line were Mrs. Charles Plumley, of Vermont, acting president; Mrs. Dow Harter, of Ohio, Mrs. Herron Pearson, of Tennessee; Mrs. Homer D. Angell, of Oregon; Mrs. Harry B. Coffee, of Nebraska; Mrs. Charles R. Clason, of Massachusetts, and Mrs. John Sparkman, of Alabama.

The Latin-American guests were greeted by a committee of hostesses as they arrived. Among those who came early were Senora de Guachalla, wife of the Minister of Bolvia; Senora de Castro, wife of the Minister of El Salvador, and Senorita Elena Castro; Senora de Recinos, wife of the Guatemalan Minister, who arrived with Senora de DeBayle, wife of the Nicaraguan Minister; Senora de Caceras, wife of the Honduran Minister, and Senora de Garland and Senora de Elguera, of the Peruvian Embassy.

The hostess committee included Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, Mrs. John R. Murdock, Mrs. Albert Thomas, Mrs. Robert Kean, Mrs. John W. Gwynne, Mrs. Joseph A. Herbert, jr., and Mrs. Thomas E. Martin.

Electrical Storm Brings Little Relief as 93-Degree Heat Fells Four

Interior Building Hit— Capt. H. O. Richardson examines damage done by lightning bolt that struck the North Building of the Interior Department during yesterday's sudden thunderstorm. Several large stones were knocked from the roof to the street below

Lightning Strikes Interior Building; Man Watches Bolt As It Hits Him

A short-lived electrical storm crashed into Washington heat of 93 degrees yesterday afternoon, bringing a brief rain, the promise of cooler weather today, and leaving damage in its wake.

Before the storm struck four persons were taken to hospitals for treatment with heat prostration. In the storm two dwellings were hit by lightning and a cornice was knocked from the North Interior Department Building, just above the office of Housing Administrator Nathan Straus. No one was hurt.

Fair with moderate temperature was the forecast for today and tomorrow. Yesterday's high of 93 was recorded at 2:10 p. m.

Rain Is Light

Yesterday's storm crept up from black clouds in the southwest, gave lengthy notice of its coming and on arrival over the city unloosed only some forty-hundredths of an inch of rain—not enough to dampen the drought which actually originated last December.

Dr. J. B. Kincer, of the United States Weather Bureau, interpreted the statistics. If Washington, he said, had to haul in the water it has lacked since December 1, 1940, the haul would total 38,000,000 tons, on the basis of normal rainfall. It would require 90 trains a day for 174 days, and the trains would be of 50 cars each with each car carrying 50 tons of water.

Scientists attending what is left of the Arlington Agricultural Center, since the Army took over the land, also described the drought's effect. One pointed yesterday to a stand of barley 12 inches high, when at this time it should be up 36 inches. "To use a hoe on the ground is like scraping brick," it was said. The long dry weather has made fissures like lightning streaks in the hard ground.

Lightning Memorable

The brief rain didn't touch the surface yesterday, it was said. But the lightning was memorable. At 3:06 p. m., the radio static grew so intense that all police radio patrol cars were called to their stations. During the lull, Private Henry Heflin, radio dispatcher at the Tenth Police Precinct station, Park Road Northwest between Sherman Street and Georgia Avenue, looked from the window at the lightning antics. He was bowled over by a bolt that struck the antenna, but was not hurt.

The patrol cars were in 17 minutes. Meanwhile, lightning hit the stone chimney of the house at 4347 Brandywine Street Northwest, leaped under the eaves and tore up the plastering and laths in the ceiling. Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Braga, the owners, weren't home.

Again lightning tore brick from the chimney of the home of J. Herbert DuVall, 4512 Forty-fifth Street Northwest, and in the 5600 block of Chevy Chase Parkway it set wires to sputtering until firemen came and extinguished the burning insulation.

Four Felled by Heat

It knocked down two trees, one at Ninth and A Streets Southeast, the other on Eighth Street between P and Q Streets Northwest.

Overcome by the heat before the storm, George Riley, 69, 1411 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest; William O'Connor, 50, Rosslyn, Va., and Charles Mellen, 62, 806 I Street Northwest were treated at Emergency Hospital. Johnson Small, 37, colored, 1800 Vermont Avenue Northwest, was treated for prostration at Georgetown Hospital.

Cornice Falls 7 Stories

Administrator Straus was not in his office when the bolt struck the roof. Some of the cornice, of heavy stonework, fell into the street seven stories below but no one was passing the Nineteenth and E Street corner at the time.

The rainfall as of yesterday at 8 a. m. was 61 per cent of normal. For the same period in 1930, it was about 58 per cent and that was said to be the worst anyone remembered.

In midst of the heat yesterday, the drinking water, which was hooked up with the air-cooling system which wasn't on, was cut off in the new Municipal Center. Many suffered of thirst.

Farm crops in the rich lower Valley of Virginia were said yesterday to be seriously threatened by the drought. With temperatures in the high nineties and with a subnormal amount of rainfall, many small grains and other shallow-rooted crops already have suffered and prospects are that wheat will be short if relief is long delayed. Barley is heading in many fields a few inches above the soil, a dispatch from Winchester, Va., said.

Drought's Effect— This field of barley at the Arlington Experimental Farm, which should be waist-high, is actually only 12 inches. While some of the other grains appear normal, the stand is not as heavy as it should be

Chimney Struck— Fireman removes debris from the roof after lightning struck the stone chimney of the house at 4347 Brandywine Street Northwest. The bolt streaked under the eaves, tore plastering and lath from the ceiling. Residents Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Braga were not at home

Battered Booths and Exhibits— Community Chest President Coleman Jennings pitched in with Boy Scouts Kenneth Harris and James Hills to save what they could of the storm-battered booths at yesterday's rain-swept fiesta

Rainstorm Dampens Fiesta, But Not Mrs. Roosevelt

A light-hearted fiesta with South American flavor was suddenly transformed into the semblance of a devastated village yesterday afternoon, when a thunder shower toppled booths and canopies and ended the Community Chest's annual outdoor party and exhibit on the grounds of the Charles Carroll Glover estate.

But even the weather did not keep Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt from making her scheduled appearance. As the rain halted and as dampened visitors were filtering away, Mrs. Roosevelt's car rolled up to the home at 4300 Massachusetts Avenue. This was about 4:15.

The reception committee, hardly epecting her to appear after such interference by the weather, was not in line to greet her. But Chest leaders reassembled for the purpose hastily. In her 15-minute visit she saw the green lawns strewn with dampened canopies and colored paper decorations which only an hour before had presented a carnival scene.

The booths and exhibits were so battered that no attempt will be made to hold the fiesta Monday, as had been planned in case of rain.

Approximately 500 children—many in colorful costumes—were singing, dancing, playing games, making handicrafts and otherwise animating the exhibits of various Chest agencies, as the clouds rolled up. About 1,000 visitors had gathered around the Glover residence, with several thousand more expected during the afternoon.

As the rain struck about 2:45, the crowd fled for shelter, but some of the children lingered to try to save the exhibits which they had worked so hard to decorate. Boy Scouts tugged at the ropes of the canopies, trying to tether them more securely. Girls in brilliant colored skirts and blouses of Latin-American style ran to shelter to save their costumes. Colored balloons broke their moorings and floated heavily away under the pelting rain.

Mrs. Chauncey G. Parker, jr., and several other women took refuge in a Health Security Administration ambulance, as the crowd ran for their autos or for the Glover home. A damp chorus of children at the house sang "God Bless America" after their first dismay at the fiesta's ruin cleared away.

Only the tumbling team of the Y. M. C. A. seemed fittingly attired for the occasion. In shorts, they resumed their performance after the rain.

Mrs. Roosevelt talked with Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Chest, about the importance of meeting home needs, such as those represented by the Chest. Among others meeting Mrs. Roosevelt was Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, chairman of the Community Chest League which sponsored the fiesta.

Coleman Jennings, president of the Chest, said the fiesta, even though cut short, was worthwhile because of the cooperative effort that went into it. Officials did not attempt to estimate the loss, because many of the exhibits were fashioned of inexpensive materials, on which however, much work had been lavished.

On the theme, "For Good Neighbors at Home," the fiesta was enlivened by a group of girls from "good neighbor" countries to the south. Mme. Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, was chairman of the committee to arrange representation from the other Americas at the fete.

Sees Film and Then Repents

Moved to repentance after viewing a showing of the moving picture: "Boys Town," a 16-year-old youth gave himself up to Montgomery County Police at Silver Spring and confessed holding up a bus driver at Forest Glen nearly a year ago. Sergt. Earl H. Burdine and State's Attorney Ben G. Wilkinson said they would try to give the repentant youth a "break."

Isn't It Always the Way?

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Stratton, chief clerk of Montgomery County Selective Service Board No. 3 at Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Md., Recreation Center, has been working 16 hours a day trying to keep up with the work of the board. Yesterday she went to an oculist to have her eyes, which are showing the strain, treated. In the two hours she was absent, two inspectors appeared.

Hunter Hits Recreation Concessions

Contends Leasing Play Attractions For Profit Is Not In Public Interest

Leasing of public recreation facilities by private concessionaires "at a profit" was attacked yesterday by Representative John F. Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman of the District Recreation Subcommittee.

Without mentioning golf and swimming pool concessions in Washington parks and recreation centers, Hunter declared the practice "fundamentally wrong." He interjected the opinion during hearings on legislation proposing reforms in the administration of play facilities here.

The subcommittee session, attended also by Representative Stephen Bolles (Republican), of Wisconsin, heard from Henry I. Quinn, former member of the Board of Education, a charge that "propaganda" of Federal officials blocked a proposal that recreation control be unified under the school administration.

James E. Schwab gave the subcommittee the Board of Trade's indorsement of a bill to centralize recreation control in a nine-member board of officials and citizens.

Urges "Unselfish Control"

The measure, he said, puts public interest ahead of the interest of recreation personnel and would give the city "unselfish control" of its play facilities.

Quinn advocated establishment of a recreation director under jurisdiction of the Board of Education. He declared:

"Ask Dr. Ballou (Dr. Frank W. Ballou, school superintendent) his honest opinion of a solution to this problem, and he will tell you the plan I am advocating today.

"Col. McCoach (Col. David McCoach, jr., former Engineer Commissioner) will tell you this is his first love, but that he's been sold on the idea that you can't get it through Congress."

"If the parks (officials) want to keep bridle paths and golf courses which they have leased out to concessionaires, let them," Quinn declared, emphasizing that his chief interest was in recreation for children.

"Needs a Free Board"

"The trouble with Federal officials is that they have come to look upon land acquired for the District as 'our land,'" Quinn said.

Schwab declared that recreation is "too big" to be made subordinate to education and contended that if the school board had jurisdiction the recreation budget would be made secondary to school needs.

"Recreation needs something like million-dollar figures to put it on its feet," he stated. "It needs a free board capable of making known its requirements."

"We are not afraid of the Parks office. It has been perfectly fair and decent before and there is no reason to suppose it will be otherwise."

Schwab referred to complaints about the present recreation administration and said:

"You will always have complaints. When the complaints stop we'll know that Hitler has arrived."

The hearings will be resumed at 10 a. m. Monday, Representative Hunter announced last night.

Park Board Backs Plan For Subway

Grade Separation At South Capitol And Portland Streets Also Approved

Two revised projects under the Whitehurst highway planning survey—a grade separation at Portland and South Capitol Streets Southeast and an underground street car terminal at Fourteenth and C Streets Southwest—yesterday received approval of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Meeting for the first time since April 23, the commission discussed the two projects at length with Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways and author of the planning report.

The South Capitol Street plan was drafted jointly by the District highway department, the Army Engineer Corps and the National Park Service and is part of a master plan to improve the entire length of South Capitol Street, it was explained.

The grade separation structure, it was pointed out, would divide traffic entering the Bolling Field area and through traffic on South Capitol Street.

The commission announced that $300,000 already is available to start work on the underground streetcar terminal which would serve the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and other Federal buildings in the lower Southwest Section.

The terminal would be part of the Whitehurst plan to construct a grade separation at the congested intersection of Fourteenth Street and Maine Avenue Southwest.

It also was announced that President Roosevelt had renamed William A. Delano for a third six-year term as citizen-member of the commission. He is a cousin of Frederic A. Delano, chairman, and is the commission's architectural expert.

After hearing Maj. Gen. James C McGee, surgeon general of the Army, recite details of a proposed new medical museum and library in the East Capitol Street area, the commission approved preliminary plans, but declined to comment on a specific location.

Gen. J. L. Schley, chief of Army Engineers, told the planning group that Washington was in no immediate danger of a water shortage. He said the supply is being heavily taxed, but the problem at present is distribution rather than a threatened shortage. By the middle of next year, Gen. Schley declared, provision will be made to insure an adequate supply of water for an additional 200,000 persons.

The commission in the afternoon inspected the new National Guard Armory drill hall and the defense housing project at Bellevue.

Jurists Weigh Steps to Aid D. C. Justice

Steps to strengthen the machinery of justice in the courts of Washington were explored by judges and lawyers attending the circuit judicial conference yesterday in the hearing room of the United States Court of Appeals here.

The conference began Thursday and will conclude today, after discussion of the Federal rules for civil cases and a private session for justices of the District and appeals courts. Presiding over the conference is Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner of the Court of Appeals, who is the senior judge of this circuit.

Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court appealed for cooperation, understanding and better feeling between judges and lawyers. Deploring the barrier that rose when a few persons made untrue and intemperate remarks, Justice Laws said the cure was not censorship, but "a true representation of facts." He found that the record in Washington did not suggest animus between the bar and the bench, but was filled with instances of working together to improve the judicial system.

Change Suggested

Justice Oscar R. Luhring, District Court pretrial hearing and assignment judge, suggested that the law might be changed to permit the District Court to send cases to the Municipal Court, if it turned out that they belonged there. The Municipal Court handles all cases involving less than $1,000. Justice Luhring said that of 984 cases he has handled since last September, 73.4 per cent were settled for less than $1,000.

E. Barrett Prettyman presented the report of Justice James M. Proctor of the District Court, as chairman of the committee on legal aid for needy. At present, when one unable to pay asks for a lawyer, the court appoint one who works gratis. Young lawyers ask for such assignments to get experience. Sometimes they have been remiss or incompetent in handling the cases and the defendants have suffered as a result.

Asks Two Panels

Justice Proctor's committee favored continuing the appointment of lawyers by the courts, when needy persons needed them, but advised that these lawyers come from two panels, one of more experienced attorneys and the other of younger ones. When the court provided counsel in a serious case, he would come from the senior panel and be aided by a lawyer from the junior panel.

The committee advised that expenses and nominal fees for these lawyers be paid out of a fund to be established, and suggested that Congress be asked for $15,000 for the purpose.

Edmund D. Campbell, chairman, presented a preliminary report of nearly 100 pages for the committee on standard jury instructions, with numerous sample instructions.

Sefton Darr, chairman, reported for the committee on domestic relations and lunacy procedure, urging simplified methods.

Further study of a single bar organization, to include all lawyers here, was urged by Paul F. Hannah, of the District Bar Association. Charles H. Houston, of the Washington Bar Association, indorsed the single bar plan.

District Attorney Edward M. Curran discussed proposed new rules for criminal cases.

A report on judicial review of administrative action was presented, under auspices of the Federal Bar Association by Dean Acheson and Carl McFarland.

Tablet Unveiled To Rockefeller At Cathedral

A stone tablet to the memory of John D. Rockefeller was unveiled yesterday at the Washington Cathedral with two of his namesakes in attendance.

Presented to the Cathedral by 21 Southern universities, the 6 feet high tablet was unveiled by John D. Rockefeller 3d, in the presence of his father, John D. Rockefeller, jr., and church notables. The presentation and eulogy were made by Douglas Southall Freeman, editor of the Richmond News Leader, and close friend of the millionaire philanthropist.

The Very Rev. Noble C. Powell accepted the tablet on behalf of the Washington Diocese. Also present was the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

Mr. Freeman paid tribute to the founder of the Rockefeller dynasty for his contributions to the South and to education.

Defense Road Plans Omit Baltimore Link

President Roosevelt said yesterday he would soon make public a program for building new roads needed for national defense, but he indicated that it would not contain any provision for improved highways between Washington and Baltimore.

Mr. Roosevelt commented at a press conference that he did not consider a new highway link between Washington and Baltimore to be essential to national defense.

The program, when it is released, he said, would be much smaller than many people think.

He explained that it would call chiefly for roads leading to military reservations and defense manufacturing plants.

Suggestions have been made for a highway program that would cost close to $500,000,000. Apparently, Mr. Roosevelt and his aides have pruned this total to bare essentials.

Some time ago the Chief Executive indicated that a better Washington-Baltimore link would have to wait until the emergency passes.

He has authorized the Federal Works Agency to collect a shelf of blueprinted projects for use after the emergency, when the American economy will have to be eased out of a postwar reaction.

Presumably the improved connections between Washington and Baltimore will be constructed at that time.

Citizen Groups Back Proposed Play Board

Dr. Hazen declared the small night voted approval of the proposed nine-man recreation commission for the District of Columbia.

It was the final meeting of the season for both groups, the Anacostia and the Burroughs Citizens Associations. Other business transacted at the meetings follows:

Anacostia

The Anacostia Citizens Association at its last meeting of the season last night approved the proposed nine-man Recreation Commission for the District of Columbia.

Members also voted to request the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to convert the triangle on Minnesota Avenue at Sixteenth Street Southeast into a park. Created recently when a new street was cut through the property, the triangle is now useless and unsightly, it was stated.

Capt. Hugh Groves, of the Eleventh Precinct, appeared before the Association to explain Summer parking bans to be imposed on certain Anacostia streets this summer because of traffic to the nearby beaches.

Burroughs

James L. Brewrink was elected president of the Burroughs Citizens Association last night to succeed Dr. A. F. Heath.

Other officers are: Mrs. George V. Thompson, first vice president; Frank E. Harrison, second vice president; Mrs. E. F. DeAtley, secretary; Mrs. W. J. Peeler, assistant secretary William G. Wiles, treasurer; and Edward T. Williams, financial secretary.

The association voted approval of the proposed nine-man recreation commission for the District. Members also voted to request lighting and police protection for the Taft Recreation Center.

Simmons Wins Rose Show Sweepstakes

With more than 1,500 roses of every variety on exhibit, the Takoma Park Horticultural Club opened its twenty-fifth annual rose show last night in the Takoma Park (D. C.) Elementary School, Piney Branch Road and Dahlia Street Northwest.

R. H. Fiedler, president, declared the show was the largest and best the club has ever conducted.

Winn T. Simmons, 518 Aspen Street Northwest, won the sweepstakes with 53 points. He took seven blue, two red and six white ribbons. His exhibit of a pink "Mme. Cochet Cochet" was judged the best rose in the show. A novice exhibitor was Mrs. Frederick L. Lincoln, 6633 Barnaby Street Northwest, whose yellow "Eclipse" took a ribbon for the second best rose. An orange flame colored "Mme. Charles Mallerin," displayed by Col. W. H. England, 1344 Iris Street Northwest, was judged the third-best flower.

Awarded Silver Medal

Simmons was awarded the silver medal of the Potomac Rose Society for scoring the highest number of points in the collection and specimen classes.

A silver Peruvian vase donated by Mrs. R. H. Fiedler was given to Mrs. Mathilde K. Bartlett, 4511 Argyle Terrace, for honors in the miniature arrangements.

Niels Hansen, and Lawrence L. Powers, vice president of the Potomac Rose Society, were judges. Preston Swecker was chairman. The show will be open today from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m.

Peony Show, Too

The thirteenth annual peony show was held at the same time. Clarence G. Carr, Aspen Hill, Md., winning eight blue ribbons and one red, held highest honors. Two of his peonies, an 8-inch "Therese" in pale pink, and a 7-inch white "Le Cygne" were judged the first and second best flowers. Mrs. Francis Scofield, Lanham, Md., took third place for the best blooms with her exhibit of a deep pink, "Mon Jules Elie."

The blooms were judged by Leonard W. Kephart, of Takoma Park, Md. Col. W. H. England was chairman.

Dr. Wile Calls Syphilis Rate Here a Shame

Dr. Ira S. Wile, New York psychiatrist, last night declared Washington's rate of death from social diseases was an indictment against "the people who represent the government of this District of Columbia."

Addressing welfare and public health leaders at the twenty-third annual dinner of the Social Hygiene Society in the Y. W. C. A., Dr. Wile said his figures "aren't very nice."

Among those he presented were some showing that the District has twice the rate of death from syphilis per capita as any other city in the United States. The disease, he said, was not merely a personal matter, but the business of the community.

Dr. Henry H. Hazen, president of the Social Hygiene Society, presided at the meeting. Pointing out several advances in the District in their campaign against syphilis, Dr. Hazen noted the opening of the Southwest Health Center and the work of the Serologic Department of the District Health Department.

Two citizens' associations last amount of money—$40,000 annually—for the antivenereal disease campaign in the District was not sufficient. The amount should be four times as large, he said.

Short talks were given by Capt. Watson B. Miller, assistant Federal security administrator; Maj. Bascom Johnson, of New York, and Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the society.

Pickpockets Rob Two at Louis Fight

Sol Klein, Baltimore, told police his wallet containing $30 in cash and an indorsed check for $650 was snatched as he left Griffith Stadium after the Louis-Baer fight last night.

George H. Carr, of Hyattsville, also reported his wallet stolen

Lutherans to Meet Tuesday in Baltimore

Baltimore, May 23 (AP).—One hundred and eighty-four delegates from the United Lutheran churches of Maryland will gather at the Church of the Reformation in Baltimore on Tuesday for the 122d annual State synod meeting.

There will be 92 clerical and 92 lay delegates from 139 churches—38 of them in the Baltimore area—representing a church membership of 78,300 persons.

Prisoner Vanishes After Court Sets Bail at $5,000

George Church, colored, 40, became a fugitive from justice yesterday when he walked from Police Court after a preliminary hearing at which his bail was increased from $300 to $5,000—he neglected to make arrangements for the new bond. The higher figure was set because records indicated he had jumped bail on two previous occasions.

Charged with vagrancy, the defendant pleaded guilty before Judge Hobart Newman. The judge increased his bond and Church was ordered by a bailiff to step aside until his bondsman was notified.

While the court officers were busy with other prisoners, Church left the courtroom. Judge Newman issued an attachment for him.

Chief Clerk of the Court Walter F. Bramhall said last night he was conducting an investigation to ascertain whether the escape was due to negligence of any courthouse attendants.

$1,500 Gem Theft Case Is Dropped

A 41-year-old woman from whom police recovered $1,500 worth of stolen jewelry escaped prosecution last night when a jewelry firm that employed her refused to make criminal charges.

The suspect was arrested in a fashionable Massachusetts Avenue apartment and the gems were recovered in her rooms by detectives of the headquarter's clothing squad.

Police obtained the complaint from an F Street jewelry firm and were told the thefts had taken place over a period of time. The loot consisted of an assortment of diamond studded bracelets, rings, a diamond brooch, several silver charms and a string of pearls.

When the company refused to act as complainant against the woman at court, police had no alternative, they said, but to release her.

Boy Scouts to Hold Camporees Today In District Area

A big weekend is here for the Boy Scouts of Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland. The annual "camporee" will be today, and the annual massing of the colors at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

The camporees are a high point of a Scout year. Crack patrols of the different troops are sent out into the woods, carrying equipment enough for an overnight stay. They are judged for their efficiency, neatness, ingenuity in their camping habits, with the highest award—that of standard camper—going to the best patrol in each area.

Sites of the camporees will be as follows: Arlington division on the north side of Sixteenth Street, north, 1 mile west of Glebe Road; the first, fourth and White House divisions of Washington at Camp Turtle, near Camp Wilson; Potomac division at Quentin, Md.; Thirteenth division at Fort Foote, Md.; Rising Sun division at Camp Davis, troop camp of Troop 66, Piscataway, Md.; Alexandria division, Duke Street extended, Alexandria; Redskin division, at Prince Georges County Camp area, on Edmonston Road, 2½ miles beyond East Riverdale, on the outskirts of Greenbelt, and the Cathedral division at Camp Roosevelt.

Tomorrow at 3 p. m. all Scouts of the Washington area will gather on the grounds of Washington Cathedral for the massing of the colors.

Rep. Raybault to Speak At Memorial Service

Rep. Louis C. Raybaut of Michigan will speak at a memorial services to be conducted by the Women's Relief Corps of the G. A. R. at 6:30 p. m. today before the statue of Nuns of the Battlefield, Rhode Island Avenue and M Street, Northwest. The Rev. Wilbur F. Wheeler, assistant rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, will give the invocation.

Missing Girl Joked of Suicide, Man Declares

A man who refused to identify himself telephoned police yesterday that Miss Ruby Wilbourne, 22-year-old missing telephone operator, had hitch-hiked a ride with him Tuesday, the day of her disappearance, and had talked frivolously of suicide.

The anonymous caller said he saw Miss Wilbourne's picture in a newspaper and it resembled a young woman whom he drove from Clarendon, Va., to Fourteen Street and Constitution Avenue.

She told him she was a telephone operator and spoke of ending her life, but she seemed to be joking, the man said.

Miss Wilbourne disappeared from her residence, 3000 Connecticut Avenue, without taking along any extra clothing. Friends said she had appeared despondent and homesick lately. She came here from South Hill, Va., four years ago.

Housing Group Seeking Funds

An attempt to obtain public funds for continuance of the social consultant in the Landlord and Tenant Court after July 1 is being made by the advisory committee to the consultant, it was announced yesterday by the Washington Housing Association.

Between $4,000 and $5,000 would be needed for the consultant and for the clerical worker, according to a proposal for putting the service under the Board of Public Welfare. It is now administered by a fund provided by the Real Estate Board, members of the board of the Washington Housing Association, and other interested persons.

The consultant, who helps families plan their budgets to meet their rent regularly, reported that April was the heaviest month so far in number of cases handled.

Present at the advisory committee's meeting this week to discuss the steps for seeking public funds were Mrs. William H. Kittle, chairman; Mrs. Albert Atwood, Judge James A. Cobb, Mrs. William O. Douglas, Paul O. Drury, Mrs. Helen Duey Hoffman, John Ihlder, Mrs. Milton W. King, Joseph J. Malloy, Mrs. William A. Slade, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone. Guests were Judge Nathan Cayton and Conrad Van Hyning, principal assistant director of public welfare.

D. C. Group Invites Dies Committee To Defend Acts

An invitation to the members of the Dies Committee to appear and defend themselves at a public hearing Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. in the Press Club Auditorium, was sent yesterday to all members of the Congressional committee by Hugh Miller, chairman, Washington Committee for Democratic Action. The invitations stated that the hearing was being held in response to "widespread indignation" because of the Dies Committee's recent actions in the District.

The public hearing will be held under the auspices of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action and the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties.

Meanwhile, Jules Yanover, executive secretary of the Bookshop said last night that "the Dies Committee has lapsed into a mysterious silence regarding the Bookshop's telegraphed request for a chance to tell its story. Exactly a week has passed since the committee's devious seizure of the Bookshop's membership list."

Jewish Appeal Leaders Envision Success in Drive

United Jewish Appeal workers expected to reap a golden harvest of contributions for overseas relief and refugee aid this weekend, following an enthusiastic drive meeting yesterday and campaign Sabbath services last night at the Eighth Street Temple.

The drive has been in progress since Wednesday morning. Louis E. Spiegler, campaign director, said the drive teams would get down to work in earnest today and would have good results to report at the next luncheon on Tuesday.

Funds raised at a Zionist Youth celebration tonight at the Sixth Street Synagogue will be contributed to the relief fund. The program which starts at 8:30 p. m. will feature Palestinian dancing. Rabbi Solomon Metz, of the Adas Israel Congregation, and Rabbi Samuel Silver, of the Hillel Foundation at the University of Maryland, will speak.

Driver Acquitted In Auto Death Beats 2d Charge

Police Court Judge Walter J. Casey late yesterday upheld a motion of double jeopardy and released from custody Doyl H. Moore, 24, of Hagerstown, Md., who was charged with reckless driving after his acquittal in District Court on a manslaughter charge in connection with a traffic death.

The youth, now a soldier at Mitchel Field, Long Island, was indicted December 4 in connection with the death of Gloster Roberts, 58, of 4428 Faraday Place Northwest, who was struck and fatally injured at Wisconsin Avenue and Fessenden Street Northwest, November 9.

After Justice T. Alan Goldsborough directed a verdict of not guilty in the manslaughter case on April 24, the corporation counsel's office directed that the youth be charged with reckless driving and tried in Police Court.

Defense Attorney William J. Kelly and his associate, Thomas W. Collins, attacked the second charge on the grounds of double jeopardy.

Glen Echo Pool To Open Today

BELL

Some 25 or 30 years ago the legitimate theater was the dominant factor in the Capital's indoor diversion. There were almost as many downtown tabernacles of the drama as there now are what our old friend Roxy used to call the cathedrals of the celluloids. It was about at this time of year that all of them were accustomed to begin to scramble around to devise ways and means of remaining open during the summer and garnering those extra kopeks to which no other interests in that remote era could lay much claim.

So it was that immediately the 40-week season of touring attractions at the National had run itself out, the late Harry Rapley was wont to install the Aborn Light Opera Co. for a summer run. And they invariably ran all summer. Likewise, the Metzerotts, once the regular season was over, converted their Columbia Theater—yes, the same Columbia—into the hot-weather home of their famous Columbia Players, one of the most popular stock organizations in the history of the Washington theater. After the Loew interests took over the Columbia, as an outlet for the Charles Frohman "Famous Players in Famous Plays" on the screen, most of the Columbians transferred their allegiance from the corner of Twelfth and F Streets to Fifteenth and Pennsylvania Avenue and became known as the Poli Players.

In the meantime, L. Stoddard Taylor, for 30 years the majordomo of the Belasco, would be presenting his own stock company on the roof garden of his Lafayette Square playhouse. With the steam room of the Turkish bath establishment, that occupied the basement areas for years no end, immediately under the most favorable portions of the theater's orchestra floor, the temperatures inside the auditorium were a little too hot to handle during the summer months.

There was a period 'way back yonder there somewhere, when for five consecutive years the doors of the National Theater never were closed. After 40 weeks of winter bookings, the house went without interruption into 12 of the Aborns and that is the way it went year after year. The Columbia and Poli's were not far behind. And all this before the days of refrigeration, air-cooling and all of the modern physical refreshments of the picture houses. What you got was a pasteboard fan as you entered the theater. They may not have cooled the air, but, at least, they moved it. And capacity audiences loved it at eight performances a week. How times do change!

Big Business in the Open

It is pleasant to report—since we have been babbling about the big business in the "good old days"—that E. M. Loew's Open-Air Theater is enjoying the most successful season of its comparatively brief existence in the Washington environs. With the biggest screen in the world, or thereabouts—it is 60 feet high and proportionately wide, as I recall it—reflecting well-chosen double-feature bills every night, the Open-Air is turning them away. The film bills are not all of the answer. This unique drive-in airdrome goes in for service, too—anything from defogging a windshield to changing a tire. That was done, incidentally, not so long ago in 2 minutes flat.

Since we already have said something about Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's short-subject production of Edgar Allan Poe's "The Tell-Tale Heart," this seems as opportune a time and place as any to divulge that the stellar role will be played by Joseph Schildkraut. Jules Dassin will do the directing.

When Raymond Massey is called to Hollywood next month for a film commitment, his role in Katharine Cornell's production of George Bernard Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma" will be taken by Colin Keith-Johnston. Miss Cornell plans to continue the run of this successful revival far into June in New York. As has been intimated by this page's Louella O. Parsons, "The Doctor's Dilemma" probably will be the vehicle of Miss Cornell's introduction to the celluloids. Heretofore, she has steadfastly held out against any appearance before the cameras, contending that there were many others more perfectly equipped for the cinema than she. Influences now seem to have been brought to bear that have changed her mind. Not the least of these probably is Shaw himself.

How about the Tidal Basin? After all, Hains Point is a long way off!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 23.

Harry Carey is the only fellow I've ever known who's actually afraid oil will be struck on his land. Years ago, when he homesteaded, he had an affidavit signed by experts to the effect that none of the stuff was to be found on his place. Now they're hitting oil all around Harry's, and want to test his land.

HOPPER

"But," says Harry, "I've spent 20 years building up my home for comfort and beauty, and don't want oil derricks chugging around it. There are easier ways of making a living than spoiling a home to get rich."

And did you know that horticulturalist Paul Howard's father was furious when oil was discovered on his land at Signal Hill, because it meant he had to move his gardens?

Then there's the story of Mrs. Oscar Homolka's grandfather, who sold his land (which is now called Kettleman Hills) because it was too poor for his sheep to graze on . . . I don't know why somebody doesn't make an oil picture based on the funny incidents that have happened right here in our home State.

One of the best is about the washerwoman, whose only friend, the town undertaker, took her in his hearse to see the opening of her new oil well. And when it came gushing in and spattered all over her new dress, she was apoplectic with rage—not realizing that the well would make her wealthy enough to buy all the clothes she could want. Now I think that's funny, and it's true.

Can't you just see Marjorie Rambeau going to town in that scene?

That was a right nice surprise birthday party Jeanette MacDonald gave her good friend Ida Koverman the other night. It wasn't the usual "intimate" Hollywood party for 150 of your closest friends. We were just a baker's dozen—and what fun! Of course, I was the goat in all the games, as usual. Never was any good in school, never any good at games, except at climbing trees, baseball, and riding a horse. But when parlor games come 'round, just put a dunce cap upon me and set me in the corner.

If you look closely, you'll see Bette Davis wearing dark glasses, doing a walk-on scene in "Shining Victory"—all because of her friendship for the director who used to listen patiently to her dialog—Irving Rapper . . . Bette would also like to play the woman in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," even though it is the second part. She'd be smart to do it, too.

Wally Beery flies to Jackson Hole, Wyo., in a few days to make some improvements on his place there. But what do you bet it will be a honeymoon? I love Wally saying, "Of course, I propose to her every day—I'm no fool."

Martha Raye will turn off the glamour and stick to comedy. She notified Jolson 'Nix' on "Hold Onto Your Hats," and "Yes" to Olsen and Johnson for the feminine lead in "Hellzapoppin'."

George Brent, Martha Scott In Met's Film

By Richard L. Coe

"THEY DARE NOT LOVE." Columbia picturization of a story by James Edward Grant, adapted to the screen by Charles Bennett and Ernest Vajda, costarring George Brent and Martha Scott, with Paul Lukas, Egon Brecher, Roman Bohnen, Edgar Barrier, Kay Linaker and Frank Reicher. Directed by James Whale. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Metropolitan Theater.

That tenuous hairline between smacking suspense and obvious claptrap is seldom so sharply defined as in "They Dare Not Love," the Metropolitan's new film. Here is a story that is fundamentally melodrama and adventure, one which demands action. But script writers have botched it into banal balderdash.

Seldom, too, have the script writers been so obviously at fault, for while it is true they deserve more credit than they get for fine films, theirs is equally the responsibility when workmanlike actors flounder in empty words. Most annoying reflection of all, though, is that the succinct British might have made a corking snap-snap yarn out of the idea that was fumbled in California.

Columbia Studios didn't spare the horses when it came to casting. The radiant Martha Scott, busy George Brent and able Paul Lukas have the leads, but Brent is so obviously ill-at-ease you feel like knocking his arm to see if he's hollow.

Romance in Exile

It was over a familiar pit Writers Bennett and Vajda lost their balance—the Hollywood tradition that love in lofty places is a solemn, awesome thing. Brent plays an Austrian prince of the blood, whose very name sends hope to unhappy hearts in the Tyrol. He got out of Hitlered Austria, arrived in America, met a fellow exile whom he thought loved another man. When he got a verbal spanking for not doing more for the millions left behind, he agreed to hand himself over to the Gestapo in exchange for seven prisoners, one of whom was to be his love's fiance. But wily Willie was in New York all the while, and trickery makes the voyage home a real adventure.

But instead of emphasizing the joust between Brent and Paul Lukas, representing the Gestapo, cloying sentiment is stressed. The pace is leisurely, moonstruck, romantic, all very like an attempt to cross "Night Train" with "Meyerling." The cliche expert would rejoice in such lines as "My dear professor, our paths cross again" and "Kurt, will you marry me?"

And, now that the subject has come up, can't something be done about the wartime habit of gilding the lily and blacking the devil? "They Dare Not Love" indulges in the innocent fancy that anyone not on our side is either a fool or a fiend, a devasting fashion of insulting audience intelligence.

Authors at Fault

James Whale directed, coming to life only for the fine final half-reel with its trek across the Atlantic. But all things considered, the fault of "They Dare Not Love" lies with Scripters Bennett and Vajda; to each a warm, watered martini with a flannel olive.

There are a trio of short subjects on the Met screen, as well as a generous assortment of newsclips. Best of the shorts is "The Seeing Eye," an intensely interesting coverage of a blind person becoming acquainted with his dog at the remarkable Morristown home. One of those daffy farmyard visits with smart cracks from the animals also is on the bill.

Prefers Blondes

A suggestion by Harpo to have the department store in the new Marx Brothers picture employ only blonde salesgirls, to be chased by Harpo, was turned down. It was decided it would be too confusing to have Harpo chase so many blondes at one time. Vote against the suggestion was unanimous—except for one ballot. Yes—Harpo.

New York, May 23.

FASHIONS DEPT.: Gertrude Lawrence was a guest at a cocktail party, where she noticed a smartly-dressed young lady who seemed most attractive in appearance. Miss Lawrence turned to her husband, Richard Aldrich, and asked him: "Who's that girl? She's so pretty" . . . "That's Dorthy Lamour," said Aldrich. "You've seen her in the movies so many times" . . . "No wonder I didn't recognize her," Miss Lawrence explained. "After all—this is the first time I've seen her with her hair up and her skirts down."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Tuesday night a new French night club, the Moulin Rouge, opened at Broadway and Fifty-second. The proprietors had assured a complete French motif—the decorations were French, the costumes were French, and the chefs were French. The proprietors arrived early and prepared to welcome the new customers . . . The first people to arrive were G-Men. They walked through the new French cafe, ignored the French decorations, and went straight through the kitchen where the new French dishes were being prepared. There they nabbed the new assistant chef—a Frenchman—and took him away, pursuant to the new American round-up of aliens.

MOVIES DEPT.: When the editors of the Harvard Lampoon invited Marjorie Woodworth, the screen actress, to come to Cambridge, one of the students who declined an invitation to be on the welcoming committee was Peter Saltonstall, whose father is Governor of Massachusetts. The youngster felt that it would be inadvisable to have his name publicized, in connection with such a stunt . . . When Miss Woodworth arrived at Cambridge, she was met by a mysterious barrage of oranges. Many of the students, who objected to this inhospitable greeting, tried to stop the orange throwers. In the resultant melee, the gallant Peter Saltonstall was hurt. And his was the one publicized name.

REALTY DEPT.: John Denson resigned from CBS to join the Washington staff of Time magazine. Denson's job will be taken by Tom Flannagan, who resigned from Time recently to join CBS . . . Denson was aware of the current housing problem in Washington. And so he phoned a renting agent there to make inquiries. "You're very lucky," said the agent. "I have the apartment for you, the one just vacated by Tom Flannagan."

ETIQUETTE DEPT.: The Earl of Athlone tendered a dinner in Ottawa recently in honor of some eminent theatrical people who had come to Canada to play a benefit performance. The proceedings were in strict accordance with Protocol. Princess Alice was accorded the proper honors, and the ladies-in-waiting were in their proper places . . . "Oh, by the way," said the Earl, half-way through the dinner, "you Americans employ such unusual words. For example—tell me what this one means"—and he uttered the most censorable word Broadway ever heard . . . "Damn it to hell," shrieked one of the actresses, unloosing a stream of expletives. "I didn't dream it was going to be this kind of a party."

TRAVEL DEPT.: Elizabeth Hawes, the fashion designer, just returned from a trip to Peru and Chile . . . In Chile she met an exiled Peruvian, with whom she discussed the dangers attendant upon a Nazi victory . . . "If it's a choice between the Nazis taking us over, or the Americans taking us over," the suspicious Peruvian told Miss Hawes, "this would be the difference. Suppose that South America is a cow. If the Nazis get us, they'd eat the entire cow—skin, flesh, horns and all. But if the Americans get us—they'd just milk us."

BOOK DEPT.: Sally Benson, whose new best-seller, "Junior Miss," is a Book-of-the-Month Club selection, discovered an old diary which had been kept by her sister, many years ago. In that diary were reported the girlhood crushes—the romances of these years. On one page, Sally found a notation which began: "Dear Diary. This time it's a Jap."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 23 (INS).—The Warner clan wanted cute, little Betty Field so badly for "Kings Row" that they put her into "Hot Nocturne"—and I am not trying to be funny. Here is what happened: papa agreed that Warners could have Betty on a one picture deal and since "Kings Row" isn't ready, rather than take a chance of losing her they are giving talented Betty one of the top spots with Priscilla Lane and John Garfield in the swing band opus. Don't say I said so, but I bet they'll angle to keep her in "Kings Row," too.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Now about Priscilla Lane. She is wonderful in "Million Dollar Baby" and so good in her comedy scenes. She is so pretty and smartly dressed that I am certainly glad they have taken her out of the endless "Four Daughters," "Wives," "Mothers" and "Grandmothers" series. Priscilla will sing in "Hot Nocturne" for the first time in over a year.

When I saw Buddy Rogers, as handsome as when he' was the debs' dream with Jane Withers in "Golden Hoofs," I said I bet he would remain in Hollywood and concentrate on the movies instead of his band. Well, Buddy is making my prediction come true because this week he checks in at RKO for a comedy role in "Lord Epping Sees a Ghost." When I say comedy, I don't mean slapstick, for Buddy has the romantic lead opposite Lupe Velez—but the part has humor and witty dialogue as well as just straight hero-ing. Quite a cast has been lined up for this movie: Leon Errol plays his lordship, who sees the spook, and Zasu Pitts is also in there.

Today is Martha Raye's wedding day. She and Neal Lang, accompanied by Ann Sheridan and a Mr. and Mrs. Valmer, will motor to Las Vegas, Nev. In a double-ring ceremony Martha and Neal will take their vows at the El Rancho Vegas Hotel. After the ceremony, dinner will be served for the bridal party. George Brent isn't able to go along because he couldn't be spared from "International Lady."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: 'Tis whispered that Judy Garland and Dave Rose will announce their wedding plans at Judy's birthday party, June 10; Norman Kerry's step-daughter, Mrs. Stewart Palmer, wife of the mystery-thriller writer, welcomed a baby in San Diego today and they are calling her Penelope Rosine; Hedy Lamarr and John Howard are no longer an item; saw Spencer Tracy on the M-G-M lot and he said home looked awfully good to him.

Lois Ransom, pretty Republic starlet, and Chet Root, are expected to make an announcement any day; Cary Grant and Barbara Hutton a happy dinner duet at the Beverly Tropics; Gene Raymond has spent hours trying to coax Jeanette MacDonald to fly with him. She has never been in a plane; Brenda Marshall spending the evening at Columbia Studio watching Bill Holden work; Dorothy Lamour leaves May 28 for Honolulu and she will get a real reception for they love her on the island.

Joan Crawford's many friends couldn't be happier that her last movie, "A Woman's Face" is doing a terrific business; Buddy Westmore at the station to say adieu to Rosemary Lane who has gone East;

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The man who could, conceivably, beat Joe Louis is in the Army at this time. They wouldn't fight each other anyway, because they're good friends and they just want to go along being buddies. Louis' title is safe as far as Private Joe Palooka, U. S. A., is concerned.

POVICH

We have it straight from Ham Fisher, who originally fetched Joe Palooka out of an ink bottle and set him upon the American scene, that his man will never fight Louis despite popular clamor for the bout.

"The bout is at least a year away with Joe Palooka in the Army," says Fisher, "but we aren't figuring on a Louis fight anyway. They're old pals, Louis and my Joe. The first thing Louis does in the morning is check up on how Palooka's doing. Louis has been rooting for Palooka in all his fights and it's been a beautiful friendship, so why break it up?"

Palooka, it seems, never discusses the idea of a title fight with Louis, but his manager, nobby Walsh, has given the matter some thought, says Fisher. "Knobby would know how to handle Palooka if he were going to send him in against Louis. You could depend on Knobby to bring Palooka up to a winning fight. Knobby always did say that the only way to beat Louis was to crowd him and tie him up. He wouldn't let Palooka take a backward step, because that's when Louis taps 'em out."

Now rated among the classic quotations is the one-time expression of the District Commissioners when they turned down a bill legalising professional boxing here. Said the Commissioners in their recommendation to Congress: "There is no public sentiment for boxing in the District of Columbia." That crowd of 23,000 was no gathering of ghosts at Griffith Stadium last night.

The District Boxing Commission did all right on the Louis-Baer bout. It's 10 per cent take fetched the commission approximately $15,000. The Griffith Stadium people did all right, too, with their 10 per cent plus the concessions. The commission might now afford a full-time secretary, as befits big business.

With its windfall of last night, which puts the commission on a self-sustaining basis, there is no longer any sense to the flat 10 per cent commission cut. The commission was pleading poverty when it lifted its take from 5 per cent a year ago and helped to drive Promoters Joe Turner and Goldie Ahern out of business. Since then, however, times have been better for the commission. Nobody draws annual pay from the commission except the secretary, so wherefore the need for all the commission dough?

The commission has been exceedingly nice to Promoter Mike Jacobs and his troupe. They obligingly looked the other way when Jacobs and the Louis camp insisted on 5-ounce gloves, in direct violation of the Federal law which provides that all bouts in Washington must be fought with gloves of 8 ounces or more.

A year and a half ago, Washington thought it had seen the last of visiting referees. The commission, with a "never again" pledge, took the rap for permitting Benny Leonard to come down from New York and referee the first Joey Archibald-Harry Jeffra fiasco. But down from New York for last night's fight as the third party in the ring was Arthur Donovan, with D. C. Commission approval. If you chance to see three boxing commissioners standing on their heads in the rush hour traffic at Fourteenth and the Avenue, don't be amazed; they may be only trying to please Jacobs in some silly sort of way.

The whole set-up of last night's fight was a bit daffy. Jacobs was the promoter despite the fact that he holds no District license, which are issued only to residents. As a shield, he labeled Ray Alvis as co-promoter, but Alvis' license is a bit clouded, too. It is the relict of the license originally held by Goldie Ahearn who no longer promotes fights here.

The fact is that Co-Promoter Alvis made more dough out of the admissions to Joe Louis' training camp at a half buck a throw than he is netting as Jacobs' "partner." Twenty-five thousand persons paid to see Louis train at the Riverside Arena and Alvis, taking 50 per cent of that gate, profited more from the events leading up to the fight than from the battle itself.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Not since the saddle-sore county seat of Shelby, Mont., blossomed overnight into the fistic capital of the world—in honor of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight—has a village mushroomed into more sudden prominence as a sock center than has Washington, D. C., where the last remembered heavyweight fight of any prominence was the one between Hoover and the Bonus Army.

CONSIDINE

This was the worst (or most maturely enlightened) fight city in the United States. You don't have to go back very many days to find proof of that round statement, either. Last week the featherweight championship of the world was contested here at Griffith Stadium before a howling, shoving, pushing mob of 2,000, including deadheads. The "gate" for this titanic test of tissue was $2,700, less than enough to pay for the "goose-grease" on one 16-inch shell.

A year and a half ago at Turner's Arena, where some of the distinguished savants who have our country's future in their paws are wont to gather around the ringside and grow apopletic with excitement over the sight of women rasslers, a fight drew $400. This past winter saw several shows which grossed between $500 and $700. A gate of $2,000 has been big stuff for a fight here, in this bustling boom town of nearly a million persons.

Today Michael S. Jacobs, the omnipresent promoter, will tell you that, save for New York, Washington is the best boxing city in the country. He has come to that conclusion after drawing 8,000 to see Billy Conn fight a sparring partner whose name slips us; $26,000 worth of business for a fight between Buddy Baer and the hopelessly out of shape Tony Galento, $20,000 for Henry Armstrong vs. Phil Furr and some fancily multiple figure for the Louis-Buddy Baer match.

This change has been engendered by a number of things. This is a town that will accept nothing below the big leagues. Its ball club draws a half a million faithful customers per year, year in and out, because it is in the big league. Its Redskin football team, scandalously beaten in the playoff game with the Bears, has sold more season passes for 1941 than ever before. Yet the city would not support Georgetown's football team, as fine as it was, because Georgetown played none of its better opponents here in Washington.

Washington demands a peek at the best, and if the home town team can't supply the best, then it wants to watch merit in the visiting club. That is why it never went for "club" fights and never will. It prefers the sight of a well known champion, even if he's boxing nothing more dangerous than a crate of strawberries, to the sight of two feverish third raters punching each other dizzy.

Boxing was bootlegged here for years. Jimmy LaFontaine, the local gambler who helped Tex Rickard run "the wheel" in Goldfield, "angeled" several clubs near the city and many fighters. Other boxing clubs blossomed on the fringe of the boxingless District, hoping to lure the well-paid Government clerks. They all failed, for they were furtive and primitive and Washington was accustomed to class. When boxing was legalized here in 1934 the same mob moved in and ran apologetically. It lived in terror of the poohbahs of the N. B. A., whose headquarters is here, with the result that it shut itself off from the undeniable talent which Jacobs, who is anti-N. B. A., has monopolized in New York.

The interest here quickened a little when mixed matches were put into effect, a year or two ago. Theretofore, no white could be matched against a black. Maj. Ernest W. Brown, the local chief of police, and chairman of the District of Columbia boxing board, swung that deal. But it remained for Thomas P. Morgan, Jr., a local insurance man who thinks with astonishing clarity for a boxing commissioner, to bring Jacobs in here. When Morgan took office he invited Jacobs to come in and bring along all of his champions. Flattered (in view of the fact that the N. B. A. had been putting the blast on him from here for years) Mike pounced on this unexploited plum. Whether you like him or not, Mike puts on the best fights in the country and handles them better than any other promoter. There is a certain big league flavor to this tooth-grinding old speculator, and Washington has responded with its money.

Louis and Baer Take Turns on Floor in Hectic Title Bout

The Fight by Rounds

ROUND ONE

Baer came out with his chin well covered by his left shoulder. They exchanged short left hooks. Louis spun Buddy half around with a hard right to the head. In close, each dug both hands to the body. Louis bounced two short hooks off the jaw and took one in return. Baer fired a short right to the head in a half clinch. Louis crossed a hard right to the chin. Louis hooked a left to the jaw. Baer dug left and right to the body as he went into a clinch. Baer knocked Louis through the ropes with a short hard left hand for a count of three. Louis climbed back through the ropes and fought off Buddy's rush. Each thought he heard the bell ring and walked toward his corner. But it was an error and Referee Donovan motioned them to continue to fight. They exchanged two short lefts at the bell. Baer's round.

ROUND TWO

ROUND THREE

Ringside officials announced that the count on Louis' knockdown in first round was four, not three. They traded sharp left jabs to the head. Louis poked a hard left under Buddy's eye and bounced another off his nose. In a half clinch, they dug lefts and rights into the body.

The action was slower in this round. They exchanged short hooks to the head. Then Joe stabbed Baer with half a dozen sharp jabs. Baer threw two rights at Joe's ribs and Louis' left side showed a splotch of red.

ROUND FOUR

Buddy threw both hands to the head and then landed a left and two more rights on Joe's ear. Baer landed a short right that raised a mouse under Joe's eye. Louis tried four straight lefts to the head and followed up with two short rights.

Bout Halted In Seventh, Buddy Baer Disqualified

23,000 See Champ Win as Buddy's Handlers Charge After-Bell Punch

By Al Hailey

A panic-stricken Joe Louis who found himself being knocked through the ropes in the opening minutes came back to give Buddy Baer a murderous beating for six rounds last night at Griffith Stadium, but it was not until he crashed Buddy to the floor a good five seconds after the bell ending the sixth that his world's heavyweight championship was still in the bag.

In one of the strangest pieces of officiating ever seen in the heavyweight title fight history, Referee Arthur Donovan refused to recognize the between-rounds knockdown and instead disqualified Baer when his manager, Ancil Hoffman, stormed into the ring and refused to leave when Donovan ordered him out.

The series of strange events which started midway of the first when the gigantic Buddy knocked Louis through the ropes reached the peak when Louis rushed across the ring after the bell ending the sixth and drove over a smashing right flush on the jaw that sent Baer to the canvas in a beaten heap.

Baer Finished

It was that punch that actually finished Baer, and it was a punch that could have cost Louis his precious heavyweight championship. Had Donovan chosen to recognize Louis' action he could have disqualified Louis on the spot.

And it was not until the plump and squat Hoffman saw that he was not going to consider the punch a foul that Hoffman stormed back to Baer's corner and refused to leave the ring when the bell for the seventh rang.

Buddy was sitting on his ring stool, a helpless hulk, and it is not at all doubtful that he never would have been able to arise to continue fighting. He had absorbed one of the worst beatings ever handed out by Louis and had been floored twice in the sixth round before Joe finally sent across that extra-curricular punch.

Will Claim Title

The history-making fight crowd of upward of 23,912 were as confused by the goings-on as the fighters themselves, and the cheers and boos were about 50-50 when Donovan held up Louis' hand.

Donovan's decision called Louis the victor in the seventh round, as the bell for the seventh rang with Hoffman still standing in front of his fighter.

Buddy, who was given a tremendous ovation for his courageous stand, earned a return shot at Louis—probably in October. The battle grossed a gate of $105,183 and a return match probably would draw more. As Hoffman left the ring last night he souted Donovan's decision was the "rottenest thing I ever saw" and said he would enter a claim for the heavyweight title.

Reconstructing the picture at the scene of the business, it was like this:

Baer, badly battered and a wide-open target, took everything Louis had in the sixth. Louis, taking his time carefully to aim each shot, hit Buddy with a right cross that spun Buddy crazily to the canvas for a six count. Buddy got up gamely and tried to protect himself. Then Louis came in again with a left hook to the jaw and a piledriving right cross to the jaw that felled the young giant again.

Buddy got up at the count of seven, couldn't stand straight and caromed into the ropes in Louis' corner. As Joe started toward him, the bell rang ending the round.

At this point, Baers' trainer, Izzy Kline, rushed across the ring in front of Louis to grab his fighter. Just as he got to Baer, Louis came from behind Kline, went over on

Louis' Tumble Is Shaded by Punch in Sixth

Hysteria Grips Stadium Ring After Questionable Blow

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Out of a ring that was a yammering hotbed of confusion walked Joe Louis last night, still champion of all the heavyweights, but along with its first title bout Washington gazed upon some of the weirdest sequences of heavyweight history.

The surprising knockdown of Louis by Challenger Buddy Baer in the first round was reduced to an anti-climax by the sixth-round hysteria that descended on the Griffith Stadium ring.

In his corner during the minute rest period between the sixth and seventh round sat a sickened Baer apparently unable to answer the bell after three knockdowns.

Screaming in the ear of Referee Arthur Donovan was Baer's manager, Ancil Hoffman, protesting that Louis had hit Baer after the bell sounded ending the sixth round.

Refusing to recognize Louis' last blow as a foul, Donovan was waving a menacing finger at Hoffman and ordering him to get out of the ring.

Joe Sits Out Debate

Over in Louis' corner, the champion sat stolidly throughout the debate and at the sound of the gong starting the seventh, advanced toward the center of the ring to meet a Baer who wasn't there.

Twenty-five thousand fans suddenly were told, a minute after the seventh round was scheduled to start, that "the referee's decision has awarded the fight to Louis."

Only then was it apparent that Donovan had made good his threat to forfeit the bout to Louis if Hoffman did not leave the ring.

Into a coast-to-coast radio network, Hoffman screamed angrily: "We got a raw deal!" Radio engineers cut him off.

Backed into a corner by Hoffman and newspapermen who catapulted into the ring, Donovan loudly insisted: "Louis landed the punch at the bell, not after the bell."

Unanimously around the ringside the belief was that Louis had started the last knockdown punch several seconds after the bell ending the sixth round sounded.

Jimmy Sullivan, one of the two judges provided by the District Boxing Commission, was meanwhile

Nats to Play Double-Header With Macks

Special Dispatch to The Post

Philadelphia, May 23.—A heavy deluge of rain late this afternoon necessitated the postponement of the first night game of the season here between the Nats and the Athletics.

Two games will be played tomorrow in the "hectic" battle for sixth place.

Connie Mack will be depending on a veteran and a youngster to pull out a double victory tomorrow, having nominated Jack Knott, usually dependable against Washington, and Les McCrabb.

On the other hand, Bucky Harris is expected to call on Steve Sundra, the Yankee castoff, and Vernon Kennedy. No doubt McCrabb and Kennedy will pitch the opener.

Station WMAL in Washington, starting at 12:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) will broadcast the games.

Horton Smith Leads Field In Goodall

By the Associated Press

New York, May 23.—Horton Smith, sweet-swinging veteran once known as the Joplin Ghost and now attached to a club in Chicopee, Mass., carded a pair of even 70's at Fresh Meadow course today and took a hairline lead in the fourth annual Goodall Golf Tournament with a score of 13 plus.

Smith, known wherever golf is played as the smoothest putter in the game, proved that his title was no misnomer. Under a hot sun and a temperature which virtually freckled his irons, Smith closed the gap which Lawson Little, of San Francisco, had established in the first round of the 216-hole competition yesterday. Of course, he did it all on the greens.

Despite the excellence of his strokes, however, Smith held only a 1-point lead over Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., and Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., as the 15 men who were invited to play in this preview of the National Open passed the 54-hole mark and prepared to square off for 36 holes of play on both Saturday and Sunday before cutting up the $5,000 purse.

Had Plus 5 Carry Over

Smith started the morning round with a carry-over score of plus 5. He finished the 36-hole mark with a 70 to move up to plus 10, then belted out another 70 in spite of the hot weather to boost his tournament score to plus 13 and amass an aggregate of 209—lowest of the 15 contenders—for the 54 holes over the long and heavily trapped fairways.

While the Missourian forged into the lead, Runyan—a diminutive player who accents precision over power—provided the day's top fireworks when he wiped out his minus 2 rating of the first round with two tours of 76 and 69, which netted him 14 plus points and threw him into the deadlock with Ghezzi for second position in the thoroughly complicated system of scoring.

Runyan's 54-hole total was 220, against the 210 of Ghezzi, who fashioned a 71 and a 68 for 210. Jim Demaret, Noroton, Conn., one of the many Texas-born lads in the tournament, established himself firmly in fourth position with a plus 10 ranking after scoring two subpar excursions of 68 and 69 for his ag-

Joe Saw Opening, 'Hit Baer As Matter of Routine' in Sixth

Champ Regrets Lack of Sting In Punches; Baer Proud of First Round

By Tony Neri

That between rounds knockdown Joe Louis used to flatten Buddy Baer last night in the ball park will go down into fight annals as the strangest piece of ring strategy in the history of boxing, but to Champion Joe it was a routine piece of business.

Although ringsiders said they distinctly heard the bell ending the sixth, Joe insists there was no bell until after he stiffened Baer.

"I didn't hear nothing. I just saw him standing there and hit him with my right hand. Then I heard the bell," the champ said.

Then, strangest of all, Louis rushed into a tirade that he was off form last night. "I wasn't hitting as hard tonight like my other fights," Joe went on.

Baer Liked First Round

Meanwhile, in Baer's dressing room, the defeated challenger devoted his entire conversational outburst to his first-round knockdown which spilled Louis outside the ropes.

When this correspondent questioned him about his reactions to the first-round incident, Baer replied, "I said to myself, my God, what's this?"

Last night's disqualification was the first in the history of a heavyweight championship fight. A fight has been won on a foul, but never on a disqualification.

"I ordered Hoffman (Baer's manager) out of the ring. Only three men are allowed in the ropes during the fight, the two contestants and the referee. When Hoffman wouldn't leave I ruled Louis the winner on disqualification," said Donovan.

Didn't Want Referee Donovan

Hoffman told newspapermen that he only wanted Donovan to give Baer enough time to rest after being floored with what he said was a blow after the bell had ended the round.

"Buddy was entitled to at least five minutes of rest and that's all I wanted," said Hoffman.

"We didn't want Donovan to referee in the first place, but what could we do? I had to agree on Donovan before the fight or else Buddy wouldn't have had a shot at the title. Louis' handlers were sitting in the drivers' seat and they wanted Donovan and so I had to See NERI, Page 17, Col. 4.

D. C. Ring Heads Support Donovan In Fight Decision

The District Boxing Commission isn't going to do anything about Arthur Donovan's decision disqualifying Buddy Baer in the seventh of his scheduled 15-round battle with Joe Louis last night at Griffith Stadium but abide by it.

The commission went into a huddle during all the confusion that followed Donovan's strange maneuver and agreed with his action. There's a rule in the District, incidentally, that a referee's decision cannot be reversed.

Joe Louis Makes $34,696; Baer's Share $13,000

Joe Louis' 18 minutes of work last night on the person of Buddy Baer netted him and his brain trust—Managers Julian Black and John Roxborough—$34,696.71, according to figures released after the fight.

The gross gate was $105,183 and the net, $86,741.77. Louis' share of the net gate was 40 per cent. Buddy's 15 per cent share of the net gives him $13,001.26. The District Boxing Commission, which rakes a 10 per cent take off the gross, made itself the neatest pile in its history—approximately $10,518.30.

1942 National Open Is Set for June 18-20

Indians Beat Browns, 4 to 2, Under Lights

By International News Service

Cleveland, May 23.—Kennie Keltner won a ball game for the Cleveland Indians tonight before 40,000 fans with a 400-foot triple to center field with the bags loaded in the first inning to beat the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 2.

Denny Galehouse started the first inning by walking the first two men, then after two were out he walked Heath, setting the stage for Keltner's blast. Mack scored Keltner with a single and from there on, Galehouse pitched two-hit ball.

But Al Milnar was better. He let the slugging Brownies down with five hits and was in trouble only in the third when St. Louis scored its runs, and the eighth when two walks and a single loaded the bases, but Heffner flied out to end the threat.

The Browns got their runs on a single, two walks, a passed ball and an error.

Underdog Central Wins Interhigh Track Title, Beats Tech

Eastern 3d As Vikings Retain Title

Victors Score 66 Points, Win by 8½ To Earn 'Present' For Coach Pearce

By Bill Burnett

Trackmen of Central High yesterday gave Coach Hardy Pearce the best "going away" present in their power to give.

They won the public school championship of Washington for him on their home sod despite the fact they weren't supposed to have a chance against Tech and Eastern. And they did it impressively, scoring 66 points to 57½ for Tech and 56 for Eastern. The other four schools they left far behind, out of the running.

Scheduled to assume his new duties as head of the department of health and physical education in the school system, following the acceptance of a defense position by Birch Bayh, Coach Pearce thus was credited with his fourth title in five years of teaching the Vikings.

Central Wins Early

Before results of the last four events had come in, Central had already assured itself of retaining the title it took easily last year. Tech, with lean Eddie Barham performing in the field events, made a valient attempt to catch up, but its failures earlier in the day had been too frequent.

Barham, however, did all that was expected of him. He set the second interhigh high jump mark of his career with the only record-breaking performance at Central's soggy and wind-swept stadium. His leap of 6 feet 3 inches bettered his 1940 mark by 1⅛ inches. Before he left the field he set the bar at 6 feet 8 and barely missed his try for a new world record for high schools.

Only Scores 20 Points

Barham was solely responsible for 20 of Tech's 57½ points, winning the high hurdles, broad jump, javelin and high jump. The fifth event he entered, the discus, he finished fifth, as Francis Manilli, of Eastern, repeated to the fraction of an inch his trial effort Thursday, winning with a toss of 114 feet 2 inches.

With the track too soft to even hope for new records, spectator interest centered on the battle of the Adamses (no relation)—Central's Steve and Eastern's Herby. The latter proved best in all but one small matter.

Probably the smoothest runner in the meet, Herby and his machine-like legs started off in high gear by besting Steve in the century in 10.7. The latter was also nosed out by Roosevelt's Irvin Lust. The big disappointment of the race was Levi's fifth place for Wilson after turning in the best time in the trials, 10.2.

Temple Routs U. of Maryland Nine, 12 to 3

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 23.—Temple University's Owls clouted two Maryland pitchers for 14 hits to score an easy 12-to-3 victory over Maryland University here today.

Two teams battled on fairly even terms the first five innings, but Art Woodward, Maryland hurler, lost control in sixth and two-hit batsmen, a wild pitch, a walk, McDonald's error and four Temple hits gave the Owls six runs. Bill Fulton, the Terps' one-armed pitcher, replaced Woodward in the eighth but was nicked for three runs and four hits.

Maryland scored the first run in the second inning on singles by Du Vall and Wharton. Du Vall scoring when George Gotwals let Wharton's single get away from him. Fulton started a rally for the Terps with two out in the eighth by singling. Whipp and Brandsdorf walked and McDonald's single scored Fulton and Whipp before Maisel forced McDonald at second.

Coast Guard Aids In Sailing Races

Washington skippers and their boats will be "convoyed" by vessels of the new Coast Guard Auxiliary when they compete in the long-distance race from Alexandria, Va., to Gunston Memorial Day, opening the seventh annual regatta of the Potomac River Sailing Association.

Two yachts fro mthe local auxiliary flotilla, serving as "mother ships" are going along with the racing fleet just in case any of the smaller craft meets with trouble over the 15-mile course.

Terps Favored Today In D. C. Track Meet

About 100 Entrants Will Vie in Annual A.A.U. Championships; Spotlight on Jim Kehoe

University of Maryland will be shooting for first and second places in the team standings today when it plays host to about 100 entries in the annual District A. A. U. track and field championships at College Park. The program is scheduled to get underway at 1 p. m.

The Terrapin varsity, with ten contestants, or more than has any other school or organization, is heavily favored to take the championship, while its freshman squad, though it numbers but six men, is considered strong enough to be runner-up.

Catholic University, strong in the running events, may head off the Maryland yearlings for the second spot, but the Cards do not appear to have enough power in the field to win the title over Maryland's varsity representatives.

With the field for the meet greatly weakened by the failure of Georgetown to enter any of its stars, the spotlight will play on Jim Kehoe, one of the country's foremost middle distance runners, and a quartet of sensational freshmen. From Catholic University will come Vince Campanella to compete in the 100, where he has been flirting with 10 seconds all season, and from Maryland will appear three crack yearling performers.

Foremost among these is Dick Alexander, a product of West Nottingham Academy, Maryland, who has been scoring double-figured point totals in all of the Terp freshmen meets. The versatile youngster is best in the high jump where he has cleared 6 feet 4 inches, but he also must be reckoned with in the low hurdles, broad jump and javelin throw. Alexander has not been extended this spring in the 220-yard hurdles and should he be pressed today, some observers believe he would shade 25 seconds.

Sharing honors with Campanella and Alexander will be Heckert Horn, the Maryland frosh who recently broke the Byrd Stadium discus record, and Howard Gugel, a teammate, who is unbeaten this year in the 100 and 220.

The duel in the century among Campanella, Gugel and Johnny Weschler, of the Catholic University varsity, is expected to be one of the day's most thrilling races.

Jim Kehoe, who last year raced to a record-smashing victory in the 800-meter run in the national junior A. A. U. meet at Fresno, Calif., is belived too fast for all competitors in today's half-mile contest. Should the slim former Maryland star falter, however, he may get stiff opposition from Gene Ochsenreiter, of Maryland, and Charley O'Keefe and Weschler, of Catholic University.

Horn's chief competitors in the shot and discus will be "Red" Conlen and Walter Makofske, of Catholic University.

The first annual Cy MacDonald Memorial Mile looms as a two-man affair between Maryland's Tommy Fields and C. U.'s Johnny Corbett, with a possible dark-horse entry in Bob Cogswell, former Pitt University ace, entering Fort Meade. Fields and Corbett will meet head to head again in the 2-mile race in which Fields will be favored to repeat an earlier season victory

D. C. Softball Teams Offer Double-Header

Inter-city softball, the first of a series of doubleheaders with leading tens throughout the country, will be introduced tonight at Washington Softball Stadium when the two top ranking teams in the State of Maryland clash with two of the strongest local clubs obtainable.

M. Shavitz & Sons of Baltimore, which last year won the State of Maryland title while playing as Bethlehem Steel, and piloted by Vic Levenson, former Senate Beer hurler here last year, will face the potent Fat Boy ten in the feature. Levenson is slated to take the mound. Larry Mills or Ben Harrell will hurl for the locals, Manager Morris Bealle announced last night.

In the opening game at 8 p. m., Hoffberger Ice Co., which last year was runner-up to the champions, will square off against Yellow Cab, facing the slants of the sensational Cy Stewart, who has hurled the Cabmen into the Capital City League lead during the past week with two well-deserved victories. Olin Wilcox or Dave Rosenman, two of the classiest hurlers in the Oriole City, will flip for the Baltimoreans.

A large delegation of Baltimore rooters is expected to accompany the two clubs.

Brewer Nine Plays Frederick Tomorrow

Frederick, Md., May 23.—The Frederick Hustlers, strong semipro baseball nine, will strive for a fourth straight victory Sunday afternoon against the Heurich Brewers of Washington. The game will be played at McCurdy Field at 2:30 o'clock, and Lefty Warrenfeltz will pitch for the Hustlers against Art Lacey, of the Brewers. George (Pepco) Barry, former local football star, is a member of the Washington team.

Annandale Nine Meets Franconia Tomorrow

The Annandale baseball team seeks its fourth straight victory when it meets the Franconia A. C. on the Annandale diamond tomorrow afternoon at 3.

Franconia's batteries will be Shirts and Hamilton, and Annandale's will be Jones and Deacon.

Tigers, Huskers Lead Big Six Track Trials

By the Associated Press

Lincoln, Nebr., May 23.—The annual Big Six track and field meet took on a decided Nebraska-Missouri tinge today as the defending Nebraskans qualified for 15 spots in tomorrow's finals and the Missourians grabbed off 20.

Despite the qualifying edge of Missouri's Tigers, the defending champion Nebraska Cornhuskers ruled heavy favorites in the finals. The Huskers chalked up the best marks in 6 of the 10 events in which prelims were held, while Missouri didn't top the field in any event.

Kansas State got 14 places in the finals, Iowa State 11, Oklahoma 10 and Kansas 7. But none showed the strength to give Nebraska or Missouri much worry.

Nebraska was tops with Eugene Littler in the 220 dash, with Bill Smutz in the 220 low hurdles, Ralph King in the 120 high hurdles, Herb Grote in the javelin, Ray Prochaska in the discus and Vic Schleich in the shot-put.

Oklahoma and Iowa State turned in the best performances in the 880, 100 and broad jump. Bill Lyda, of Oklahoma was best in the 880, Orville Mathews, of Oklahoma in the 100 and Bill Lechtenberg, of Iowa State, in the broad jump. The 440 Nebraska's Littler and Oklahoma's Lyda won the two heats in the identical time of :49.9. Each won breezing and gave promise of the day's top duel tomorrow.

While Missouri wasn't showing any top performances, the Tigers were giving promise of many seconds and thirds through the efforts of Marshall Reeves in the 880, Schumitzky in the broad jump, Sprinters Bob Steuber, Don Walters and Ralph Blumberg and Hurdler James Johnson. And these mean much in the 5-4-3-2-1 scoring system.

Tough luck lad today was Mathews who fell out of the 220 when he eased up while leading his heat. Orv was but 10 yards from the finish when he passed a white post he mistook for the finish line and started to pull up. Before the could get started again he was out of the running.

Central-Western Game Postponed

The scheduled meeting between Central and Western baseball teams yesterday, for the purpose of deciding which meets Eastern in the interhigh championship series, was postponed until Monday due to the unfavorable condition of the Western diamond. Starting time will again be 3:30.

Meanwhile it was announced yesterday that Roosevelt's protest of its 12-3 beating by Central has been upheld. It will be replayed from the fourth inning on if made necessary by the outcome of the Central-Western clash Monday or a Roosevelt-Anacostia meeting Tuesday.

Star Cup Won By Mrs. Kramer With Net 70

Mrs. Frank H. Kramer, first vice president of the District Women's Golf Association, took time out from her official duties to win the Class B section of the Star Cup tournament yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Kramer, tournament chairman of the association in 1939 and '40, put together nines of 50 and 56 for a 106 total and deducted 36 handicap strokes for a net 70, one of the lowest net scores in some time.

Low gross went to Mrs. J. S. Connolly, of the host club, who was out in 51, but returned in 45 for a 96. A field of 81 competed in the second half of the tournament for the 19 and over handicapped players and, although several quit because of the heat, most of them completed their rounds before the afternoon storm.

Mrs. W. D. Barkdull, of Columbia, finished four shots back of Mrs. Kramer to win second low net with 107-33, 74, while Kay Jones Argyle, won third low net over Mrs. Richard Thornburg, of Kenwood, by matching cards. Miss Jones had 103, 26, 77, and Mrs. Thornburg, a consistent prize winner over the last two years, had 99-22, 77.

Mr. Robert Keebler, Kenwood, with 101-22, 79, won fifth low net with Mrs. L. A. Wells, Kenwood, next with 108-20, 79, and Mrs. Lafayette Franklin, Washington, completing the prize winners with 99-20, 79.

Rain Handdicaps Trial Rounds for Open

Rain interrupted the rounds of the players practicing for the sectional qualifying rounds of the National Open yesterday at Columbia Country Club. No good workout scores were reported as of the ten who started out only a few completed their rounds.

Out-of-town entries are expected to play test rounds today or tomorrow for the 36-hole trials on Monday when 28 Middle Atlantic players will battle for four places to the show at Fort Worth, Tex., June 5-7.

Boys Club Tries Something New—Backward Track

A "backward" track meet was the feature of the stunt night held by Georgetown Branch of the Boys Club of Washington last night, as a part of Boys Club Week celebration.

Frank Bolac was the only double winner as he took the steplechase and the backward broad jump in the senior division. In the senior "low jump" (held instead of a high jump), George Athey and Jack Steele tied.

Among the juniors and intermediates, Bobby Bussey and Earl Raper took honors in the steeplechase; Billy Chalk and Clarence Kitts took the low jump, Arthur Rodell and Billy Wood triumphed in the backward broad jump, and Joe Collins took the junior dash, running (you guessed it) backward.

Michigan Gives Yost Honorary Athletic Title

By the Associated Press

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 23.—The University of Michigan board of regents today conferred upon Fielding H. Yost the title of professor emeritus of the theory and practice of athletics, effective upon his retirement as athletic director July 1.

Yost's 40-year service as coach and athletic director, the board's resolution said, "has been a potent inspiration for the attainment of the type of earnest, honorable manhood which he himself has so well illustrated."

Yost, now ill in a Nashville, Tenn., hospital, was 70 years old April 30.

Yost 'Much Improved' Following Heart Attack

Nashville, Tenn., May 23 (U.P.).—Fielding H. Yost, famous Michigan coach, was reported "much improved" tonight at Vanderbilt Hospital, where he was taken a week ago after suffering a heart attack.

Attendants said he had a comfortable day.

Three Tie for Medal In Scholastic Golf

Skinker, Defending Champion, and Willett Brothers Deadlock at 75 in Post Trophy Play

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Earle Skinner, the defending champion in the Scholastic Golf Championship and Bethesda' golfing Willett brothers, Carroll and Alton, tied for medal honors yesterday at Kenwood, all three-putting eighteenth green for four-over par 75s. Washington Post trophies are at stake in the tournament.

Carroll, 17-year-old captain of the Bethesda team, was the first to finish. He took eight strokes on the par four ninth and nailed his first par on the tenth hole. His first nine included an eight, five one-over-par bogeys and three birdies.

Alton came in next. The 16-year-old Bethesda student needed a par on the eighteenth to beat his brother, but he, too, three-putted, his fourth such offense of the day. However, he holed a trap shot on the fifteenth hole for birdie three and saved a putt or two there.

Skinker, the defending titlist from Devitt Prep and odds-on favorite, was one of the last ones out. He was caught in three downpours to two for the Willetts, but the Columbia youngster came through with three birdies in succession on the back nine and needed a par on the last hole for a 73. He took three to get on, however, and then three more putts to force a three-way medal deadlock. They will playoff some day next week.

District Junior Champion Bill Cassedy, of Blair High, was the principal casualty of the 18-hole medal round. Cassey required 87 strokes, which left him out of the championship flight for today's first and second round matches at Manor Country Club.

It took an 83 or better to make the grade. Four boys tied with 83s for the last two places in the flight, but a playoff was averted as Gilbert Bowie, Bladensburg, and Pete DeMarco, Eastern, had left the field andBuster Mrstik, Senate pages, and Gonzaga's George Rita won places by just being on the scene.

Myers Gets 77

Art Myers, of Roosevelt, posted a 77, which was the second lowest score of the day, while Bill Browning, also of the public school champions; Charles Cullen, Devitt, and Frank Clark, semifinalist last year from Blair, reported 78s.

Skinger, who is out to become the second two-time champion in the eight-year history of the tournament, will meet Wilbur Sartwell in the first round today, while Carroll Willett plays the first southpaw shotmaker in the tournament history, William Macatee and Alton faces Nardy Rehkopf, of Millard.

Semifinals and finals will be played tomorrow at Congressional.

Pairings

Breeders Joined By Grooms in Woodbine Boycott

By the Associated Press

Toronto, May 23.—Grooms at Woodbine Park today voted to support the Thoroughbred Breeders Association's boycott of the Ontario Jockey Club and the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations and refused to lead the horses into the paddock until the dispute is settled.

The breeders' association struck yesterday when the I. C. R. A. refused to recognize Ryland New as its representative instead of James Heffering. The Woodbine racing card was run today with 42 horses entered in 7 races and the horses were led into the paddock by other stable workers.

Four of the six owners, who were ordered yesterday to remove their stock from the track, left this morning. They were R. W. R. Cowie, Henry Dirks, Fred Schelke and George Lucas. James Fair was allowed to remain when the I. C. R. A. changed its ruling, while at noon, three hours after the I. C. R. A.'s deadline, Harry Tomlin's horses were still quartered at the track.

Landon Avenges Loss to Blair Nine

Unearned runs in the first and sixth innings yesterday enabled Landon School nine to avenge an 11-1 beating by Montgomery Blair High earlier in the season, the Green forces taking a 2-0 decision. Paul Baker hurled five-hit ball and struck out ten to be credited with the victory.

D. C., Old Line Softball Teams Meet Tonight

The first of a series of intercity softball attractions will be held at Washington Softball Stadium, Bladensburg Road and New York Avenue Northeast, tomorrow night starting at 8 o'clock when the two strongest teams in the State of Maryland invade to square off against two outstanding local tens in a double bill.

The feature game involves M. Shavitz & Sons, of Baltimore, which last year won the Maryland State title under the banner of Bethlehem Steel, and Fat Boy, one of the current favorites to win Capital City League honors. Vic Levenson, who last year hurled for the local Senate Beer club, is manager of Shavitz & Sons, as well as one of its hurling mainstays. He will be opposed by either Larry Mills or Ben Harrell, Fat Boy's two dependables.

Hoffberger Ice Co., also of Baltimore, which was runnerup for the State crown last year, will meet Yellow Cab ten, another Capital City League contender. Olin Wilcox and Dan Rosenman, two of Baltimore's standout softball hurlers, comprise the mound staff of the Hoffbergers. Cy Stewart, who has turned in two victories in league play for the Cabmen, will toil for the locals.

Little Hoyas Win 11-10 Decision

Georgetown Prep nine captured its third triumph in eight starts yesterday at Garrett Park when it edged out Bethesda, 11-10, in a five-inning engagement. Eleven errors helped in the scoring as much as 15 hits, eight by the losers.

Tigers Take Nightcap, 9 to 0, to Split Bill With White Sox

Chicago Wins Opener, 7-1; Lyons Victor

Dizzy Trout Hurls Shutout to Beat Chisox in Nightcap; Campbell Homers

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 23.—Paul (Dizzy) Trout hurled the first shutout of his three-year major league career to enable the Detroit Tigers to divide a double bill today with the second-place Chicago White Sox. Trout won the nightcap, 9 to 0, after ancient Ted Lyons had dominated the opener for a 7-to-1 victory.

Trout, in his first starting role of the season, silenced the Chicago bats that in the opener blasted Tommy Bridges from the mound in less than an inning. The dizzy one was backed by a 14-hit attack off two White Sox pitchers that included two homers by Bruce Campbell good for four runs.

Rip Radcliff, recently acquired from the St. Louis Browns, gathered four Detroit hits in the nightcap for the day's top total of six.

The 40-year-old Lyons spaced 11 hits masterfully to achieve his fourth 1941 victory against one defeat. Up until the ninth he permitted no Tiger to advance beyond second base, and Detroit's only run came with two out in the ninth on Billy Sullivan's pinch single.

The White Sox loaded the bases on Bridges in the first inning and scored five times on an error and two doubles, including Myrll Hoag's three-run blow. Luther (Bud) Thomas, who finished, yielded two more runs in the seventh.

Trout's victory ended a four-game Detroit losing streak.

Reds Stagger To 8-4 Victory Over Chicubs

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 23.—Battling back from the depths of the National League, the world's champion Cincinnati Reds knocked over the Chicago Cubs today, 8 to 4, before a ladies' day crowd of 11,729 spectators.

The Reds, who now have won five of their last six games, donated the Cubs three runs after knocking Claude Passeau out of the box in the third inning.

Johnny Vander Meer started but couldn't locate home plate, yielding three runs on no hits in the third inning. The Cubs used his three walks, a hit batsman, an infield out and Eddie Joost's error to score three times.

Vandy lasted out the inning, but was jerked in the fourth when his control was no better. Elmer Riddle took over and allowed only two hits until the ninth, when Charley George's single and Stan Hack's double scored a run.

The Reds hopped on Passeau for two runs on two walks and two singles in the first inning and added four more in the third.

Cards Whip Pirates, 2 to 1, In Night Game

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, May 23.—The Cardinals fattened their league lead to two full games tonight, repulsing the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2 to 1, in a pitching duel between Redbird Mort Cooper and Max Butcher. It was the first night game of the season, drawing 18,555 paid customers.

Cooper, in winning his fifth victory against 1 defeat, limited the Pirates to 5 hits and struck out 9, getting Elbie Fletcher three times and Arky Vaughan twice.

He was scored on in the second inning when he walked Fletcher. Vince DiMaggio and Al Lopez followed with singles. Thereafter only one man reached second base, Maurice Van Robays advancing on an error after an infield single.

Cards' Runs Tainted

The Pirate hurler yielded nine safe blows but might have had a shutout with tighter support. In the fourth inning Enos Slaughter opened with a triple but held third while Frank Crespi and Martin Marion grounded out. Gus Mancuso then walked and Cooper hit a fly to short center-field, Vaughan raced back but let the ball get away from him for a hit as Slaughter sprinted home with the tying run.

The next inning the Cards scored the winning tally without pushing the ball out of the infield. Terry Moore got an infield single and moved around to third on an error and an out. Lee Handley went to the grass back of third base for Crespi's grounder but let the ball slip away from him for a single as Moore scored.

Yanks Tied in 9th By Red Sox, 9 to 9

Darkness, Sudden Dust Storm Forces Calling of Game; Finney, Henrich Homer

By the Associated Press

New York, May 23.—The Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees, battling for third place in the American League, ended in a 9-to-9 deadlock today when darkness and a sudden dust storm halted play at the end of nine innings.

The game was a hard-hitting spectacle that included 13 safeties by the Sox and 10 by the Yankees with nine pitchers taking part. Lou Finney homered with one on for Boston in the first inning and Tom Henrich hit his second in two days with one on for New York in the second stanza.

With Charley Keller leading the attack with a triple, two doubles and two walks, the Yanks built up a 5-to-2 lead in the first three innings and went into the ninth leading 9 to 7. Then Oscar Judd delivered a pinch single for two runs to tie the score.

Joe Claims He Hit Baer Routine Blow

agree to him," Hoffman further stated.

Baer came into the champion's dressing room and congratulated Louis on his victory after the bout. The latter was standing under the shower, his left eyebrow taped. It was cut in the fifth round.

When Co-promoter Mike Jacobs came in to felicitate Buddy on his good showing, Baer greeted him with the question, "how'd I do Uncle Mike—do I get another shot at him?" Jacobs just nodded but didn't say anything.

Izzy Kline, Baer's faithful trainer, shouted at the scribes, "don't let anybody tell ya that Buddy Baer has a faint heart."

Day, Lightweight, Meets Zivic for Welter Title

Hot Springs, Ark., May 23 (AP).—Davey Day, veteran of 14 years in the ring as an amateur or professional lightweight, is preparing for an invasion of the welterweight ranks.

The 28-year-old, 137-pound Chicago battler, here for two weeks' training, said today he would meet Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic June 27 at Chicago's White Sox Stadium.

stating flatly that "Baer was definitely hit after the bell ended the sixth round. Arthur Donovan should have given Baer time to recover from the foul blow."

On the other side of the ring, Judge Joseph E. Trigg, a colored physician, was equally insistent that Louis had fouled the challenger. "Baer was fit after the bell, no question about it," said Trigg. "Joe undoubtedly did not hear the bell, which was slightly muffled due to being placed under the ring."

On the word of Timekeeper Charles Reynolds, Baer spent ten seconds on the floor during the knockdown preceding the alleged foul punch by Louis. According to Reynolds, "I counted ten before Baer was on his feet, but Donovan was slow in picking up the count and on his count of ten Baer had regained his feet. Donovan's count is official, of course."

The dispute raged on in the dressing room where, it was claimed in Baer's quarters, that Louis struck the foul blow anywhere from three to ten seconds after the bell, depending on who was telling the story. "It was at least three seconds," declared Hoffman. "It was ten seconds after the bell," screamed Trainer Izzy Kline.

In the dressing room, Baer recovered quickly. He wasn't bitter. Of Louis, he said: "Joe's a great fighter and a credit to his race, but he hit me after the bell."

Of all the 25,000 persons in the park, however, Baer at the moment of the punch was least likely to know when the bell sounded inasmuch as he was still in the funk of his nine-count knockdown a moment before.

In his own dressing room, Louis added to the confusion. Maintaining he heard no bell until he knocked Baer down, he said Baer's best punch of the fight was "the right that knocked me through the ropes."

Larry Mills Hurls Victory For Fat Boy

Behind the two-hit pitching of Larry Mills, Fat Boy ten last night punched out a convincing 9-1 triumph over Carr Brothers & Boswell in Capital City Softball League play at Washington Softball Stadium.

The victory lifted the Fat Boys into a tie for second place with Kavakos Grill only a step behind the league-leading Yellow Cab ten.

In the National Night League, Civil Service outclassed the Giant Food Store aggregation, 11-5, and rose to a tie for second place with Lansburgh's with two wins against one loss. Greenbelt, with three wins and no losses, leads the league. Joe Martz hung up his second straight pitching victory for the Government workers.

Preliminaries

Opening the card, Jay D. Turner, 214-pound newcomer from Sweetwater, Tex., outpointed Babe Ritchie, 209, Lubbock, Tex., in a four-rounder.

Holman Williams, Louis' 151-pound stablemate from Detroit, punched out a six-round decision victory over Jimmy Leto, 145, Hartford, Conn., in the second preliminary.

Erwin (Kay) Kaplan, 142¾, Los Angeles, won a six-round decision over Wicky Harkins, 146½, Philadelphia, in the bout just preceding the main event.

Ernest (Cat) Robinson, 144½, New York, outpointed Manuel Villa, 143, Mexico, in six.

Al Franklin, 146¼, Washington, outpointed Roy Dunne, 153, Washington, in six.

Louis Keeps Title as Baer Is Disqualified

ward the enemy. There's such a thing in this business as a slugger's punching himself out. Louis may have been close to it. At times he seemed to be close to it.

And yet he fought one of the greatest rounds of his entire career in slugging the seemingly nerveless Californian into the resin with three terrific rights, two of which were shot with the motion of a tired man looking at his wrist watch, but the third of which was a parabolic whizz-bang that dropped the huge pile of flesh as if a crowbar had been driven through his skull.

That was the sixth.

The battle was a sensational surprise from the first. Baer, outweighing the sleepy-looking champion 37 pounds, towering a full half foot over him and carrying an 8-inch advantage in reach, was believed to be a great good natured oaf with murder in his mittens but appeasement in his heart. Louis was an 8-1 favorite, and the best guessing of the experts was that Buddy would be pulling up the canvass with a sleepy goodnight not much later than the third.

Instead of any of this, the big patient looking Californian, swinging arms so long they looked like flailing banana stalks, walked right into the famed dynamiter, and kept right on walking despite a barrage of lefts and rights to his big patient face that looked hard enough to knock his head into the bleachers.

Near the end of the first stanza came the most electric thrill this type of big ball yard opera has known since the night Schmelling dropped this same Louis with a long overhand right that started from the altitude of his heeltacks. Louis stood backed into the ropes near the Baer corner after the white boy had bulldogged him in a slow walk across the resined quadrangle, and Baer, instead of stepping back, reared back and let drive with both barrels and full caliber.

The first was a right that caught Louis on the chin, the next a sweeping left that likewise found the jaw. This latter sweeping discharged knocked the amazed champion completely through the ropes and onto the apron of the ring. It was almost a dead ringer from the celebrated scene from the Dempsey-Firpo fight lang syne. As with Dempsey, the colored champion's head went back under the top rope, the middle rope kicked his legs upward and he fell on his shoulder blades on the padding outside.

Returned on Own Power

Unlike Dempsey, he didn't continue on down into the typewriters, and unlike Dempsey, again, he wasn't helped back into the ring by any volunteers from the literary section. He made the return under his own engineering, but the knockdown timekeeper had tolled four in funereal cadence before he could reassume a warlike stance and the enthusiastic throng of 30,000 Washingtonians had wakened the welkin for miles in all directions.

The champion was catapulted onto the carpet within reaching distance of your thoroughly startled correspondent, and his eyes had a definite cellophane haze to them as he turned over and endeavored to get oriented. That punch, or those punches, hurt him badly. It looked for a moment as if he might be in a bad way.

If he were, Baer missed the boat. There wasn't much time left anyhow. The aroused Californian did swing in and try but those great arms of his like hawsers with country hams appended, looped and swooped and invariably missed.

The homeric swat, however, and automatic credit for the round that went with it, brought the champion from his corner slugging with everything he had in the second. Like an angry terrier ragging an arthritic great Dane, he tore into the huge Californian, slipped inside his flapping guard and drilled lefts and rights to his massive head in a regular fanfaronnade.

He seemed to pour everything he ever had into this series of blows, but he couldn't knock the huge hunk of flesh down. In fact, at the bell, he seemed to have punched himself out on the man.

Spectacular Catching Job

Occasionally Baer rallied and pawed with his left or threw a right of his own, but he was doing the most spectacular job of catching since Roger Bresnahan was with the Giants.

And if went that way through the third and likewise the fourth. Baer took an active interest in his assassination occasionally, but on the whole it was Lous tearing and bobbing and weaving like a Lute-crazed cobra and firing terrific crosses and uppercuts against a concrete chin with no more perceptible effect than so many cream puffs hurled against the Washington Monument.

"Lay all over him; wear him out," Baer's seconds shrieked.

It looked as if he might, for Louis was a gent wniging wallops at a brick pile.

The fifth saw the tide shift a little. Baer came through with a rushing two-fisted rally halfway through this stanza that backed the tiring champion entirely across the linoleum, and somewhere in this interchange, the Louis left eye accrued an under-orb slice that caused the champion to blink and smear the blood with his thumb.

The crowd went wild at the sight of this gore and that percentage of the neutrals who always swing with the underdog were completely won to the Baer banners now by his extremely gallant stand. The park was bedlam as this round swung to its finish. Louis veritably seemed to have punched himself dry and his lumbering adversary was steadily coming in for more.

The sixth was really the finale, and as great a fighting round as Louis has ever turned in. Apparently convinced he was up against something too tough to fool with, he roared into action with all guns truly blazing. His opening salute to the dodging Baer was a terrific left to the jaw.

The towering white man closed and clinched and bulldogged it for a brief interlude, but Louis tore loose from the gelatinous clutch of his tentacles and knocked him stumbling with a wicked barrage of short inside rights and lefts to the chin.

Louis-Baer Title Fight By Rounds

ROUND FIVE

They mauled each other about the head at close quarters. A hard right opened a cut under Joe's eye. Joe was throwing desperation punches now and went into a half crouch to get at close quarters and fire his right. Buddy, meantime, just stayed on top. Louis threw a smashing hook to the jaw that staggered Baer and then threw both hands to the head until the bell. Baer was hurt. Baer's round.

ROUND SIX

Baer was taking frightful punishment. Baer suddenly came out of it and threw both hands to Joe's head. Louis measured Baer with a smashing right hand that floored Buddy for a count of six. Louis charged in and pummeled the challenger.

A right hand dropped Buddy flat on his back. He rolled over and just got up as the referee started to say "Ten." Louis charged across the ring as the bell rang and just as the gong sounded caught Buddy with a fearful right hand that floored Buddy again. Baer's handlers dragged him to his corner, but when the bell rang starting the seventh round, his manager, Ancil Hoffman, refused to permit him to continue, claiming Louis' final punch had been struck after the bell ending the sixth round, thus giving the fight to Baer. Referee Donovan, however, refused to permit this claim and awarded Louis a victory by disqualifying Baer for not coming out to start this round.

Louis Keeps Title Amid 'Foul' Claims

And Donovan refused to recognize the knockdown as coming after the bell.

Timekeeper Charley Reynolds said the knockdown came at least three seconds after the bell had rung. It seemed more like ten, but this department considers five seconds a better estimate. Reynolds' report, however, is the official one.

Louis' between-round punch only served to verify his state of confusion and panic. The first-round knockdown that spilled him between the second and top ropes dazed and frightened him. He fell on his head and did a somersault out of the ring. As he got up and crawled back into the ring at the count of four panic was written on his face.

Buddy had rushed him, got him off balance and then smashed over a left hook to the jaw that spilled him. It was the first time Joe had been knocked off his feet—or even hurt—since Tony Galento knocked him down two years ago.

Baer won that round, but it spelled his doom. Louis, hurt, became a killer. He nearly tore Buddy's head off with a left hook. He alternately hooked and jabbed.

And he shook Baer to the soles of his feet with short, deadly right uppercuts to the chin and heart. When he wasn't knocking Buddy's head from side to side, he was slamming paralyzing punches to the body.

Buddy took everything Joe had and kept coming back for more. And he gave Louis quite a headache, too, in redeeming himself in the eyes of the fight world and ridding himself of the "bum-of-the-month" tag that had been fastened upon him.

The junior Baer carried the fight to Joe as long as he could and never once showed signs of turning tail. In the fifth round he stung Louis with a chopping right hand to the left eye that opened a gash over the optic. Then he jarred Louis with a slashing left to the wound and tore it open some more. The Brown Bomber blinked fearfully and wore a worried look as he tried to wipe the blood out of his eyes so he could find his target.

It was that cut and the sting of the first round knockdown that made Louis realize he was in danger, and his killer instinct came to the surface in that round. He began measuring Buddy with every punch, and it was only Buddy's gameness and courage that carried him through the fifth. Buddy made one last attempt to slug it out with Louis in the hope of landing another lucky punch. Midway of the sixth after he had been battered unmercifully he opened up with a flurry of two hand punches that made the puzzled and surprised Louis back away. Irritated by Buddy's stand, Louis promptly knocked him down. You know the rest.

Duces Wild Is Winner of Ladkin Purse at Charles Town

Victor Pays $30.60; Tantrum Is Second, Clay Hill Third; 4,000 See Races

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 23.—Duces Wild, a cleverly named 3-year-old son of Pair by Pair and Lunacy, picked this sunny day to run one of his good races and he drove into the wire to take the decision in a three-way photo finish. The race was the Ladkin Purse and the chart makers gave Duces Wild a head the best of J. J. Maddock's Tantrum. The latter was credited with the same margin over Capt. Ewart Johnston's Clay Hill. A field of seven competed in the test over the Charles Town course of 120 feet more than 6 furlongs.

Jockey Buddy Root gave Duces Wild a sparkling ride and was given an ovation by the long-shot bettors who collected at $30.60 mutuel. The winner was clocked in 1:15 3-5, a second over the track record held jointly by Pimlico Lady and Red Wrack. Tonight's Louis-Baer fight in Washington had its effect on the crowd and only 4,000 showed up for the day's action.

The race was between Clay Hill and Tantrum most of the way. They ran head and head with Tantrum on the outside. In the early stages, Root was forced to steady Duces Wild when the colt got in close quarters. The Clay Hill-Tantrum battle held the stage to the stretch and then Root shot Duces Wild between horses to get to be leaders. It was "anybody's race" from there in and Duces Wild had the most punch.

Root, the Kansas City boy, was in rare riding form today and rode three straight winners. He brought N. S. Ryder's Duchess Del home in front in the fifth race and the ancient mare paid $11.80. He followed with victory on Duces Wild and then came through in the seventh race with Mrs. G. Pearce's Welsh Lad. This 7-year-old returned $17.80 to his backers.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOWMET, $5.00, $2.80, $2.40; PETE'S GOLD, $3.40, $2.60; BAY ACRE, $4.60.

MOWMET was sent through on the inside to take command, was kept to a drive and held on well. PETE'S GOLD was closest to the winner, but was not good enough. BAY ACRE closed well while racing wide. CLIFTON'S DAWN tired in the stretch run. The others were not prominent.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:06½. Winner, Shenandoah Stable's ch. g. (4), by Westwick—Pagan Lady. Trained by C. Feltner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:21.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED IDOL, $5.20, $3.00, $2.40; WAR SCARE, $5.80, $3.20; WESTING, $2.60.

RED IDOL saved ground to get to the front at the first turn, drew out gradually and won with speed in reserve. WAR SCARE bore out at the first turn, raced gamely thereafter and showed a good effort. WESTING was closest to the pace early and weakened gradually.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:33½. Winner, A. A. Baldwin's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALAMODE, $18.00, $5.00, $3.00; GROUCHY, $3.00, $2.20; STEPHEN JAY, $2.60.

ALAMODE lacked early speed, saved ground, came through on the rail to reach contention and withstood GROUCHY in the closing sixteenth. GROUCHY got through to take command, but could not withstand challenges. STEPHEN JAY was hard ridden and tired.

Daily Double—RED IDOL and ALAMODE Paid $88.60.

FOURTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:02½. Off at 4:06. Winner, S. J. Flammia's b. g. †Disqualified.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHIEF HOLLIS, $15.40, $7.20, $5.40; GOLDEN KEY, $7.40, $5.40; SMALL CHANGE, $4.80.

PLEASANT LADY rushed up to run head and head with CHIEF HOLLIS, came over on the latter leaving the backstretch, drew clear and was disqualified for foul. CHIEF HOLLIS, off alertly, darted to the front, was taken up when bothered by PLEASANT LADY and came gamely at the close. GOLDEN KEY was a forward factor from the start and appeared to be listlessly handled at the close.

FIFTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:37. Off at 4:37½. Winner, N. S. Ryder's b. m. (6), by Mud—Lady Modish. Trained by T. L. Lewis. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:28.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUCHESS DEL, $11.80, $4.40, $4.00; BUFFOON, $3.60, $2.80; IVONIA, $3.60.

DUCHESS DEL was taken up when in close quarters going to the first turn, worked her way to contention between horses, came willingly when placed to a hard drive and drew out at the close. BUFFOON saved ground early, responded when urged and was going gamely at the end. IVONIA was rushed to the front, set a good pace and tired at the close.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:01½. Winner, O. S. Jennings' ch. c. (3), by Fairbypair—Lunacy. Trained by C. Reilly. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:15⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUCES WILD, $30.60, $7.60, $4.60; TANTRUM, $4.40, $3.20; CLAY HILL, $3.40.

DUCES WILD was steadied when in close quarters going to the first turn, responded when placed to a drive, came between horses and withstood a long drive to be up in the concluding strides. TANTRUM forced the pace of CLAY HILL and closed with good energy. CLAY HILL forged to the front early, could not shake off TANTRUM and was under a hard drive at the end.

SEVENTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:30½. Off at 5:31½. Winner, Mrs. G. H. Pearce's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WELSH LAD, $17.80, $7.00, $3.60; POMARY, $5.40, $3.00; VANTRYST, $3.60.

WELSH LAD, well handled, was allowed to settle into his best stride, worked his way to contention gradually and responded to strong riding to win going away. POMARY was hard used to dispose of NAVIGATION and could not resist the winner. VANTRYST moved up menacingly on the backstretch and weakened in the closing test. NAVIGATION set the pace under hustling tactics and stopped badly.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:58. Off at 5:58½. Winner, H. W. Pearson's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KAI MIN, $6.40, $3.40, $2.40; TROSTAR, $3.60, $2.80; NETTA WOOD, $2.60.

KAI MIN, shuffled back early and forced to be taken up when in close quarters, was guided to the outside for racing room, disposed of TROSTAR to take command and drew out to win easily. TROSTAR set the early pace and continued gamely when displaced. NETTA WOOD was well placed for three-quarters and weakened. LYDE moved up menacingly and stopped suddenly.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Snooks (Esquire) Winters, obviously stung by praise in this space of Russell Oakes' robin-egg blue sports coat, turned out yesterday in a seersucker suit that put him one up in the Charles Town fashion parade. Leeds (Glamour) Riely, jockey club secretary, injected himself into the sartorial picture by getting his sparklingest sports coat out of moth balls (we almost said "hock"), and combining it with a new pair of light gray palm beach slacks. I'm having a tent made of red and white awning canvas so that I can enter the contest. A large delegation of horse owners, trainers, riders and officials of the Charles Town meeting left immediately after the races for the Louis-Baer fight in Washington. Almost to a man, they felt that the Brown Bomber would cut himself a husky slice of Baer steak. O. B. Wearley's Gold Buckle, 9-year-old bay gelded son of Polydor and Elastique II, came to the end of his racing career at the head of the backstretch in yesterday's second race. The oldster broke his front leg while running, but failed to go down, thus saving Jockey Buddy Root from what might have been a serious fall. Dr. Bill Trussell, track veterinarian, mercifully destroyed the gelding. Of the nine horses entered for today's feature race, five have been winners at the meeting and one of them, Groucher's Boy, has a double to his credit. It is a bang-up card. Well-matched fields in every race. Russell Oakes and Walter Haight will broadcast today's feature—the Berkeley Springs Handicap—over a network including WINX, Washington; WFBR, Baltimore; WJEJ, Hagerstown; WMMN, Fairmont, and WSVA, Harrisonburg, W. Va. Broadcast starts at 4:45 p. m. I want to thank somebody for turning one of the flamingoes around or did that storm do it? Jockey R. Haber left little doubt that he would claim a foul after yesterday's fourth race. He tried to run up to the stewards while he was carrying his saddle and didn't even want to be weighed in. He knew what he was talking about evidently, for the officials were not long in taking down Pleasant Lady's number and making Chief Hollis the winner. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—SATIN ROYCE has the speed to take a purse of this sort. Has shown plenty of foot in recent races and I'm going to string along. MISS HIDUR stumbled slightly in her last and is dangerous. CAT'S CRADLE is getting ready for a hard race.

Second race—WANDERING HERO looks like money from home in this sprint. Needs only the right ride. GRIST has speed and is not too highly placed. Promises to be a keen factor. MR. JIM was prominent one day at Pimlico.

Third race—CELTIC LEGEND closed like the wind last out and needs only to repeat that effort to beat these. MISS WING fits well in the company. CONNAMISTA has early foot and may have to be caught.

Fourth race—CLOCKS had trouble last out and seems suited by this opposition. I'm going to be there. CANROCK comes from a stable full of fit ones. SARANITE'S class makes him dangerous.

Fifth race—BIG JACK gets a high figure in this company and did not have good racing luck yesterday. J. HAL has speed and probably will set the pace and last long enough to take the place. GROUCHER'S BOY is too fit to be overlooked.

Sixth race—GARDEN POOL was a recent winner and gets my call in a rather open affair. REMOLEE has done about everything asked of late and will be in the thick of contention. PIMLICO LADY for the show end.

Seventh race—BROOKE HEROD is rounding into best form. Gets an inside post position for this and will be hard to beat. MOROCCO D. is a threat. OVERPLAY ran well in that recent test.

Eighth race

Capital Transit Net Soars 64% During Month

Net income of the Capital Transit Co. soared 64 per cent in April, totaling $147,788 against $89,987 in the same month last year.

Attesting to the influx of new Government workers is the company's report on revenue passengers. More than 18,800,000 passengers were carried during April, 1940, or a gain of 20 per cent.

Operating revenues for the month totaled $1,340,480, up 22 per cent; operating expenses, including depreciation and taxes, totaled $1,134,010, up 20 per cent.

For the first four months, net income totaled $370,856, against $197,519 in April, 1940. This was an increase of 87.8 per cent.

Smaller Gains in Store Sales

Washington department store sales in the week ended May 17 were 4 per cent more than in the corresponding week last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. However, volume was 26 per cent less than in the previous week this year.

For the four weeks ended May 17, local store sales were 18 per cent above the same 1940 period.

Nationally the Federal Reserve Board estimated that department store sales in the week ended May 17 were 12 per cent higher than in the corresponding week last year.

In the week ended may 10 sales were 13 per cent above last year, and in the four weeks ended may 17 they averaged 14 per cent more than in the similar period last year.

By Federal reserve districts, increases last week were: Boston 18, New York 8, Philadelphia 8, Cleveland 12, Richmond 6, Atlanta 11, Chicago 11, St. Louis 16, Kansas City 20, Dallas 20, and San Francisco 14 per cent.

Store Votes Dividends

Directors of Woodward & Lothrop, local department store, have declared regular quarterly dividends as follows: 50 cents a share on common stock; $1.75 a share on preferred stock. Both dividends are payable June 27 to holders of record June 16.

Directors of the National Mortgage & Investment Corporation, of Washington, have declared a dividend of 20 cents a share on preferred stock, payable June 16 to holders of record June 5, President Joseph B. Schaaf announced last night.

Response Is Favorable

The response to the new Treasury financing program is the best for some time, financial sources said yesterday.

The 3¼ per cent bonds due August 1, which may be exchanged for new 2½ per cent bonds or ¾ per cent notes, sold at a premium of about $25 for each $1,000 bond.

The new 2½ per cent bonds sold at about $25 over par on a when-issued basis.

It is expected that allotment of new 2½ per cent bonds may not exceed 7 per cent of the amount bid for by security buyers.

Virginia Realtors Meet

Recent rulings of the Virginia State Bar restricting the legal activities of realtors and the problem of the broker and the salesman were among matters to be discussed at the spring meeting of the Virginia Real Estate Association, which opened at Farmington, Va., yesterday afternoon.

Speakers for the two-day session will include Curt C. Mack, Washington, chief underwriting valuator of the FHA, and Charles X. Palmer, defense housing coordinator, also of Washington.

A banquet was held last night. James E. Etheridge, of Norfolk, is the association president.

U. S. Collections Gain

The Treasury reports internal revenue collections totaled $414,646,178 in April, reflecting a $119,994,194 increase over the same month last year due to higher tax rates and better business.

Income and excess profits taxes amounted to $74,148,662, an increase of $27,930,209; social security and railroad retirement taxes were $88,765,643, an increase of $11,455,875; alcohol and tobacco taxes were $66,134,428, a $19,336,056 gain; agricultural adjustment taxes were $7,396,199, a $2,396,675 increase, and other internal revenue totaled $178,201,244, an increase of $56,275,376.

Personal Finance Trend

The Commerce Department says that consumers apparently are paying ahead of schedule on their debts to personal finance companies.

This explanation was offered for the fact that while these companies made 5.5 per cent more loans in the first quarter of 1941 than in the similar period last year, they received repayments 12.5 per cent higher.

During the quarter, new loans exceeded repayments by $700,000 while last year in the similar period loans exceeded repayments by $13,700,000.

Hardware Sales Up 16 Per Cent

Sales by 437 distributors of hardware and allied lines, as reported to the Census Bureau, amounted to $44,208,000 during March, an increase of 16 per cent over February and 41 per cent greater than during March, 1940. Reports from 17 manufactures showed new orders during March were 34 per cent greater than during February and 145 per cent ahead of March of last year.

Morgan Co. Heads Sold M. S. Stock, SEC Hearing Told

New York, May 23 (AP).—J. P. Morgan & Co., Inc., officers who held preferred stock of the investment banking firm of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., on January 13, have disposed of their holdings, spokesmen for the firm told the Securities & Exchange Commission today.

The Morgan bank recently asked the SEC to study its relationship to the investment firm to see whether the bank met SEC qualifications as trustee for security issues underwritten by Morgan Stanley.

George Whitney, Russell C. Leffingwell and Charles D. Dickey, officers of the Morgan bank, appeared before the SEC here. A representative of the firm read a list of Morgan Stanley preferred stock holdings by J. P. Morgan officers as of January 13, and of the dates on which they had disposed of shares.

Ony five persons now own stock in both bank and investment firms, it was said.

Week's Auto Output Estimated at 133,560

Detroit, May 23 (AP).—Car and truck production this week, according to Ward's Reports, Inc., will reach 133,560 units. This compares with 127,255 assemblies last week when production at several points was impeded by strikes. A year ago this week output totaled 96,810 cars and trucks.

Ward's said that April reports indicated that month was the highest retail registration period in automotive history. May volume, it added, is continuing in similarly high ground.

U. S. Revises Lower Cotton Crop Estimate

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department yesterday issued revised estimates of the 1940 cotton crop placing production at 12,564,640 bales of 500 pounds gross weight, compared with its estimate of 12,686,000 bales made last December, and 11,817,000 bales produced in 1939.

The area in cultivation to cotton on July 1 last was 24,871,000 acres, compared with 24,683,000 on that date for the 1939 crop. The area picked was 23,861,000 acres, compared with 23,805,000 for the 1939 crop.

Savage Arms Stock Listing Authorized

New York, May 23 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange today authorized for listing—but not to be admitted to dealings until further notice—the Savage Arms Corporation's 739,144 shares of common stock of $5 par value upon official notice of issuance of the shares.

Stockholders yesterday authorized exchange of present common stock without par value for these new shares, at a rate of four new shares for each share outstanding.

Lead Refinery Output Declines

New York, May 23 (AP).—The American Bureau of Metal Statistics announced today that lead refinery production was 56,086 tons in April, against 61,503 the previous month and 35,423 in April, 1940.

Stock at the end of the month was 42,899 tons for April, 1941, and 63,610 for the comparable month in 1940; domestic shipments were 59,169 tons in Apirl, compared with 46,496 in the like 1940 month.

Defense Work Progress Seen Satisfactory by G. E. Head

By the Associated Press

New York, May 23.—Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric Co., asserted today that he was "well satisfied" with the progress of American defense manufacturing, and disclosed that his own company is running a month ahead of schedule on deliveries of propulsion equipment for United States warships.

The industrial executive, talking informally at a press conference, said United States Army and Navy sbpecifications for defense materials were superior to similar products being turned out by the European belligerents.

Although miracles should not be expected by the public, Wilson said, manufacturers were cooperating wholeheartedly in the greatest armament production effort in history.

"It takes a tremendous amount of preparation, including construction and tool-making, before brand-new models of intricate products can get into full production," Wilson said. "It seems to me that everything that can be expected on the time basis is being accomplished."

For expansion, the General Electric head said his company was constructing factories at a present rate of $50,000,000 a year. Today there are some 110,000 employes in General Electric plants, 32 per cent above this time last year, and for months, he said, there has been an average of 9,000 extra employes "in training" for technical operations.

The company is receiving orders, he said, at the rate of $600,000,000 every six months, and expects to turn out about $300,000,000 worth of products in the first half of this year.

Of the total orders, Wilson said, about 60 per cent are directly traceable to defense demands. In addition, he said, "undoubtedly" many standard products, such as certain types of motors, are being used in defense industries.

Wilson predicted that research and engineering programs now under way for war industries would give a lift to peacetime manufacturing, saying:

"The postwar civilization will receive tremendous benefits as a result of the Nation's defense work, through the development of new products, materials and techniques.

"I earnestly hope that when peace returns to the world, industry and Government, arm in arm, will plan together a peaceful economy."

Wilson said thus far, in the case of his own company, there had been no hompering of defense work through shortages of raw materials, but, he added, it had been necessary to curtail some standard production—he mentioned electric irons specifically—because of defense priorities.

He said the earnings of the company in the first half of this year probably would run about the same as in the first half of 1940, when they equaled 91 cents a share.

Banking Group May Purchase W. R. & E. Co.

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, May 23.—The New York Times today said:

"According to reports in the financial district, investment banking groups are preparing to bid for the holdings of the North American Co., in its Washington subsidiary, the Washington Railway & Electric Co. North American owns slightly in excess of 50,000 shares of Washington Railway common which has an aggregate market value of approximately $30,000,000. In the past, the North American Co., in scaling down its interest in the Washington property, has distributed participating units to its stockholders in place of cash dividends. Outright sale of its holdings in Washington Railway would necessitate a change in this stock-distribution policy."

Directors previously had contemplated paying quarterly dividends in common stock of the Washington Railway Electric Co. but today said they now had under consideration other plans for disposing of that property, according to the Associated Press.

Meanwhile, directors of North American Co., a utilities holding firm, announced today a dividend to be paid in stock of its subsidiary, Detroit Edison, at the rate of one $20-par capital share for each 50 shares of North American common.

The dividend, payable July 1 to stock holding of record June 10, and subject to Securities Commission approval, was voted in line with the company's plan to retain cash earnings to retire debentures and to divide itself of operating company control in line with the Public Utilities Holding Company Act. Forty cents a share will be paid to holders of less than 50 shares of North American common.

Directors also voted to redeem $10,000,000 in 4 per cent debentures July 1.

Furniture Prospects Bright

The highest volume of sales since 1929 is forecast for the furniture industry during 1941 because of a continued high level of residential building activity and the release of replacement demand, which was deferred during the 1930s. Furniture sales for 1941 are estimated at $500,000,000, an 11 per cent rise over 1940 and about 24 per cent below the 1929 level. Improvement in manufacturers' earnings will be restricted, however, because of advancing raw material prices, increased labor costs and higher taxes. Retailers should make relatively better showings because of their ability to adjust prices to offset higher costs.

Outlook Better

The large soap companies normally make their best showing in periods of rising prices for fats and oils, partly because of inventory profits and partly because of forward buying by the trade. The necessity of carrying big inventories gives them an advantage over smaller units in periods such as the present, when material prices are booming. Soap prices have been raised slightly, but a more important offset to rising costs probably has been advances in prices of other items produced. Although no good substitutes for imported coconut and palm oil have been found, stocks in the hands of the large companies are believed sufficient to last for many months should supplies be cut off. Moreover, in the latter event, their competitive edge over smaller soap makers would be widened, since soap, whatever its quality, will always be used in about the same quantity.

Metal Trade Worried

Fabricators in the non-ferrous metal field are expressing increasing concern over their prospects in the post-war period. They are finding it hard to square the big expansion in their trade's facilities with what they are hearing about the successful substitution of plastics for aluminum, copper, brass, and the like. And they are wondering how much of their recent cost increases, particularly those in wages, are going to be permanent, and how much these are going to hamstring their efforts to fight plastics competition on something like even terms.

Stock Market Displays Firmer Undertone But Turnover Shrinks to 9-Month Low

New York, May 23.—A little more confidence returned to the stock market today but there still were enough doubters to keep any whorthwhile rally from developing.

While a few rails, rubbers, aviations and specialties managed to edge forward, numerous leaders finished an apathetic session in the minus column.

Drying up of selling was encouraging to bullish forces. Claims of the British that the Battle of Crete was far from being lost aided sentiment to some degree. A batch of pleasing dividend declarations also was helpful. At the same time, many customers held aloof pending outcome of the Mediterranean conflict, more light on the tax program, the labor picture and spreading price "ceilings."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 39.8. Volume dwindled to 261,580 shares, second smallest turnover since last August 26. It compared with 401,530 the day before.

Many leaders never registered on the ticker tape. Bethlehem Steel, for instance, opened two hours and ten minutes late and ended down ½ at 69½. U. S. Steel was up ¼.

Finishing with modest advances were Santa Fe, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Goodyear, Goodrich, Sperry, Aviation Corporation, Pan-American Airways, Westinghouse, Commercial Investment Trust, National Biscuit, American Tobacco "B" and corn products.

Lower were Chrysler, American Telephone, Kennecott, American Smelting, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, J. C. Penney, Standard Oil (N. J.), Beneficial Industrial Loan and Western Union.

North American was up ½ when the company voted to pay a common dividend of one share of Detroit Edison capital stock of $20 par value for each 50 shares of North American held.

Propping the rails were estimates revenues would mount sharply above spring estimates and freight loadings reach the 900,000-mark weekly by June. Wage demands of the brotherhoods, though, remained as a restraining influence.

A continued high level of retail spending and a jump in this week's automotive production inspired scant buying.

In a spotty curb small gains were shown for Humble Oil, Lake Shore, N. J. Zinc and Patnapec. Losers included Niagara Hudson Power, Gulf Oil and American Cyanamid "B." Tranactions approximated 60,000 shares versus 71,000 yesterday.

The United States Government Bond market was strong in over-the-counter trading today, tax-exempt issues climbing 1/32 to 3/32 point and the new 2½s closing at 102 2 3/32, near the day's high. Dealers reported active business.

On the Stock Exchange, prices of Federals were listed 5/32 lower to 4/32higher.

The corporate list was relatively quiet, although transfers were well-scattered. Prices were mostly within fractions of yesterday's close.

Up shades among the top-flight corporates were Bethlehem Steel 3½s at 106, Continental Oil 2¾s at 106. Detroit Edison 3s at 105, Texas Corporation 3s of '65 at 105, and McKesson and Robbins 5½s.

Transactions were the lightest of the week, dropping to $4,371,450 face value compared with $6,590,500 yesterday.

206 Companies Seen Operating At 98% Capacity

New York, May 23 (AP).—The National Industrial Conference Board said today 206 manufacturers reported opertaing at an average of 98 per cent of theoretical capacity at the end of March.

These figures mean, the private research organization said, "that from now on increased output can be obtained, as a general rule, only by expansion in plant and equipment, the use of additional shifts, increased overtime, or some combination thereof."

Its report showed 94 of the surveyed companies running at 100 per cent of rated capacity, or higher, while 112 had room for increased output.

Of 122 durable goods makers, 122 reported operations at capacity or better, while 64 were below rated capacity. Nondurable goods manufacturers showed 25 at capacity and 40 below.

Prosperity Note: High-Price Cigar Sales Leap 21%

New York, May 23 (AP).—Prosperity note: sales of 15 to 20 cent cigars are up 20.84 per cent from last year, the Cigar Institute of America reported today.

Sports fans help kick the total up each summer, the institute said, but not ordinarily as much as the jump to 490,584,765 cigars in April this year from 425,140,424 in April, 1940.

The institute said five-centers sold 15.53 per cent better in April than in the 1940 month and 8 to 15 centers 14.79 per cent better.

Gasoline Prices Firm In Mid-Continent Area

New York May 23 (AP).—Recent hiking of quotations for crude petroleum in the Southwest fields has been followed by firmer gasoline wholesale prices in the Mid-Continent area, it was learned today.

Two boosts of ⅛ cent each have been made in gas prices in the past two days, making 5⅝ to 6 cents a gallon, and Middle West prices are now 5.3 to 6 cents.

Illinois Central Nets $3,485,000 in Year

Chicago, May 23 (AP).—In the first four months of this year the Illinois Central Railroad system had net income of $3,485,000 compared with a loss of $504,000 in the like period last year, J. L. Beven, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting today.

"May promises a net income of $500,000, roundly. Last year the road had a deficit of $642,000 in May, Beven said.

OPM Official Warns of Huge Task Facing U. S.

The United States in its defense effort "Must do in a maximum of two years what Hitler has taken at least eight to do," Robert W. Horton, director of information of the Office for Emergency Management, declared yesterday.

He told the Society for the Advancement fo Management, meeting at the Wardman Park Hotel, that "we may have to deprive ourselves of more butter than did Hitler to get guns."

Hitler, he said, "with conquest on his mind and on his drawing board for years on end was able to build up his machine slowly by comparison with the time allotted to us, and I may say we do not know how much more time is allotted to us.

"For that reason it is vital that not one hour of it be lost."

Germany, he added, is now spending about $4,000,000,000 a month on armament—or between 60 and 65 per cent of the national income.

Senate Passes Bill To Hold Loan Cotton

Stocks of cotton now under Government loan would be kept out of normal market channels under a bill passed today by the Senate and sent to the House.

Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, won approval of the measure, which would direct the Commodity Credit Corporation to withhold from markets all cotton it now owns. Growers with uncalled cotton loans would be paid the difference between market prices and the original loan after deduction of warehouse and other costs.

$5,000,000 Squibb Issue Sold Privately

New York, May 23 (AP).—Carleton H. Palmer, chairman of the E. R. Suibb & Sons, announced today the company had sold privately to a New York insurance company $5,000,000 in 20-year, 3¼ per cent sinking debentures.

The money will be used to refund the corporation's $2,500,000 ten-year serial bank notes, pay for recent laboratory additions, and add to working capital.

Beech Aircraft Lifts Hourly Wage Rate

New York, May 23 (AP).—The Beech Aircraft Corporation, Wichita, Kan., announced today a general wage increase of 2½ cents per hour for workers paid on a hourly basis.

The company said the increase was granted "as a reward for attaining a high level of production on the twin-engine Beechcrafts ordered by the Government."

Ryerson Sees Cut In Steel Dividends

Chicago, May 23 (AP).—Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the Inland Steel Co., said today that returns to stockholders of steel companies would be diminished as a result of the national defense program.

He asserted that the steel industry was faced with higher wages, increased taxes and frozen price levels, and that stockholders would accordingly have to make sacrifices.

Canada Marts Shut Today

Toronto, May 23 (By Canadian Press).—All Canadian stock and commodity exchanges will be closed Saturday, May 24, in observance of Victoria Day. The Winnipeg Grain Exchange will also be closed. Trading will be resumed on Monday.

Steel Shortage Slows Makers Of Freight Cars

By the Associated Press

New York, May 23.—Steel plate shortages prevented completion of 5,000 freight cars during the last two months, industry authorities estimated today.

Some car plants face suspension unless materials can be obtained, and the situation is growing worse instead of better, reports said.

Car builders had hoped to deliver by October 1, peak traffic period, the bulk of the more than 50,000 cars on their books, but there appeared to be little chance of making that deadline without more supplies.

American Car and Foundry Co. announced new orders for 567 railroad cars. The Association of American Railroads reported 56,502 cars on order May 1 with orders for 16,225 expected.

From Nashville, Tenn., came word that the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway would spend $5,000,000 for new equipment to meet demands of the national defense program.

President Fitzgerald Hall said the equipment would inclued 1,000 freight cars, 10 all-steel passenger cars, and 16 locomotives, six of which would be Diesel-powered switch engines. Hall said $4,000,000 would be borrowed and $1,000,000 taken from the system's reserves.

Earnings Reports

Pennsylvania Railroad Co. reported net railway operating income in April totaled $6,025,764, a gain of $193,222 over the same month last year. For the first four months this year, net totaled $26,271,822, an increase of $4,305,418 over the corresponding period last year.

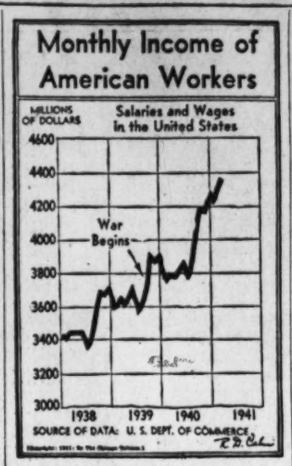
Holly Sugar Corporation, reported net profit for the year ended March 31, of $1,660,659, or $3.02 a common share, compared with $1,407,645, or $2.50 a share, in the preceding year.

The Reading Co. announced its net railway operating income for the month of April was $938,737, an increase of $8,188 over April, 1940. Net railway operating income for the four months ended April 30 was $4,957,346, an increase of $1,169,844 over the corresponding period of 1940.

General American Transportation Corporation reported consolidated net profit for the quarter ended March 31 of $1,165,853, equal to $1.13 a common share, and compared with $1,241,662, equal to $1.20 a share for the march quarter, 1940.

Northern Pacific Railway reported net railway operating income for April totaling $1,409,289, an increase of $480,330 over April, 1940.

Chicago Yellow Cab Co., Inc., and subsidiaries reported net profit for the March quarter of $127,923 before excess profits tax, equal to 42 cents a share, compared with $77,403, or 26 cents a share, for the like quarter of 1940.



Cotton Campaign Increases Retail Trade in Week

New York, May 23 (AP).—Retail buying continued at a brisk pace this week, with sales averaging 12 to 16 per cent above last year for the country as a whole, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

A few centers noted a somewhat slower movement of household appliances. Deliveries on refrigerators and washers becoming spottier.

Sporting goods moved briskly with fishing supplies frequently in the lead. Grocery volume reached new high ground, and estimated 15 per cent above last year at this time.

Record demand for automobiles, taxing production and deliveries, kept dealers' sales approximately 30 per cent higher than in the 1940 period.

U. S. Rubber Plans To Widen Activities

New York, May 23 (AP).—Expected defense demands on United States Rubber Co. prompted today a call for a sepcial stockholders meeting July 8 to vote on widening the firm's present charter to permit additional activities, "possibly including the making of munitions."

A statement outlining the company's plan said: "It is expected that the Government of the United States may soon call upon the company to engage in activities important to the national defense."

Furniture Group Elects

Roanoke, Va., May 23 (AP).—Furniture dealers in Virginia and the Carolinas elected J. W. Cunningham, of Winston-Salem, N. C., president of the Southern Retail Furniture Association at the closing session yesterday.

Cotton Leads Commodities In Recovery

By the Associated Press

Speculative commodities yesterday recorded erratic swings, but some strategic staples rapidly overcame the influence of Thursday's near collapse and closed with sharp gains.

That traders were still wary of new action on price ceilings and other Federal measures to control speculative activities in the commodity exchanges was evident from the nervous oscillations in the early trading.

The tone of markets improved in the later dealings, partly as a result of recoveries in cotton and wheat on Washington reports indication the President would sign the parity loan bill.

New York cotton futures closed 60 cents to $1.05 a bale higher; Chicago wheat ended above the lows at unchanged to ½ cent a bushel down. Corn was ⅞ to ½ cent up.

Rubber futures bounced back from yesterday's tumble with gains of .30 to .52 of a cent a pound. The earlier break was attributed to action taken to raise margin requirements.

Slightly higher were cocoa, sugar, cottonseed oil, and Santos Coffee. Hides and silk were mixed.

The Associated Press index of 35 wholesale spot staples was down for the second consecutive time, after a long climb. It closed at 84.86 per cent of the 1926 average compared with 84.88 per cent Thursday.

Step Taken to Curb Coffee Speculation

The Office of Price Administration announced last night that representatives of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange had agreed to increase margin requirements on coffee futures contracts for outside speculative interests to $625 per contract from the present level of $250.

The action is subject to confirmation by exchange officials.

Officials said the exchange also would institute a prompt review of market letters and seek cooperation of members in preventing solicitation of speculative accounts in coffee futures.

Creditors Indorse Erie R. R. Plan

By the Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission said yesterday its plan of reorganization for the Erie Railroad Co. had been accepted by the principal classes of creditors and stockholders.

The commission, which conducted the balloting among aligible creditors and stockholders, will certify the result to the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, Eastern division, which has jurisdiction in the proceeding. The court already has approved the plan.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 23 (AP).—Wheat prices dipped a cent a bushel in early trading today, rallied almost 3 cents about midsession and then closed with little or no change compared with yesterday's finish.

The reason for wide fluctuations was attributed by grain brokers to an outburst of short covering and buying around 11 a. m. in connection with rumors that the President was preparing to sign the 85 per cent of parity loan rate bill, legislation largely responsible for the strong advance the past few weeks. Later, when this buying was satisfied, the market resumed its drifting tendency due to the war situation and other disquieting factors.

Wheat closed unchanged to ½ lower compared with yesterday; July, 97½@97⅞; September, 98¾@98⅝. Corn, ⅛ to ⅛ higher; July, 73½@73⅝; September, 74¾@74⅞. Oats, unchanged to ⅛ up. Soybeans, ½ to 1½ lower. Rye, 1½ lower to 1¼ higher. Lard, 5 lower to 5 higher.

A Washington report just before the close virtually confirmed earlier rumors. It indicated an agreement had been reached between Administration and Congressional farm leaders on legislation which, together with benefit payments, would give producers 100 per cent of parity on basic crops.

Buffington Defends Fox Opinions

Philadelphia, May 23 (AP).—In a dramatic courtroom appearance, retired United States Circuit Judge Joseph Buffington, 85, today defended opinions written in the William Fox bankruptcy cases by Judge J. Warren Davis. Buffington signed the opinions as the senior member of the court.

The white-haired Buffington, a member of the Federal judiciary for 46 years, was called by the Government at the trial of Judge Davis, also retired, and Morgan S. Kaufman, Scranton, Pa., attorney. With Fox, who pleaded guilty, they were indicted on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the United States.

"I want you to know," Buffington told the jury, "that although I didn't write these opinions I am not shirking or repudiating them. I regard them as good law, bowing to the Supreme Court in the one case in which we were reversed."

The Government has charged Fox sought judicial favors through unsecured loans to Davis. In the indictment, it alleged that opinions in five cases before the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in which Fox was interested had been written by Davis and that the defendants influenced Buffington, then senior judge, to sign them. Buffington retired in 1938. Davis a year later.

Judge Buffington, using an ear trumpet, was asked if 74-year-old Judge Davis hadn't been his "ear" in court.

"That's a homely way of saying it," he replied, "but it about states the fact. I trusted Judge Davis in every case assigned to him and I trusted him implicitly."

He related that a number of the cases, affecting Movie Producer Fox's one-time vast fortune, had been appealed from decisions of District Judge John Boyd Avis, of the United States Court at Camden, N. J., and that when there were reversals in which Judge Davis was called upon to write the appellate court's opinion, ill feeling developed between Judge Avis and Judge Davis.

"I felt that Judge Avis would not object to a reversing opinion by me," he went on, "so for the peace and good will of the circuit I shouldered the responsibility for these opinions and put them out in my own name even though Judge Davis had written them."

Work at Regular Salary or Quit, CCC Men Ordered

An "extra pay" dispute left 5,000 national defense instructors in Civilian Conservation Corps camps faced today with the choice of continuing at their regular salaries or resigning immediately.

James J. McEntee, CCC director, disclosed that instructors—all of whom are regular CCC foremen drawing $2,400 a year—in 25 Wisconsin camps had refused to continue off-hours defense courses on grounds a "favored few" were being paid additional for such work.

McEntee asserted the source of the trouble lay in the practice of vocational education officials who add to the pay of some instructors the officials feel may be doing better jobs than others.

Advised of the refusal of some instructors to continue the courses, McEntee issued an order limiting all to the original CCC wage scale and accompanied it with a terse demand that those who did not accept the order resign immediately.

110th Artillery Plans Field Day For Meade Guests

Fort George G. Meade, Md., May 23 (AP).—The 110th Field Artillery prepared today to entertain hundreds of guests from Baltimore and vicinity tomorrow and Sunday with a two-day program of sports, social and military events.

The Pikesville Regiment, commanded by Col. Henry C. Evans, is the Twenty-ninth Division's official "at home" host for the weekend. Unofficially the 110th began its entertaining today, having as guests this afternoon members of the old Battery A from which the present regiment had its beginning.

The special weekend events will begin at 2 p. m. with a lacrosse game between teams of the First and Second Battalions. Other highlight events are two dances for enlisted men tomorrow night and a regimental review at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

There will be a regimental religious service at 11 a. m. Sunday, conducted by Chaplain Edward W. Eanes. Assistant Division Chaplain Harold F. Donovan will conduct Catholic services at 9:30 o'clock.

U. of Md. to Greet Chamber Group

University of Maryland's College of Commerce will play host to representatives of Chambers of Commerce of Washington and Maryland today at a conference to further cooperation between the Chambers and the College. The meeting will open at 10 a.m., with Dean W. MacKenzie Stevens of the College of Commerce presiding.

Among Chamber of Commerce leaders who have made reservations are: R. W. Schneider, of the Greater National Capital Committee of Washington; William Press, Washington Board of Trade; Fred B. Linton, United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington; Robert S. Billhimer, Rockville; Clay Whiteford and James Campbell, both of Hyattsville; Hardee King, Hagerstown; W. S. Hamill, Baltimore Association of Commerce; Alf Truitt, Salisbury; C. H. Feete, Brunswick. Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, will welcome the group at a luncheon in the university wining hall at 12:15 p.m.

Farm Youth Seized In 20,000 Robbery

Levelland, Tex., May 23 (AP).—A 20-year-old farm youth was arrested today for the $20,000 robbery of the First National Bank and a short time later his mother reported finding most of the loot buried on the farm.

The youth, Larson Crawford, son of a prominent farm couple, was quoted as saying he wanted the money so he could get married.

Ickes Will Preside At Meeting to Save Anti-Nazi Refugees

Efforts to rescue distinguished anti-Nazi refugees will be discussed at a program tomorrow night at which Secretary of Interior Ickes will preside.

The meeting, on "America and the Anti-Nazi Refugee," will be held at 8:30 p. m. at the Shoreham Hotel under auspices of the Washington Committee of Sponsors of the Emergency Rescue Committee. Speakers will be Dr. Frank Kingdon, chairman of the latter committee, Edgar Ansel Mowrer, Princess Paul Sapieha, Count Carlo Sforza, William Shirer, Genevieve Tabouis.

An announcement stated that the "Emergency Rescue Committee has exact information in respect to more than 500 men and women, each of whom is at this moment in dreadful fear of arrest by the Gestapo. With the cooperation of the State Department we are able to save for America those among them whose lives are in danger and whose political integrity is unquestionable."

2 Nooses Found In Home, Emory Jury Is Told

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 23.—Two nooses were found in the West End apartment of Mrs. Ruth Steadman, 26, one about the neck of her married sweetheart, Robert Emery, and the other dangling from a bathroom fixture, witnesses testified today at the murder trial of the blonde Harvard Business School secretary.

The prosecution contends the attractive blonde strangled the young father of two children after he had been stupefied by sleeping tablets.

Medical witnesses said Emery's body contained enough drug to have in itself caused death, but they insisted it was the white cotton cord about his neck that actually killed him.

Medical Examiner Cornelius J. O'Leary insisted Emery could not have tied the cord about his own neck. He said the cord was so tight he could not place his index finger beneath it, but conceded that his autopsy disclosed no fracture of the throat organs or destruction of tissue beyond an indentation left by the rope.

Dr. Jacob Shapiro, first doctor to reach the scene, testified he lifted the cord with his finger and observed a white mark beneath it.

Wrecked Mine Yields 14 Dead

By the Associated Press

Bicknell, Ind., May 23.—The Bicknell Coal Co.'s Panhandle mine, near here, gave up the blackened bodies of 14 miners today, victims of a terrific explosion that dropped them in their tracks 325 feet underground.

Seventeen others struggled through dust and debris to safety. They walked 2½ miles through side passages to avoid gas-filled corridors.

Wives and mothers prepared tonight to bury the dead. The women, their emotions paralyzed by the first impact of tragedy, waited stoically around the mine tipple through the long hours until the oxygen-masked rescue crew began sending sheeted bodies to the surface. It wasn't until then that the women gave way, even though mine officials had said there wasn't a chance for any of the 14 men after the survivors had come to the surface and told what had happened.

Dr. Byrd Asks $100,000 Fund For Armory

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, announced yesterday that he had submitted an application to the Works Projects Administration for an appropriation of $100,000 for the erection of a new armory on the campus.

During the last session of the Maryland State Legislature a similar amount was voted for erection of an armory. When completed the armory will house the military department and its supplies.

Construction will begin as soon as possible after WPA approval, which, it was said, is expected to come within the next few weeks.

Priorities Bill Goes to Roosevelt

By the Associated Press

The "mandatory priorities" bill cleared Congress yesterday when the Senate approved, 35 to 25, a conference report and sent the bill to the White House. The measure gives the Office of Production Management sweeping authority to place the production of munitions for the British and the United States ahead of all production for civilian consumption.

Deleted was a provision setting up a priorities control division separate from OPM. Administration men had fought this on the ground that divided responsibility was undesirable.

'Battle of Britain' Pins To Go on Sale Here

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Viscountess Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador, are due to receive on "Empire Day" today the first of the new "Battle of Britain" pins made in England from fragments of air bombs and antiaircraft shells picked up on English streets.

Mrs. Hubert Martineau, chairman of the aid-to-Britain division of the British-American Ambulance Corps announced from its New York headquarters that the first two souvenirs would be sent here. The pieces of metal, stamped with the words, "Battle of Britain" are to be placed on sale in stores Monday, Mrs. Martineau announced, with 5 per cent of the $1.50 price going to the aid-to-Britain division of the corps.

3d 'June Week' Starts Today At Annapolis

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, May 23.—Tomorrow is the big day that 2,063 Naval Academy midshipmen have been looking forward to for a year.

It marks the close of final examinations and the beginning of the Academy's third—but major—"June Week."

There won't be any graduation—the senior class was graduated last February. But this "June Week" packs more thrills, excitement and glamor than the seniors or the reservists—at the second "June Week" earlier this month—enjoyed.

The nine-day "June Week" is crammed full of athletic events, full dress parades, informal dances, hops, motion pictures, picnics, band concerts and colorful ceremonies.

Color Rite on Wednesday

The presentation of colors ceremony at a full dress parade May 28 on Worden Field is the high spot of the program. While thousands of spectators look on, the Academy's "Color Girl" will present the regimental and national flags to the company victorious in drill competition between the 12 companies.

She will be assisted at the ceremony by Rear Admiral Russell Willson, Academy superintendent, and the winning company commander—usually her sweetheart.

The victorious company commander is given the honor of naming the "color girl." The intercompany competition is over, but the "color girl" will not be announced until early next week. Academy officials have not yet disclosed whether this year's "color girl" will be permitted to bestow a kiss upon the victorious company commander at the ceremony. The embrace was barred from the ceremony last year.

Tunney Will Speak

Lieut. Comdr. Gene Tunney, U. S. N. R., former heavyweight boxing champion, will come here Monday afternoon to address the midshipmen in Thompson Stadium and to demonstrate a new exercising device.

The freshman and sophomore classes completed their examinations today and the juniors wind up their work tomorrow.

The "June Week" curtain will rise tomorrow with an athletic program including the McMillan Cup elimination sailing races on the Severn River; baseball and golf matches with the University of Pittsburgh; tennis with the University of Maryland and a rifle match with the Quantico Marines.

Informal dances for the junior and sophomore classes are scheduled in the late afternoon with hops for the two classes and motion pictures at night. Academy graduates will get together at an officers' hop at the Officers' Club.

Prize Winners Listed

Midshipman Robert A. Kirtland, a sophomore, of Newport, R. I., will receive a gold wrist watch for his knowledge of current world history; Midshipman James J. O'Donnell, a junior, of Baltimore, will get a letter of commendation and two years' subscription to a news magazine for taking second place, and Midshipman Joseph L. Boyd, jr., a freshman, of Fort Knox, Ky., the same award as O'Donnell for winning third place.

Midshipman James Hurst, a junior, of San Luis Obispo, Calif., and George F. Pierce, a sophomore, of Sparta, Ga., won first and second place, respectively, in interclass sailing. Hurst will get marine binoculars and Pierce a spyglass.

For winning the small-arms target practice, Midshipman Guilford D. Acker, a junior, of Charlottesville, Va., will receive a gold medal. A second-place silver medal will be awarded to Midshipman James W. Wyrick, of San Francisco, Calif., and a third-place bronze medal to Midshipman James M. Ashley, jr., of Salmon, Idaho.

1,000 Homeless As Flood Strikes New Mexico Area

Carlsbad, N. Mex., May 23 (AP).—Rain-fed mountain torrents, racing upon this Pecos River city in 15-foot crests, left 1,000 persons homeless tonight and at least a dozen missing.

Flood waters remained several blocks from the business section, but cut highways on three sides of the city.

British Warships Enter Gibraltar

La Lindea, Spain, May 23 (U.P.).—A flotilla of British destroyers, two cruisers and the aircraft carrier Furious entered the port of Gibraltar today, one going into dock for repairs.

The Furious was damaged near the water line on the port side toward the stern, apparently by a torpedo rather than a bomb. It was understood that several airplanes were being put aboard, presumably replacing losses in aerial combat.

Later on the Ark Royal, Renown and Sheffield, all British warships, arrived at Gibraltar.

After almost two years, you're going to hear a new feminine vocalist on "Your Hit Parade" over WJSV and the Columbia network tonight. Bea Wain is taking something of a busman's holiday by going on an extended vaudeville tour and her place on the popular musical program is being taken by Louise King.

Just for the record, although it doesn't mean much on the radio, unfortunately, Miss King is blonde, and beautiful. But what is important to radio is that she's also beautifully vocally.

It seems that she's been a popular singer ever since she was 13 when she made pretty much of a local hit in a school operetta in her native Chicago. That led to a scholarship and the singing lessons led to her getting a job some years later with Jules Alberti's Orchestra The Alberti Orchestra got an engagement in Toronto, Canada, very shortly thereafter and five years later they were still in Toronto, with Miss King as their star soloist and something like the top radio performer in the Dominion.

It was just a few weeks ago that she made a guest appearance on C. B. S.'s "Meet the Music," a sustaining show, and made some auditions around. The result was her signature to a nice contract for the "Hit Parade."

Contract Bridge

"Will you agree with me that seven diamonds is the week's worst bid? And bawl me out, too, if I'm wrong?" writes contributor M. G. in presenting this sad failure for discussion:

West	East
♠ A K Q 10 7 3	♠ J 8 5
♡ A K J 2	♡ 9 4
◇ Q 4	◇ A K J 9 7 6 3
♣ 5	♣ 8

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
2 ♠	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	7 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

Our friend concludes mournfully, "South led his ace of clubs."

We agree. Any player who will go over his partner's decision after the Blackwood convention has enlightened his companion and left him quite in the gloom concerning the number of aces held, is deserving of public exposure of his sinful bidding.

Dr. Carmichael Discusses Skill Of Older Men

Older workers should be brought into fields where a shortage of manpower, such as applied physics, engineering and certain branches of chemistry, for "there is reason to believe that this shortage will become more acute in the months ahead," Dr. Leonard Carmichael told the Conference on Mental Health in Later Maturity last night.

Dr. Carmichael, president of Tufts College and director of the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personal, speaking on "The Value of the Older Mind in National Defense," urged that older workers be given an opportunity to make their contribution and called for a "working partnership" between youth and age.

"It is not impossible that the blame for certain of those defects in French life which have been so strikingly placed before us in recent months can be attributed to the control which very elderly men had been able to maintain in many important walks of French scientific and industrial enterprise," he said.

"If we are to be saved as a Nation, we must avaid allowing the older worker to do certain things because he has been able to control through financial and political means work for which he is not suited.

"On the other hand, in a wholly competitive situation, it is important to recognize that when labor is scarce and when trained manpower is severely lacking, as at present, the tendency of young executives to turn aside from all old men must be checked," Dr. Carmichael said.

"The unthinking antagonism of youth for what may seem to it to be doddering age or the selfish grasp of men upon functions which more correctly belong to youth are both unfortunate for a democratic society which finds itself in competition with efficient totalitarian despotism."

The Roster, of which Dr. Carmichael is director, has listed more than 60,000 of the Nation's "brain workers" who may be consulted by defense agencies. Dr. Carmichael pointed out that only 20 per cent of the total are over 50 years of age, with the largest group, almost a third of the total, between 31 and 40.

On the same program, at the dinner at the Wardman Park Hotel, Dr. Lewellys F. Barker, of Baltimore, spoke on psychotherapy in the practice of geriatrics, which is the scientific study of old age and its diseases.

The two-day conference opened yesterday under auspices of a unit of the National Institute of Health, United States Public Health Service, with greetings from Surgeon General Parran and Dr. Winfred Overholser, chief of staff at St. Elizabeths Hospital. Their remarks were followed by the reading of papers.

The WEATHER

Weather Conditions

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau, Washington, Friday, May 23, at 7:30 p. m.
Forecast for the District of Columbia—Fair with moderate temperature Saturday and Sunday; moderate northwest winds.

Weather Conditions

A trough of low pressure which extends from New England to the South Atlantic States is moving eastward off the Atlantic Coast, attended by showers and thunder-squalls. Barometer readings are lowest over southern New England, Nantucket, Mass., 1,008.5 millibars (29.78 inches). Following this disturbance an extensive mass of cool air has overspread the Central States and is now approaching the Atlantic Coast. This cool mass is attended by relatively high barometer readings, with a maximum of 1,029.1 millibars (30.39 inches), at Goodland, Kans. Abnormally high temperatures were again reported in the South Atlantic States and Maryland and Virginia Friday afternoon, Columbia, S. C., reporting 102. Since Thursday night there have been moderate showers in portions of the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, and the Middle Atlantic States. Scattered showers occurred also in the southern Rocky Mountain region.

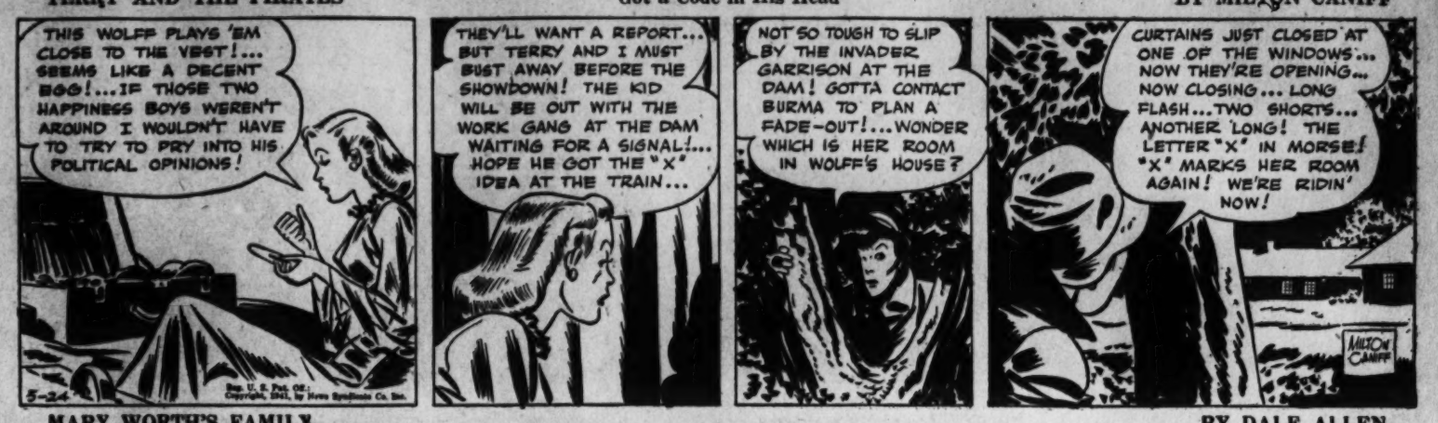
TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Got a Code in His Head — BY MILTON CANIFF



THIS WOLFF PLAYS 'EM CLOSE TO THE VEST!... SEEMS LIKE A DECENT EGG!...IF THOSE TWO HAPPINESS BOYS WEREN'T AROUND I WOULDN'T HAVE TO TRY TO PRY INTO HIS POLITICAL OPINIONS!
THEY'LL WANT A REPORT... BUT TERRY AND I MUST BUST AWAY BEFORE THE SHOWDOWN! THE KID WILL BE OUT WITH THE WORK GANG AT THE DAM WAITING FOR A SIGNAL!... HOPE HE GOT THE "X" IDEA AT THE TRAIN...
NOT SO TOUGH TO SLIP BY THE INVADER GARRISON AT THE DAM! GOTTA CONTACT BURMA TO PLAN A FADE-OUT!...WONDER WHICH IS HER ROOM IN WOLFF'S HOUSE?
CURTAINS JUST CLOSED AT ONE OF THE WINDOWS... NOW THEY'RE OPENING... NOW CLOSING... LONG FLASH...TWO SHORTS... ANOTHER LONG! THE LETTER "X" IN MORSE! "X" MARKS HER ROOM AGAIN! WE'RE RIDIN' NOW!

DO YOU KNOW WHY HE WANTS TO SEE ME, BARNEY?
THE CHAIRMAN OF THE PAROLE BOARD IS IN THERE WITH HIM! I'M AFRAID YOU'RE ON THE SPOT!
POLICE COMMISSIONER
YOU CAN REALIZE THE POSITION IN WHICH THIS MURDER PLACES THE BOARD! WE BROKE OUR RULES TO LET TAPP DANCE IN THAT NIGHT CLUB— BECAUSE YOU ASSURED US YOU COULD HANDLE HIM!
HE HASN'T BEEN FOUND GUILTY YET, MR. JONES!
HE'S GUILTY, SERGEANT! THE GUN THAT WAS FOUND ON TAPP FIRED THE BULLET THAT KILLED HART—OUR BALLISTIC EXPERT JUST MADE HIS REPORT!
WELL, MICHAEL— AT LEAST THEY DIDN'T REDUCE YOU!
I'M NOT THINKING OF MYSELF, MA.— I'M THINKING OF TOMMY. HE COULDN'T HAVE KILLED HART! I'M POSITIVE! AND I'M GOING TO PROVE IT!!
